NO. 20,203. ENTERED AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER. POSTOFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C. WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1931 COPYRIGHT, 1931. BY THE WASHINGTON POST CO. THREE CENTS.

TWO NAVY YARDS MAY BE CLOSED AS ECONOMY AID

Boston, Charleston and Newport Affected by Tentative Program.

REDUCTION BY 3,000 IN PERSONNEL LOOMS

Fight Expected From Cities Involved; Idea Follows Hoover Budget Plea.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A tentative economy program for the Navy has been worked out by a group of admirals, one which calls for the temporary closing down of two navy yards and one naval training station.

The navy yards are at Boston, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., and the naval training station is at Newport, R. I.

The admirals also are thinking of recommending that a number of warships be temporarily taken out of commission. Their tentative plan calls for the temporary withdrawal from active service of two cruisers, two battleships, approximately six destroyers, and approximately the same number of submarines.

Would Cut Off 3,000 Men.

If the ships should be laid up in port, only caretaken crews would be necessary to maintain them. A caretaker crew represents about 25 per cent of a normal crew.

This would mean that the Navy personnel could be reduced by approximately 3,000.

The admirals, heads of various bureaus or divisions in the Navy Department, were asked to work out an economy plan in response to the request of President Hoover that the Navy's 1933 budget be reduced by $61,000,000—that is, from $401,000,000 to $340,000,000.

Program Is Tentative.

The economy program outlined is, as has been said, tentative. If it is ultimately agreed upon, it then will be submitted to Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams. If he approves it, it will then be placed before President Hoover.

Meanwhile, there is certain to be a terrific political reaction. The senators and representatives who represent Boston and Charleston may be expected to register a vigorous protest against the closing of the navy yards in those two cities, and the senators and representatives who represent Newport may be expected to act just as vigorously in opposing the closing of the naval training station there.

Boston Adams' Home Town.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Boston is the home town of Secretary Adams.

President Hoover is determined that the Navy shall reduce its budget. About ten days ago it became known that the President was very angry with those officials of the Navy who, in his opinion, had started a "backfire" to discourage economies in the Navy.

A day or so later Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, expressed the opinion that the President had been very moderate in his demands on the Navy.

He said further that if the President asked for a greater cut in the Navy's budget, the country would be certain to back him up.

Libel Case Blaming Kunz Is Dismissed

Granata, Victor for House, Requests That Charge Be Dropepd.

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The criminal libel charge against Representative Stanley H. Kunz, Northwest Side Democratic leader, was dismissed today by Judge Francis Borrelli at the request of the complainant, Charles Granata.

The action followed Kunz's defeat in last November's election by Peter C. Granata, Republican, and brother of the complainant. Kunz demanded a recount of the unofficial returns and the new canvass returned the seat to Kunz. The recount has not yet been approved, however, by County Judge E. K. Jarecki.

The libel action was waged on statements allegedly made by Mr. Kunz to Washington newspapermen that his opponent's brother was, according to court records, in the Jack Guzik income case, Capone's secretary. The complainant contended the records in the trial showed he was an auditor in the Hawthorne Kennel Club. Granata's attorneys said the case was not ready for action as the Washington newspapermen, to whom the remarks were made, were unable to appear at the hearing.

Murray-for-President Club to Be Organized

(Associated Press.)

A plan to bring Gov. W. H. ("Alfalfa Bill") Murray to Washington next winter to address a "Murray-for-President Club" yet to be formed was announced yesterday by Representative Swank (Oklahoma), Democrat.

"When the Oklahoma Democratic members come for the December session of Congress I shall proceed to organize a 'Murray-for-President Club,'" Swank said. "I want the members of Congress to see and know Alfalfa Bill and to appreciate what fine presidential timber he is."

Snell Asserts G. O. P. Will Organize House

Democrats Plan Meeting December 5; Fireworks Are Anticipated.

(Associated Press.)

Another promise of verbal fireworks in the House this winter blazed forth yesterday in a Republican's prediction that his party would do the organizing and discovery that Democrats had arranged to meet December 5 to name their candidate for Speaker.

Representative Snell, of New York, expressed confidence that the regular and independent wings of the Republican party would present a united front on organization. As chairman of the last rules committee, he is a prominent candidate for the Republican speakership nomination.

Before leaving for his home in Uvalde, Tex., Representative Garner, House Democratic leader, made arrangements for his colleagues to use the House chamber for their caucus two days before Congress convenes December 7. Nearly every member of his party is pledged to vote for the Texan.

Representative Arnold, of Illinois, secretary, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton,

BERTRAND H. SNELL.

HOOVER LOAN PLAN LAUDED BY LATINS

Argentine Seeks to Reopen Beef Trade; U. S. Tariff Is Attacked.

Discussion of Latin-American financing in special relation to American bondholders occupied the sessions of the Pan-American Commercial Conference yesterday. President Hoover appeared before the delegates and was given an enthusiastic reception when he recalled a warning he had given the same conference four years before on the evils of indiscriminate borrowing and reckless lending.

Argentina, through her delegates, again brought up the problems of Argentine-American trade relations when a motion was proposed that would open the American customs ports to Argentine beef and cereals. An additional attack on the American tariff also was made from an unexpected quarter after James S. Carson, of Electric Bond & Share, declared:

"Tariff prohibitions, as a general rule, are antieconomic."

Electric Bond & Share is one of the American corporations most heavily interested in Central and South America, with electric light and public utility interests in practically every country.

The President's address recalled his sound advice of four years ago when he urged the delegates to restrict their financial operations of lending and borrowing except for purely reproductive purposes.

Other addresses were made during the day by Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, of Porto Rico, and Dr. Max Winkler, member of a Wall street banking firm.

Gov. Roosevelt declared:

"Peoples of this hemisphere are so constituted by nature that we can properly be complements and supplements of the endeavors of one another, rather than rivals and antagonists."

Dr. Winkler's address had a classical flavor as he quoted Horace to prove that American bankers were more anxious to seize every advantage of their Latin American debtors without any regard of the economic principles they were violating.

The tariff attack was so couched that in future Argentine beef, which was originally restricted from American ports on account of hoof-and-mouth disease, would hereafter be admitted provided that the beef came from an approved zone. At the present time any evidences of infection in any part of a country automatically closes all American ports to that country.

The Costa Rican delegation followed the President's address with a proposal that an inter-American committee be formed to study the situation of Latin-American govern-

$151,000 EXTORTION IS CHARGED BY DEAN

Recovery of Sum Allegedly Paid "To Protect Good Name" Sought.

Alleging that he had paid out $151,000 to protect his good name, and to prevent publicity and scandal, Edward B. Dean, sr., of 1320 Twenty-first street northwest, millionaire real estate holder, yesterday filed a suit in the District Supreme Court against Norman S. Bowles, a disbarred attorney; Abner Seigal, an attorney who is now facing criminal proceedings in the District on a charge of attempting to bribe an employe of the District jail; George Gormley and Robert and Edyna C. B. Lloyd.

The suit seeks to recover various cash payments said to have been made the defendants as follows: $8,000 on December 9, 1929; $22,500 on March 26, 1930; $15,000 on May 12, 1930; $35,000 on October 23, 1930; $10,000 on February 16, 1931; $10,000 on April 25, 1931, and $45,000 on May 20, 1931. All these sums plus interest from the date of payment, are asked in Mr. Dean's suit

Through Attorneys Edmund D Campbell; Douglas, Obear & Douglas, and Neil Burkinshaw, Mr. Dean alleges that continuously from December 1, 1929, until the present Bowles "conspired with divers persons unknown" to extort large sums from him through accusations of criminal misconduct and threats of civil or criminal prosecution. Mr. Dean said that he had been falsely charged with crimes which if true would subject him to ridicule and contempt.

Siegal, the allegation said, joined the conspiracy February 6, 1931, the Lloyds and Gormley, on May 1, 1931. The defendants procured certain women, Dean said, to falsely accuse him with unlawful and improper assaults upon them, and on March 15 they accused him of altering a contract between himself and the Atlantic Utilities Co. To save himself from a charge of forgery, which, he said was unjust, he began paying out money, the suit declared.

Dean has been sued frequently in the District Supreme Court. The last suit filed against him was one by a Mrs. Lloyd and her husband.

Arms Smuggling Plot Bared in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Public Ledger says evidence of a plot to smuggle ammunition from this city to rebel forces in Honduras was uncovered today by Federal agents, who arrested one man and seized 100 rounds of ammunition.

The man was arrested, the paper says, as he was about to board a fruit boat with the ammunition in his possession. Department of Justice agents who made the arrest said the man was an American citizen, but declined to divulge his name.

12 U. S. and Foreign Ship Lines Planning Big Merger

Union Would Bring Under One Head Companies Controlling 181 Passenger and Cargo Vessels and Make Largest in History of Industry.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The Herald Tribune says steps to organize a merger of twelve American and foreign shipping companies owning and controlling 181 passenger and cargo liners with a total of 1,500,000 gross tons were taken at a meeting today in San Francisco.

The meeting, the newspaper says, was attended by Herbert Fleischhacker, Pacific Coast banker; Capt. Robert Dollar, R. Stanley Dollar, Kermit Roosevelt and John M. Franklin.

They considered a union of the shipping properties of the Roosevelt-International Mercantile Marine, Dollar, Chapman and Dawson interests.

The merger, if concluded, the paper adds, would be the biggest in the history of American shipping. It would bring under one head companies operating from Atlantic and Pacific Coast ports of the United States to Europe, the Orient, around the world and in the intercoastal trades.

The Roosevelt and Dollar interests are expected to take the lead in direction of the merged lines. The Herald Tribune says Paul W. Chapman, owner of the United States Lines, under which the Leviathan and Majestic operate, is reported willing to step aside if assured present shareholders of the company are protected.

The total value of the ships, terminals, offices and other properties of the various lines is computed at many millions of dollars.

Basil Harris, vice president of the Roosevelt-I. M. M Lines, declined to comment on the proposed merger, but private sources gave the information that Roosevelt and Franklin reached San Francisco today and immediately went into conference with Fleischhacker and the other shipping men.

TOKYO PLANES BOMB CAPITAL IN MANCHURIA

Many Persons Killed as Projectiles Batter City of Chinchow.

FLEET OF TWELVE USED IN OFFENSE

Japan Sends Warning to National Government at Nanking.

(United Press).

Japanese military planes battered the Manchurian City of Chinchow with bombs yesterday in the most serious renewal of fighting since occupation of the three Chinese provinces by Japan's army.

The Japanese government dispatched more than a score of warships to Chinese ports and warned the Nanking government it would be held responsible for the lives and property of Japanese residents in China.

The League of Nations, viewing the fresh outbreak as more alarming than ever, was informed by Japan that disbanded Chinese troops attacked and partly burned the City of Newchang, attacked Japanese at Tunching-Kow and placed many Japanese civilians in peril.

12 Planes Bomb City.

Mukden, Manchuria, Oct. 8 (U.P.). A fleet of twelve Japanese army planes flew low over the City of Chinchow today, dropping bombs on the largest buildings in Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's provisional capital. Manchurian sources said many persons were killed and many buildings demolished.

Beginning the most serious offensive since Japan's occupation of all large cities in Manchuria, the planes made their attack from Newchang. First they flew to the temporary government headquarters of the Manchurian ruler and scattered handbills, warning civilians to repudiate Chang's rule and declaring that the Japanese were preparing for "positive action."

At 2 p. m. the aerial bombardment was started. Later the planes returned to Newchang. The exodus of Chinese from Chinchow and nearby districts was resumed.

Japan Warns Nanking.

Tokyo, Oct. 8 (U.P.)—Japan warned China today that the National government at Nanking would be held responsible for failure to suppress the Chinese boycott against Japanese goods and for failure to protect the lives and property of Japanese residents.

Naval authorities announced that a score of warships had been dispatched to the principal cities of China to protect the interests of Japan against "alarming" agitation among Chinese.

Five vessels will go to Shanghai, two to Hankow, and one each to Nanking, Chinkiang, Shasi, Ichang, Chunking, Port Arthur, Lunkow, Chefoo, Tsingtav, Wuhu, Kukiang and Changsha. Smaller ships will be sent to other Chinese ports.

Japan charged that the Chinese government has been utilizing the boycott as an instrument of national policy against Japan.

Nationalist Party Scored.

Morrow's Widow Urged for Senate

Friends Start Move to Have Her Appointed to Fill Unexpired Term.

Ridgewood, N. J., Oct. 8 (U.P.).—A movement to have Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow appointed United States Senator to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, who died Monday, has been started in Ridgewood.

Two communications recommending her appointment were forwarded today to Gov. Morgan F. Larson, at Trenton. One was a resolution adopted by local unit of Republican Women, Inc. The other was a personal letter by Oliver B. Surpless, treasurer of the Bergen County Republican committee.

The resolution adopted by the women's organization called attention to Mrs. Morrow's qualifications for a seat in the Senate, declaring that she is "fitted by education and by unusually broadening experiences" to hold the office.

Chicago Bank Embezzler Sentenced on 10 Counts

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Walter E. Wolf, embezzler of $3,691,000 from the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., was sentenced to serve from one to ten years on each of ten indictments today. The sentences were made to run consecutively and Wolf will not be eligible for parole until he has served ten years.

Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher in Criminal Court pronounced the sentence upon the long trusted employe of Chicago's largest bank whose diversion of securities to his own speculative ventures in the stock market made him the greatest individual embezzler on record.

RULE OF HOUSE HALTS QUIZ ON CANNON FUNDS

Original Records Denied Grand Jury; Ruling of Justice Awaited.

END OF CASE IS SEEN IF CLERK IS UPHELD

Statute of Limitation Would Kill Part of Evidence Before Congress Meets.

With the refusal of William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, to furnish from the official files of the House papers vitally necessary to the grand jury in its investigation of charges against Bishop James Cannon and Ada L. Burroughs, the possibility loomed large last night that the case against the bishop would collapse entirely.

The only way in which the grand jury will be able to go ahead with its investigation into the matter of alleged violations of the Federal corrupt practices act, it appeared last night, will be by accepting certified copies of the original, or photostatic copies, and this the grand jury said yesterday in open court it would be unwilling to do.

Mr. Page had been counted upon by John P. Wilson, assistant United States attorney in charge of the investigation, to furnish from the files of the House, the reports on campaign expenditures and receipts by Ada Burroughs, who was secretary-treasurer of the Cannon anti-Smith committee in Virginia in the last presidential campaign.

House Resolution Cited.

He readily appeared in answer to a subpena, but he did not bring with him the Burroughs reports. The whole fabrication of the Government case rests upon these reports and if they are not forthcoming, there will be small chance of ever completing the investigation.

Mr. Page relied upon a House resolution of 1879 in his refusal to bring the desired reports. In this resolution it was expressly forbidden to any one to take anything from the official House files unless a resolution has been adopted in the House expressly agreeing to the removal.

Mr. Page recited a list of Federal court actions that had failed to bring any papers from his files. He said that documents had been subpenaed many times, but that the Federal courts had held in every case that there was no authority vested in them sufficiently strong to override the House.

Request Under Advisement.

The House clerk had been called before Justice James Proctor in the District Supreme Court to "tell his story." He recited his powers and he said that the House, being very jealous of its rights and privileges, had consistently refused to lend its official files in any formal proceedings.

The only way to get the official reports is to have the House of Representatives, after it convenes in December, adopt a resolution authorizing the production of the files to the grand jury. The resolution would also have to make these reports avail-

Oklahoma Oil Field Reopens Saturday

Armed Rule to Continue Under the Plan of Gov. Murray.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 8 (A. P.).—Gov. William T. Murray announced tonight he would open Oklahoma's flush oil fields Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. The announcement was made after a conference with operators representing the Oklahoma City and Greater Seminole areas, curbed under military orders since August 5.

The fields will continue under military rule and wells will be prorated to meet market demands. Price was not a factor in lifting the shutdown, the governor said. Murray vainly sought to increase the price of petroleum to $1 a barrel before reopening the oil fields.

Lieut. Col. Cicero I. Murray, the governor's cousin, in charge of the shutdown, said that allowables and nominations by pipe lines would have to be worked out in detail and that Saturday would be the earliest possible reopening date.

Germans to Trade Coal For Brazilian Coffee

Berlin, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The newspaper Tageblatt said today that negotiations were under way for the barter of 500,000 tons of Ruhr coal for a quantity of Brazilian coffee in a manner similar to that in which Brazil recently traded coffee for American wheat.

The Tageblatt suggests that the negotiations might be extended to include a trade of coal for Canadian wheat. The coffee negotiations apparently have not reached the stage at which the price has been discussed.

Laval's Visit Planned; Mellon Bankers' Host

Financiers Get Hoover Program at Secret Meeting Here.

The sumptuous apartment of Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, was the scene of an important prelude to the announcement of President Hoover's new prosperity program, it became known yesterday when the official inside story was given out.

It was in the Mellon apartment that President Hoover outlined his program before a gathering of New York bankers, and it was there that the bankers pledged their cooperation to the President.

Secretary Mellon lives in an apartment house at 1785 Massachusetts avenue. It is perhaps the most exclusive, the most expensive apartment house in the City of Washington. There are only a few tenants. Each occupies an entire floor. Below the apartment of the enormously wealthy Andrew Mellon is the apart-

Entertainment Program to Be Similar to That for MacDonald.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The definite program of Premier Laval's visit to the United States was formally announced by the State Department yesterday, although the widest speculation continued regarding the scope of his conversations with President Hoover.

Several hours after the Laval program had been made public in Paris the State Department announced that the French premier will be entertained in Washington in similar fashion to the protocol arranged for Prime Minister MacDonald.

The only exceptions seem to be that there has been no Rapidan conference scheduled, nor has there been as yet any provision for a reception to the press by the visiting statesman.

French Ambassador Paul Claudel arrived yesterday afternoon from Paris

POINT WON BY U. S. IN CAPONE TAX TRIAL

Capital Attorney's Letter to Revenue Department Enters Into Case.

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Al Capone's unusual system of high finance, the division of profits in his underworld organization, and an attempt by the gang leader to settle his income tax affairs with the Government, were discussed today at his trial in Federal court on charges of income tax evasion.

The most important development of the day was regarded as a victory for District Attorney George E. O. Johnson and his legal staff, who are attempting to convict Capone on double-barrelled charges which would put him behind prison bars for maximum sentence of 32 years and extract $80,000 from him in fines.

Despite four hours of unceasing opposition from defense attorneys, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson ruled that documentary evidence concerning the attempt by Capone to settle his income tax troubles in April, 1930, was admissable as evidence.

The evidence is intended to show Capone admitted that he had an income of $266,000 over four years from the profits of Chicago's liquor, gambling and vice enterprises.

Capone, dressed in garments more somber since reporters twitted him about a flashy necktie and bright-colored socks, lost his look of boredom when Judge Wilkerson ruled the evidence admissable. The scarfaced gang chief glared at his attorneys, Michael Ahern and Albert Fink, toward whom he normally is most affable.

Louis H. Wilson, of Chicago, in charge of fraud and investigations for the Chicago internal revenue department office, gave the most damaging evidence of the day against Capone, Wilson, whose hearing is so poor that the attorneys shouted questions to him, testified that Capone and an attorney, Lawrence Mattingly, of Washington, D. C., visited his office on April 17, 1930, to discuss the gangster's income tax.

The documentary evidence which the Government regarded so valuable consisted of a power of attorney designating Mattingly as Capone's lawyer, a letter from Mattingly to the internal revenue department, and a stenographic report of the con-

BRITAIN IN THROES OF VOTE CAMPAIGN

Interparty Clashes Seen as Factions Split on Platform Planks.

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Election fever spread throughout the nation tonight as local political organizations, in 600 constituencies from North Scotland to Land's End, met to discuss their candidates and the issues on which the campaign is to be waged.

On the national government side some difficult decisions must be made. In several constituencies there are both Conservative and "National Liberal" candidates, each of whom considers himself to have a preemptive right to run as the sole representative of the National party. In a few places a fight between the rival national candidates seems inevitable.

Elsewhere Liberal may be fighting Liberal—one as a supporter of Ramsay MacDonald, the other as a member of the "Liberal Free Traders," who are headed, although not yet officially, by David Lloyd George.

The Conservatives are aiming to put a total of 500 candidates in the field for the voting October 27, and Arthur Henderson's Labor party the same number. Some 50 Liberals are expected to run as antigovernment candidates and 30 as supporters of the MacDonald national government.

Sir Oswald Mosley's "new party" will put up eighteen candidates, who apparently will fight everybody in sight on all possible points.

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, tonight issued an election manifesto which contained no surprises. In its insistence on tariffs and imperial economic unity it formed a general interpretation, from the conservative point of view, of Mr. Mac-

Rome, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Forty thousand young Fascists between 18 and 21 years old passed in review before Premier Mussolini today in a parade celebrating the first anniversary of the formation of the young Fascists group.

Seventeen thousand had come to town on bicycles and by automobile. The premier spoke briefly, congratulating the marchers on the demonstration.

REAR ADM. NEWTON A. McCULLY.

Crew of Steamer Rescues McCully After Ramming Craft in Bay.

Cape Henry, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Rear Admiral Newton A. McCulley and five of his adopted Russian children were rescued from Chesapeake Bay today by the crew of the steamer Verona, which rammed and sank their tiny yacht in the dark hours before dawn.

Ninotchka, 15, was thrown into the darkened water when the big steamer bore down on the small boat, and swam for more than a half hour before she was picked up by the lifeboat which had transferred the other occupants of the sinking yacht.

"It was shortly after midnight," Admiral McCully, who recently retired, said when located after the landing here. "We were proceeding slowly down the bay when we were run down aft by a large vessel.

"We began sinking rapidly. The vessel that rammed us hove to im-

National Credit Concern to Be Formed Today at Dover.

CASH SUBSCRIPTIONS ASSURING CAPITAL

Billion Dollars in Debentures Authorized for Loans to Country's Banks.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Bankers tonight completed organization of the $500,000,000 credit corporation recommended by President Hoover as a means of relieving the strain on the country's banks.

The name of the huge organization is to be the National Credit Corporation. How much of the capital has been subscribed was not announced, but it was said the response from the country's banks, which have been asked to participate, had been satisfactory, and articles of incorporation would be filed at Dover, Del., tomorrow.

Announcement of the final details was made by Mortimer N. Buckner, president of the New York Clearing House and chairman of the organization committee appointed yesterday by Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Clearing Houses Get Plan.

The plan has been mailed to 901 clearing house associations throughout the country. These associations will serve as local units in the administration of the corporation's activities.

The corporation is to be authorized to issue up to $1,000,000,000 in debentures to subscribing banks, which are being asked to participate to the extent of 2 per cent of their net demand and time deposits. Interest on the debentures will be payable only if earned.

Personnel of the directorate and the executive officers will be made public tomorrow. The home office of the corporation will be in New York City, but its organization here will be comparatively small. As its main function "the corporation will lend or advance funds to banks or groups of associations of banks," the official announcement said.

Groups in District.

"It is contemplated that one or more groups of associations of banks will be set up in every Federal Reserve district. Each group will be composed of the subscribing banks within the area covered by it. Each director of the corporation is to undertake the responsibility of organizing the groups or associations within his Federal Reserve district.

"The area covered by and the composition of each group or association are to be approved by the corporation. Each such group is to have its own loan committee which is to pass upon the loans requested by any of its own members and upon the security therefor.

"When a loan is approved by the local loan committee the note of the borrowing bank and the security therefor, together with the note of the group (of which the borrowing bank is a member) in a like amount shall be forwarded to the home office of the corporation.

Secured by Group Notes.

"Thereupon the corporation is to advance the amount of the loan, if approved, and the group or association in turn is then to pay over the funds to the borrowing bank."

As security, the debentures of the National Credit Corporation will be secured by the notes of the various groups, the notes of the borrowing banks and the security furnished by them and cash on hand subject to the payment of the running expenses of the corporation.

"In addition to subscriptions from banks, the corporation may receive subscriptions to debentures from other sources to which loans are not available," Mr. Buckner's statement pointed out.

This will permit private banking firms to participate in the raising of the capital. It could not be learned today whether such firms had been solicited in this respect, but it is known that some of the most important firms in Wall street are dis-

HOOVER FOES URGE VOTE ON LOAN PLAN

Democratic Leaders Demand Special Session to Put Program Into Law.

(Associated Press.)

From the ranks of his political opponents came demands today that President Hoover call immediately a special session of Congress to put in motion his economic program.

Democratic chieftains headed by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Senate minority leader, who was present at the White House conference, advanced the view the plan would be more effective if written into law at once.

Opposition to a session was voiced, meanwhile, by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, and Representative Snell, of New York, a prominent candidate for the Speakership.

Snell Sees No Advantage.

Snell said that because of the short time remaining before Congress convened in December, he could not see "any great advantage" in calling a special session. He predicted the President's proposals would meet approval of the legislators, and said they had already won the favor of the public.

The White House remained silent. No suggestion for calling Congress into session was made at the Tuesday night conference of congressional leaders which preceded announcement of Mr. Hoover's project for liberalizing credit.

Proposals for calling an extra session came from Senator Robinson and Senators Walsh, of Montana, assistant Democratic leader, and Caraway, of Arkansas.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader, predicted the President's recommendations would improve business conditions.

"The people generally believe that before the winter is over the measures proposed will greatly aid in relieving unemployment and bring benefit to the farmers," he said.

Would Aid Land Banks.

Senator Robinson said the White House proposals should "prove helpful and of permanent advantage." He added that the Federal and Joint Stock Land Banks should be enabled to grant extensions of loans and arrangements made for carrying over the Government's 1931 seed loans to farmers.

"Of course," he said, "the remedies referred to are not exclusive. So far as they go, I regard them as sound, practical and susceptible of being supplemented by other consistent measures.

"It does seem to me that the surest and quickest way to get decisions and to make plans effective is by assembling the Congress."

Walsh said he was very glad the President's relief measures seemed to be meeting with general approval, but added that if the promise of legislation was so beneficial the actual enactment of it should do even more good.

Caraway said if the President believed his plan would be effective in reviving business he should call Congress into session at once instead of waiting for the regular session.

By the time Congres meets in regular session, Caraway said, "the farmer's assets will be out of his hands and Congress will be working for the gamblers."

Americans' Cash Gains in September

(Associated Press.)

Per capita circulation of money increased $1.54 in September over August.

The Treasury said yesterday the September per capita circulation was $42.20, compared with $40.66 in August. In September, total circulation was $5,245,673,695, as compared with $5,052,027,109, or an increase of more than $193,000,000.

The total money in the United States was $9,282,425,326, a drop of approximately $80,000,000 since August. Of this, $4,738,140,215 was in gold coin and bullion, of which the Treasury held $3,713,058,331.

Hoover Home Plan Aids 'All That's Worth While'

By JOHN J. DALY

IN an endeavor to help the small home owner, Herbert Hoover, the great engineer, comes down to the foundation of all that is worth while in life. He calls the realty men, the building and loan people, and the insurance crowd about him, and says: "Let us help this man whose ambition in life is to have a haven of rest where he may go at the end of the day, in his search for happiness."

There is in every man's heart a desire to have a home where love, and happiness, and contentment abide; where the laughter of little children, the cooing of babies, is sweeter music than all the symphonic compositions ever conceived; where there is nothing in all the world like the cadences of love—the love of a man for a maid, of a woman for a man.

When these happy young souls, the bride and the groom, start out to secure the home of their dreams they are often beset by the wiles of the crafty, the cunning, and the conscienceless who, knowing that love is blind, strew the pathway with plenty of thorns. After the deed is signed the imperfections show up, and the boy and girl who hope to build an enduring home find they alone are the builders, without benefit of contractors.

NO one yet has ever stopped them, and no one ever will; but it would seem for the best interests of all mankind that fellow mortals get together and help the home-builders rather than hinder—for if happiness dwells in one home it will quickly spread to another, happiness being contagious. A nation filled with happy homes is a happy nation, and this the President knows.

The great joy of human life is found in the home where love abounds; the home that is built for permanency, in a house that is made to endure; not for one generation alone, but for two and for three and so on down the years, where babes in their cradles later grow to mature manhood and womanhood, carrying with them into the world the ideals of citizenship learned at the real fountain of national pride and glory—the home.

To help these people, who are building homes, is to be great in small things and fundamentally sound in all that is great; for here is the hearth of humanity, where love reaches out to help the beggar that passes the window; where no man, no matter what he possesses, is envied; for he can not have more than they have there in the little home where dwells the great god Joy.

* * * *

TROUBLES and misfortunes, sorrows and disappointments sometimes show their evil heads inside the home; but only feverishly and intermittently, for the vicissitudes of life are overcome by the true home owners who build their houses, not on the shifting sands of expediency, but on the solid rock foundation of permanence and strength. Great souls live in these homes, people who are not too proud to weep with those who are weeping, who suffer when others are sad, who are not discouraged even in the face of adversity, custodians of ideals, keepers of the light that never fails, faith in humanity.

By all means help the home builders, for the home owners are the hope of the nation—the men and women who look down the long vistas of life and see garden flowers in bloom, great trees surrounding their plots of happiness, birds singing in the springtime, lighted logs on the hearth in the cold wintry evenings, the glow of happiness over all.

Love, in the form of a dove, symbol of peace and happiness, and contentment, is perched on the roof-tree of the real home—and that is the home that all men and women, in their dreams, see standing as the sign of peace on earth and good will to men.

MELLON'S APARTMENT SCENE OF HOOVER'S BANKING PARLEY

ment of the enormously wealthy Leander McCormick-Goodhart, commercial counselor to the British Embassy, and a cousin of the McCormick (wheat reaper) family of Chicago.

The Mellon apartment is a veritable museum. On the walls of some of the fifteen rooms are priceless portraits by Rembrandt, Titian and other old masters; also the apartment contains rare Gobelin tapestries and suits of medieval armor.

It was in this setting that President Hoover, Secretary Mellon and the New York bankers talked over the program for aiding the weak banks in the country and for reviving confidence in the country's financial stability.

President Hoover already had his plan worked out. He began to formulate it early in September. He talked to representatives of the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Farm Loan Board and the Treasury Department, and he also talked to bankers, agricultural leaders and industrial magnates.

Two groups had to be consulted about the program—the bankers and the leaders of Congress. The bankers had to be asked whether they would agree to the creation of a private credit pool of $500,000,000 to aid weak banks, and the senators and representatives had to be asked whether they would support legislation to liberalize the rediscount provisions of the Federal Reserve act, to strengthen the Federal Farm Loan Board, and to create an institution like the War Finance Corporation if such an institution should be found to be necessary.

President Hoover had worked out the details of his program last Friday. That same day he sent messages to 32 members of Congress, asking them to meet with him at the White Houe on Tuesday night to discuss a "national emergency."

Mellon Invites Financiers.

At the same time, Secretary Mellon, at the request of the President, invited a number of New York bankers to visit his apartment Sunday night.

On Saturday, the President motored to his camp on the Rapidan River. Ordinarily, the President remains at the camp until Monday morning. On this occasion, however, he left the camp Sunday afternoon and arrived at the White House shortly after 6 o'clock.

From the White House, he went to the apartment of Secretary Mellon, where the Treasury chief and the New York bankers were awaiting him. The identity of these bankers was not revealed.

However, it is known that among those who gathered in the Mellon apartment were Thomas W. Lamont and George Whitney, two partners in J. P. Morgan & Co., and William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Co., which institution is regarded as one of the group of Morgan banks.

After the President had outlined his program to the bankers, the latter agreed to appoint a small commitee with Gov. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, as chairman. This committee met in New York on Monday morning and agreed to recommend acceptance of the plan.

Bankers Agree on Fund.

On Tuesday morning there was a meeting of the officials of the New York Clearing House Association. These officials promised that their banks would subscribe 2 per cent of their assets, thus forming a fund of $150,000,000 for the proposed credit pool of $500,000,000. Banks in other parts of the country were to be asked by the President to subscribe the remainder.

That night—Tuesday night—President Hoover held his conference with the Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress, laid before them his program, and was assured by them that they agreed to it in principle.

The only difference of opinion occurred when the President told the assembled statesmen that he proposed to discuss the war debt question with Premier Laval, of France, when the latter comes here this month.

Some of those present—Representative John N. Garner (Democrat), of Texas, for example—thought that the President was trying to have the members approve in advance an extension of the one-year moratorium on war debts and reparations. Consequently, he arose and delivered a sharp speech on the subject.

Asked No Debts Pledge.

It was stated officially yesterday, however, that the President did not ask the members of Congress to pledge themselves to support any program with respect to the debt question.

This, it was stated, was made clear when the President said in his statement that the debt question was one which would first have to be talked over with representatives of foreign governments.

Representative Garner and certain other members, however, are convinced that at the outset the President did intend to ask them to support a plan for extending the one-year moratorium on debts and reparations. In its final form, they say, the President's statement was much different than it was in its original form. The President had not intended to give out a statement after Tuesday night's conference. However, it was said yesterday that the members were so cordial that it was decided to issue one.

Banker Sees Hope In Hoover's Plan

People Now Assured Banks Will Stand Together, Director Asserts.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Development of President Hoover's bank pool plan has assured the people that bankers are going to stand together, Fred I. Kent, director of the New York Trust Co., said today in closing the convention of the American Bankers Association.

A great step forward has been taken, Kent asserted, in the organization of the pool to loosen frozen credit. The association yesterday voted approval of the pool plan. A restoration of confidence in the banking structure has been created, he said, by the President's plan.

Kent reported a conversation last week with Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon in which he said the latter told him "the United States of America warranted the confidence of the people."

Bottle Bears Note Asking Aid for Ship

Container Washed Ashore in Florida; War-Time Disaster Recalled.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Daytona Beach authorities disclosed today that the name "Lieut. Comdr. J. D. Halladay," appeared on a note in a bottle which was washed ashore here yesterday. The note, which was not dated, read, "S O S send help 150 miles south of the Azores. Wireless out."

Capt. Carl D. Justice, Washington, D. C., yachtsman, who is here with Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, transatlantic flier, outfitting a yawl for a world cruise, starting next December, assisted authorities in deciphering the note.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Possibility that a bottled note washed ashore at Daytona Beach yesterday may have been set afloat during the World War thirteen years ago by a naval officer when the auxiliary flagship, City of Mobile, was blown up at sea was expressed here today.

Officials of the Isthmian Steamship Line revealed that J. D. Halladay, whose name appears signed to the bottle-encased S O S, was second officer in command of the ill-fated ship at the time of the disaster—June, 1918.

PARIS BANKERS OFF TO STUDY U. S. PLAN

To View Hoover Proposal and Prepare for Laval's Early Visit.

Paris, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Bank of France today sent two of its highest officials to the United States. They will study President Hoover's proposals to deal with the financial crisis and so prepare for Premier Laval's visit to the President in Washington.

Meanwhile, Lord Reading, British foreign secretary, completed his presentation of Britain's financial position to the premier and other French government chiefs. The foreign secretary said no understanding had been reached because "we do not know what will happen in the future."

The newspaper L'Information printed what was considered significant news that J. P. Morgan, who came to Paris two days ago on the same train that brought Lord Reading, conferred during the day with Gov. Clement Moret of the Bank of France and other leading financiers.

French public opinion, as represented by the comments of leading newspapers, was apprehensive that President Hoover might confront Premier Laval with a request that France agree to a further suspension of German reparations.

The officials sent by the Bank of France to study the Hoover proposals are Charles Farnier, assistant governor, and Robert Lacour-Gayet, who has served as the representative of the French treasury in the United States and was a member of the commission that negotiated the Berenger-Mellon debt agreement. M. Lacour-Gayet is director of economic research for the bank.

The two bankers, who sailed on the Europa, have been instructed to make contacts with both Federal Reserve and United States Treasury officials before the premier arrives.

The significance attached to the visit of the premier, in view of the new Hoover proposals and the fact that France and the United States have between them most of the world's gold, was further emphasized by Lord Reading.

PROGRAM FOR LAVAL VISIT IS ANNOUNCED

and went immediately to the embassy without making any statement regarding the projected visit.

M. Laval will arrive in New York on Thursday, October 22, and after the usual ceremonies at New York will come immediately to Washington. The first night in Washington the President and Mrs. Hoover will entertain the premier, Marshal Petain and the members of the premier's suite and the entourage accompanying the French soldier to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration.

The French chief of state will stay at the Edge home only two nights, his first and his last. The remaining evenings he will be the guest of President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House, and of Secretary and Mrs. Stimson at Woodley.

During these two evenings, the long awaited conversations between the two chiefs of state on the intergovernmental debts is expected to take place. Secretary Stimson took the initiative in acquainting the Quai d'Orsay with the details of the President's proposal before it had been revealed to the congressional leaders at the historic midnight White House conclave.

Believe Debt Cut Needed.

Both the President and the French premier feel that there should be a reduction of war debts. France would like to see her American indebtedness effectively sliced and the international bankers have persuaded the President through Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills that this would be an excellent move. Premier Laval will have before him the said example of what befell French statesmen Briand and Caillaux when they tried to commit the United States to a war debt policy based on French theories alone.

The President, on the other hand, can not condition any further granting of a moratorium to France on a reduction of her reparations demands on Germany and on a radical reduction on French land armament. France will ever maintain the three cardinal points of her national policy: security, arbitration and disarmament, and in that order.

The President's policies are threatened by senatorial opposition if he reduces French debts without getting some reduction in German reparations and French armament and if he attempts to predicate any financial agreement on reparations he will be acting contrary to his previous pronouncements and will risk offending the French.

Morrow Will Be Missed.

The conciliating hand of Senator Morrow will be sorely missed in the negotiations as some compromise will be effected. The President is disposed to prolong the twelve-month moratorium if the widespread depression throughout the country continues. This extension of debt payments would be offered France in a spirit of international helpfulness and a reciprocal feeling would, naturally be expected from Premier Laval.

The President is interested in a twofold aspect of the French reaction: Germany and armaments. If France passes on to Germany the benefits of American financial grace and likewise tries to pare her land armaments in preparation for the world disarmament conference of February, 1932, it is believed the Hoover-Laval negotiations will have been successful.

U. S. May Find Problem In Laval Servant Staff

The State Department may be called upon to staff the temporary home of Premier Laval with an efficient corps of butlers, maids and valets, it appeared here last night. Warren Delano Robbins, chief of the Division of Protocol, had not yet heard from Ambassador Edge, who has offered his own Washington home to the French premier. The temporary residence of the French statesman is located in the fashionable Dupont Circle section and is the home of Reynolds Hitt. Undersecretary of the Treasury, Ogden L. Mills, occupied the house last year.

Premier Laval's official party will include seven persons. It has not been definitely established who the other members of the party will include, although the presence of M. Lacour Gayet, former financial counselor of the French Embassy, and Vice Governor Charles Farnier, of the Bank of France, is expected.

Theater Operators To Aid Unemployed

Payette Named Chairman of Group to Plan District Program.

Local representatives of national and private theater operators met yesterday to formulate unemployment relief plans for Washington, Maryland and Virginia, and chose John J. Payette, zone manager for Warner Bros., as chairman of the District committee. A. Julian Brylawski was named vice chairman.

The committee appointed as temporary subcommittee chairmen the following: L. C. Garman, Baltimore; William Coulter, Richmond; William Wilder, Norfolk; Bernard Bepkin, Roanoke, and Thomas Burke, Cumberland. They will organize permanent relief groups in their respective cities.

The District subcommittee will meet next Tuesday noon at the Hamilton Hotel, with board members and the temporary subcommittee chairman, to organize and arrange definite plans for winter activities and devise ways and means to cooperate with local unemployment relief agencies.

BONDS AND STOCKS GAIN IN BUYING RUSH

Prominent Issues Show Good Advances; Cotton and Wheat Improve.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Swift progress in the national program to mobilize credit for a revitalization of business was accompanied by eager buying of securities in Wall street today.

The uprush in stocks was almost as swift as that of Tuesday, prominent issues closing with average advances of $5 or more. Bonds also attracted enthusiastic buying, particularly the railroad issues.

The cheer quickly spread to the commodity markets, and wheat and corn futures were quoted 2 cents higher in the Chicago pit. Despite a large increase in the Government's monthly crop estimate, cotton finished the day with net gains of 40 to 50 cents a bale.

Among the day's constructive developments were:

1—Indications that the $500,000,000 bank credit corporation would be completed late tomorrow.

Rediscount Rate Increased.

2—An increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate from 1½ to 2½ per cent, in an effort to make bank lending more profitable, and give banks a new stimulus to aid trade.

3—A drop of $171,000,000 in brokers loans for the stock trading week ended Tuesday, reducing the total to $1,001,000,000, the lowest in years, and indicating that an enormous volume of necessitous selling which had been hanging over the market had been absorbed.

4—An announcement by the chairman of the New York State joint legislative committee on banking that he would seek legislation to liberalize the regulations regarding bonds which may be held by trustees and savings banks, which may lift a huge burden from the market for railway bonds.

5—The sailing for New York of two officers of the Bank of France to confer with Federal Reserve officials, while British and French government officials discussed economic problems, and J. P. Morgan, who was in Paris, was believed to be interesting himself in the international financial situation.

Automobile Industry Hopeful.

6—Announcement by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce that leaders in the industry expected the national mobilization program launched by the Federal administration to result in improved business in 1932, and lead the way to restoration of prosperity.

Some of these developments, notably the rediscount raise, loan drop and the plan of liberalizing New York legal bond requirements, were not announced until after the close of the security markets, but confident buying was reported by commission houses from many sections of the country, as well as abroad.

The turnover in stocks was only 2,860,000 shares, as against 4,300,000 on Tuesday, but as measured by price indices gains averaged about three-quarters of the Tuesday advance, which set a record for recent stock exchange history.

GLASS ASSAILS PLAN OF BOND ABSORPTION

Virginia Senator to Oppose Pool Taking Securities Not Discountable.

(Associated Press.)

In connection with the President's plans for a new credit corporation some confusion arose yesterday as to how far the administration expects to go in broadening the basis upon which securities are discounted by the Federal Reserve system.

It was said the administration hopes to make it possible for the reserve banks to take up a large portion of the bonds to be absorbed by the credit pool, now ineligible for discount.

This proposal aroused the opposition of Senator Glass (Democrat) Virginia, who as ranking minority member of the Senate banking committee and a coauthor of the Federal Reserve law may be expected to play an important part in revamping that statute.

It was reported that President Hoover is contemplating some plan for improving the status of railroad bonds held by many savings banks. White House officials would not comment.

Supreme Folly, Says Glass.

Senator Glass said yesterday:

"I have not the remoteest idea that Congress would be guilty of the supreme folly of permitting the Federal Reserve system to take over the unliquid or frozen assets proposed to be acquired by this $500,000,000 corporation. What is the use of organizing this so-called national institution if it is to be permitted immediately to unload its burdens on the Federal Reserve system.

"So far as revising the Federal reserve act so as to provide against a recurrence of a crisis similar to that which is alleged to exist, that may be done in some degree but such a provision should not concern itself unduly with attempting to relieve interests which precipitated such emergencies.

"It is nonsense to suggest that the fund will readily amount to as much as $500,000,000 since the entire excess profits of the Federal Reserve system paid into the Federal Treasury as a franchise tax for the seventeen years of its existence have aggregated only $147,000,000.

"The report of the Federal Reserve Board in September discloses that member banks have in their portfolios $3,198,000,000 of eligible paper and total borrowings of these member banks amounted to only $147,000,000.

"This shows a tremendous working margin and it shows that the banks are not now taking advantage of the facilities afforded them to help themselves.

"Mr. Aldrich, former Rhode Island senator, in the most powerful days of his public career, sought in vain to include railroad and industrial securities as eligible paper for rediscount, but he never could induce Congress to listen to any such dangerous proposition."

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, after a protracted conference with the President, said no mention was made between them of the present status of railroad bonds.

Bacharach Sees Wide Support.

After the conference, it was said the President had desired to find out from Mr. Willard if he had any information connected with the current business situation, particularly in those sections touched by the Baltimore & Ohio.

Representative Bacharach, of Atlantic City, dean of the New Jersey delegation in Congress, foresaw Nation-wide support yesterday for the President's plan of economic reconstruction.

Mr. Bacharach said he looked for a more than favorable reaction from industrial and financial leaders in the State. The New Jersey banks, he said, would seek and benefit by their share in the $500,000,000 fund proposed to relieve financial distress.

The proposed fund, Mr. Bacharach said, might not prove sufficient to meet the emergency. He would be ready, he added, to support a move to double the proposed figure. Mr. Bacharach was a member of the bipartisan congressional group that discussed the reconstruction plan at the White House Tuesday.

BANKERS COMPLETE POOL FOR $500,000,000 CREDIT

posed to lend their assistance to the plan by buying debentures.

The debentures will be payable one year from their date, with the right of renewal by the corporation not exceeding in the aggregate three additional years, but subject to earlier redemption.

The debentures will pay interest, if earned, up to but not exceeding 6 per cent annually, payable only out of the surplus and net income. They will be issued in registered and nontransferable form.

The knowledge that the organization of the National Credit Corporation was under way has been a fillip to the security markets this week, although they have turned reactionary at times. For some weeks past it had been known that President Hoover had been consulting leading financiers of the country, and the organization of the corporation, which has been accomplished in record time, was a leading result of those conferences.

The corporations will have a nominal capital of twelve shares of $100 par value each which will be held by an equal number of directors representing the twelve Federal Reserve districts. The shares will be deposited with the governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The nominal capitalization was made necessary by a provision of the national banking act which prohibits banks organized under it from holding stock. Consequently in order to permit the national banks to contribute their shares of the required money, the debentures, which have the same legal status as bonds, notes and other evidences of debt, will be issued and sold.

"The project contemplates the establishment of a corporation through the operation of which, banks throughout the country, when necessary, may procure accommodation upon the basis of sound assets which are not legally eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Banks," Mr. Buckner's statement explained. "This does not mean, however, that the banks will have the privilege of applying to the corporation for cash where there is no immediate need."

The administrative details of the plan in each district will be under the supervision and control of the director of the National Credit Corperation from that district.

More Than Hoover Plan Is Needed, Says France

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, announced candidate for the Republican nomination for President, in a statement tonight asserted President Hoover's plan for loosening credit will prove inadequate unless other powerful curative measures are applied.

"Congress should be called immediately in special session," France said. "I have just returned from a campaign trip through the West, where I found people distressed and dissatisfied with the Government for its failure to provide a comprehensive plan of economic relief."

Tascherau Condemns St. Lawrence Program

Quebec, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Premier L. E. Tascherau of Quebec today opposed the Dominion's intention to open immediate negotiations with Washington for development of the St. Lawrence seaway.

"I think the project is premature in view of the existing world-wide situation and disruption of money markets," he said. He declared the project would cost a billion dollars.

FIRE DEATHS HELD AS TRIPLE MURDER

Grand Jury Urges Detective Agency Begin Inquiry; Fails to Indict.

Triple murder was the finding of the Prince William County grand jury, whose report on the three deaths in the family of Goodwin Miller, near Kopp, Va., on September 25, was made public yesterday at a meeting of the county board of supervisors at Manassas.

The bodies of Miller, his 21-year-old wife, Virginia, and their 6-month-old son, Melvin, were found in the ruins of their home by neighbors the day after the house was burned to the ground.

In a sealed report to Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, a report unprecedented in the county because the jury requested it be withheld from the public, the grand jury declared that the Millers came to their deaths "at the hands of parties unknown," and their bodies were cremated in the burning of their home "to cover evidence of crime."

Although several suspects had been questioned in the case, none has been definitely charged with the crime, and the jury failed to indict any one. The jury recommended that a detective agency be employed by the county to investigate the crime.

Judge McCarthy has no funds in his court budget for the conduct of such an investigation. Consequently, at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, Judge McCarthy laid the grand jury report before the body.

The board has no funds for such an investigation, but authorized a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the deaths.

Commonwealth's Attorney Thomas H. Lion was directed to send a letter to Gov. Pollard requesting him to provide funds from his contingent fund to employ a private investigative agency. This request and the announcement of the reward was in the form of a resolution passed by the board, of which Lindsay Dawson is chairman.

The grand jury began its inquiry into the case Monday and returned its sealed report Tuesday. During its inquiry, the jury heard fifteen witnesses, most of whom were neighbors of the Millers. The supposition of Sheriff John P. Kelrin and Justice of the Peace Willard E. Lloyd is that Miller and his family were slain in a moonshiners feud.

Commonwealth Attorney Lion and other officials believe the Millers were suffocated by smoke and their deaths were accidental. Five men were questioned in the case, two of whom are charged with possession of liquor. All were neighbors of the Millers.

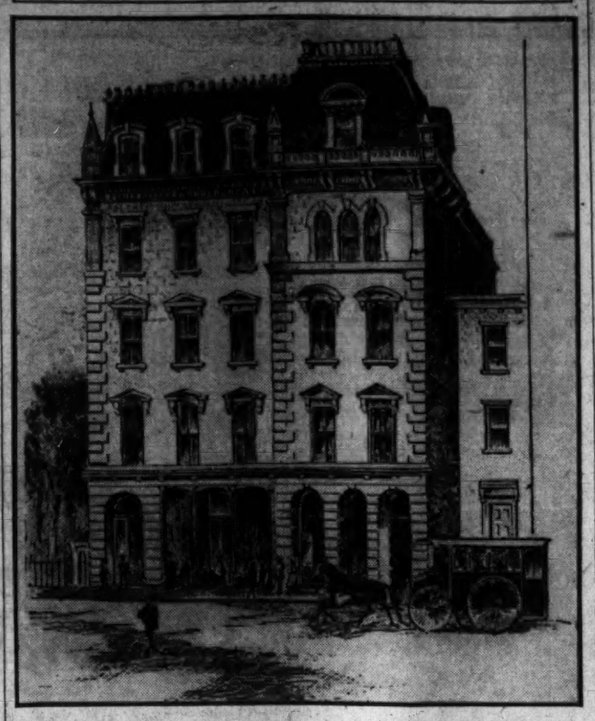
When Washington Was Younger—No. 69



THE Department of Justice, in its early beginnings, occupied four floors of this building, which was located at the present site of the Riggs Bank Building at the intersection of Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. The site has always been a popular one for banks. In addition to the Department of Justice, the Freedmen's Bank was located on the first floor of this structure, and the building was known as the Freedmen's Bank Building. The Court of Claims also met on the first floor.

The Department of Justice moved to this location some time in the 80's and remained until 1899. The year previously the building was condemned as unsafe and by 1899 the Department of Justice was moved up on K street just opposite its present location. That site was used as headquarters until 1917 when the department went into its present quarters.

The space occupied in the building shown here housed between 155 and 200 employes. There were only 10 or 12 offices devoted to the activities of the Department of Justice and at that time the department was allotted only one telephone for its entire business.

Hoover in Loan Speech Recalls 4-Year-Old Plea

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover reached back four years yesterday to reiterate his theory of foreign loans, the following of which, he said, would have smoothed many a bump from the world's economic path. Addressing the fourth Pan-American commercial conference, the President recalled his plea that foreign loans be made only for "reproductive purposes," delivered before the same conference in 1927. Then he was Secretary of Commerce.

"I repeat this today," the President said, "because had it been followed during these past five years our problems throughout the world would be far different, our difficulties infinitely less."

Expanding upon this idea, Mr. Hoover said he believed this constituted "a lesson from this depression." He repeated part of his four-year-old address which said that "if nations would do away with the lending of money for the balancing of budgets for purposes of military equipment or war purposes, or even that type of public works which does not bring some direct or indirect productive return—a great number of blessings would follow to the entire world."

Theory of Government.

Turning to present day affairs, Mr. Hoover told the Pan-American delegates the American theory of government required that commercial enterprise, except as a rare emergency action, be essentially a private undertaking

"The sole function of government," he said, "is to bring about a condition of affairs favorable to the beneficial development of private development." The President's address follows:

"I am most happy to extend to you the warmest possible welcome on behalf of the Government and people of the United States. We are grateful to you for coming to Washington at this time to discuss the commercial problems of common interest to the nations of America. You are meeting during a period of widespread economic depression, but this fact emphasizes rather than diminishes the necessity for the nations of this continent to take counsel with one another.

"We recognize that the prosperity of each and every nation contributes to the prosperity of all. It is important that at conferences such as this the experience of each and every nation should be placed at the disposal of all in order that we may profit by our successes as well as learn the lessons of our failures.

One Lesson of Depression.

"There is one lesson from this depression to which I wish to refer, and I can present it no more forcibly than by repeating a statement which I made to this conference just four years ago, when we were in the heyday of foreign loans. I stated, in respect to such loans, that they are helpful in world development, provided always one essential principle dominates the character of these transactions. That is, that no nation as a government should borrow or no government lend and nations should discourage their citizens from borrowing or lending unless this money is to be devoted to productive enterprise.

"Out of the wealth and the higher standards of living created from enterprise itself must come the ability to repay the capital to the borrowing country. Any other course of action creates obligations impossible of repayment except by a direct subtraction from the standards of living of the borrowing country and the impoverishment of its people.

"In fact, if this principle could be adopted between nations of the world—that is, if nations would do away with the lending of money for the balancing of budgets for purposes of military equipment or war purposes, or even that type of public works which does not bring some direct or indirect production return—a great number of blessings would follow to the entire world.

Ability to Repay.

"There could be no question as to the ability to repay; with this increasing security capital would become steadily cheaper, the dangers to national and individual independence in attempts of the lender to collect his defaulted debts would be avoided; there would be definite increase in the standard of living and the comfort and prosperity of the borrower.

"There could be no greater step taken in the prevention of war itself. This is perhaps a little further toward the millenium than our practical world has reached, and I do not propose that these are matters that can be regulated by law or treaty. They are matters that can be regulated solely by the commercial and financial sentiment of each of our countries, and if this body may be able to develop the firm conviction, develop the understanding that the financial transactions between nations must be built upon the primary foundation that money transferred is for reproductive purposes, it will have contributed to the future of the Western Hemisphere in a degree seldom open to a conference of this character.

"I repeat this today because had it been followed during these past five years our problems throughout the world would be far different, our difficulties infinitely less.

Representatives of Business.

"I have learned with particular interest and gratification that by far the greater number of those in attendance at this conference are not governmental delegates, but representatives of the commercial and financial establishments of the several American republics. Particularly do we in the United States hold to the theory that commercial enterprise, except as rare emergency action, is essentially a private undertaking, and that the sole function of government is to bring about a condition of affairs favorable to the beneficial development of private enterprise. It is the failure to comprehend this conception of the relation between the function of government and the function of private enterprise that sometimes leads the thoughtless to assume the existence of an international indifference which does not in fact exist.

"The larger significance of your meeting is attested by the fact that at stated intervals the accredited representatives of the governments and of the commercial organizations of this continent come together with a view to interchange on experience and fostering that mutual confidence without which the development of international commerce is impossible. Your work possesses a significance far beyond the concrete problems with which you will have to deal.

"Permit me in closing to combine with my welcome the confident expectation that your deliberations will redound to the benefit of all the nations of this continent."

LABOR GROUP HEARS HOOVER DAM ATTACK

Work Conditions and Wage Scale Held Deplorable at Convention.

Vancouver, British Columbia, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Describing the Hoover Dam project as a "$700,000,000 outrage project," representatives of many trades and crafts appeared before the resolutions committee of the American Federation of Labor here today and demanded a congressional investigation.

A public hearing of the resolutions committee was called to hear proponents of three resolutions protesting working conditions at the dam project and demanding withholding of further appropriations by Congress for the work.

The committee, after hearing reports of allegedly "inhuman" sanitary conditions at the project, decided to await a copy of the contract of Six Companies, Inc., builders, before taking any action on the resolutions.

Say Wage Scale Lowered.

Delegates testifying before the committee charged Six Companies with lowering the wage scale on the project, refusing to give former service men and United States citizens preference in employment and fostering "fearful" conditions among the workers.

J. W. Buzzell, Los Angeles, complained that the Secretary of the Interior let the Boulder Dam project eight days before the Davis bill to regulate wages on Government projects went into effect.

"It should be called the Hoover Dam," he said, "so that responsibility for it will rest squarely upon the administration."

Delegates argued that Congress should be asked to withhold funds at the time of the next appropriation, unless the Six Companies came to terms.

Contract Is Sent For.

"Can the company claim damages if no funds are provided?" Matthew Woll, Washington, D. C., chairman of the committee, inquired. "We should have a copy of the contract."

Buzzell promised to telegraph for one immediately.

J. T. Thorpe, San Francisco, said the Six Companies paid low wages, that the men worked in "fearful heat, paying $1 to $1.50 for meals and 15 cents for insurance," and that the "commissary pays six companies for the concession."

"The men carry their own water. They are driven beyond endurance," said Thorpe. "Several have been killed and injured.

"We fear that if this continues, it will affect the giant Los Angeles Aqueduct and eventually break down the wage scale all along the Pacific Coast."

Contract Held Violated.

Joe Reed, Portland, Oreg., said the company was violating the contract by refusing to give preference to war veterans and United States citizens. He described the dam as a $700,000,000 "outrage project."

During the morning session of the convention, British fraternal delegates voiced a vigorous defense of unemployment insurance and the dole. President William Green commented that conditions in America and Great Britain were different and methods practicable in one country might not apply in another.

A second invitation for the 1932 A. F. L. convention was received from Indianapolis, Ind. Previously Atlantic City, N. J., telegraphed an invitation for the next year's meeting.

Story of Torture Not Told on Stand

Robber Fails to Testify at His Trial; Convicted by Jury.

An opportunity to gauge the reactions of a criminal jury in a case where the defendant alleged that he had been manhandled by police following his arrest was lost yesterday in Criminal Court No. 1, presided over by Justice James F. Proctor, when Frederick C. Sampson, on trial for housebreaking and larceny, failed to take the witness stand.

Sampson appeared before the "illegal" grand jury and testified about the rough handling he received at the hands of police, but his unwillingness to take the stand in his own trial yesterday defeated the chance to see how the new juries, sworn in only two days ago, would treat such cases.

The jury, incidentally, found Sampson guilty of housebreaking and petit larceny. He was indicted for having broken into the Atlas Sporting Goods Shop, 927 D street northwest, on the night of February 28, 1931. A window was smashed and six pistols, valued at in excess of $200 were stolen.

Commission on Relief Appointed by Church

Cooperating with President Hoover's unemployment commission, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, announced last night the appointment of an unemployment relief commission comprised of sixteen members and headed by Miss Katherine Lenroot, assistant chief of the Women and Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

The Rev. Mr. Clinchy suggested the appointment of such a commission to his congregation two weeks ago, and the project was unanimously approved by the governing body of the church a few days later. The object of the commission is to promote the cooperation of the Mount Pleasant Church with all relief organizations, both local and national.

ment bonds. This proposal was referred to the appropriate committee.

The Argentine proposal is the second important move against the present American tariff that has been made since the opening of the conference. The Cuban delegation on the second day of the meeting, in a declaration of principles, proposed that the conference go on record in favor of a tariff moratorium that would prevent all future increases in American and inter-American tariff schedules for a period of from one to two years.

40,000 Seek Positions As Federal Typists

(United Press.)

The Civil Service Commission yesterday struggled through a flood of nearly 40,000 applications for positions as stenographers and typists in the Government service. The commission estimated that only about 2,500 such positions would be open during the coming year.

Yesterday was the last day for filing applications to take examinations for appointment. Last year less than 9,000 sought to take similar tests.

From past experience, the commission expects two-thirds of the stenographer and half the typist applicants will fail. The tests will be held later this fall at 600 places throughout the country. As openings occur, appointments will be made in accordance with a State quota system.

SUPERHEART KEEPS EDISON FROM DEATH

Family Watches Near Bed as Inventor Sinks Into Coma.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Only a rugged, resistant heart kept Thomas Alva Edison alive today.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, his physician, said the 84-year-old inventor was slowly sinking into a coma. However, he was not beyond a stage which the physician has characterized as an almost continuous light sleep.

Consultation Called.

"In ordinary individuals," Dr. Howe said, "it would be possible for me to predict how much time would elapse before the comatose condition asserted itself. But we are dealing with an unusual individual—a man with a superheart. Outwardly it seems his condition is no weaker than it has been, but we know, of course, that actually he is weaker."

In place of the usual 4 p. m. bulletin, Charles Edison, a son, announced that Dr. William Williams, of New York, had been asked to confer with Dr. Howe regarding his father's condition.

"We thought it might be a good idea to have the conference," he said, "and Dr. Howe agreed."

Odds Unfavorable.

Weakened by an attack of pneumonia two years ago and the complications which arose from uremic poisoning last August, Mr. Edison has the odds against him, Dr. Howe said.

Henry Ford is expected to visit his old friend tomorrow.

Harvey Firestone, the third member of the Edison-Ford-Firestone triumvirate of a long friendship, already has paid a visit, perhaps his last, to the inventor.

The Edison family has been in regular telephone communication with President Hoover, who has requested that he be kept informed of Mr. Edison's condition.

Dr. Howe's daily bulletins are transmitted to Cardinal Hayes regularly in answer to the Pope's recent request.

SNELL ASSERTS G. O. P. WILL ORGANIZE HOUSE

of floor leader. Several members, including Crisp, of Georgia; McDuffie, of Alabama; Byrns, of Tennessee; Rainey, of Illinois; Rankin, of Mississippi, and O'Connor, of New York, have been suggested for the office.

Besides naming candidates for House offices and approving committee slates, the caucus will formulate a legislative program. Representative Byrns, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, today said a progressive program on many important issues probably would be adopted.

Among the problems before Congress, Byrns said, were those dealing with the Hoover debt moratorium plan, tax revision, unemployment, tariff, transportation, including both railroads, buses and aviation; prohibition, the Farm Board, revision of banking laws, agriculture, Muscle Shoals and disarmament.

In a conference with newspapermen upon his return yesterday from funeral services for Senator Morrow in New Jersey, Snell said he expected the House to have 218 Republicans, 216 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Labor when it meets. The four contested seats still would be in dispute, he said, but those holding certificates of election would be entitled to vote on organization and election of a Speaker.

Snell said that rules of procedure would be liberalized so the closely divided House could function better. The progressive wing of the Republican party has demanded that the rules be modified so legislation before committees may be brought to the House floor for action. In this way, they hope to get a vote on the prohibition question at the coming session.

Snell scoffed at the suggestion of several senators that the House postpone election of a Speaker for a month so that the Hoover moratorium might be ratified before the semiannual payments are due from foreign countries December 15.

"We must organize in order to do business," Snell said. "We might as well meet the issue on the first day. To put it off would only prolong the tension and increase confusion."

The Republicans last spring nominated the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth for reelection, but since his death they must meet again before Congress convenes. The date for their caucus has not been announced.

Bernard H. Fowle Will Is Filed for Probate

Personal property worth $90,000 and real estate with an assessed value of $8,000 were left by Bernard H. Fowle, who died September 29, according to the petition of his widow, Mrs. Milly D. Fowle, for probate of the will.

The widow is given a life interest in the estate, which at her death goes to a son, Philip F. Fowle, Winchester, Va., and two grandchildren, Bernard H. Fowle 3d and Katherine Mason Fowle, of Victoria, Va., the children of a deceased son. Attorney Minor, Gatley & Drury represent Mrs. Fowle, who is named as executrix also.

TEXTILE PAY STRIKE ARBITRATION BEGINS

Two Communist Leaders in Lawrence, Mass., Seized in Demonstration.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The first move to end the strike of 22,000 textile workers at Lawrence by arbitration was announced tonight by labor representatives.

Robert Watt, president of the Central Labor Union and secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, said he had received word from the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration that representatives of the American Woolen Mills, the Arlington Mills and the Pacific Mills placed their case before the board today.

He said the board had requested that the workers, through a committee of three from each mill, meet with the board and present their case so that responsibility for the strike might be established and steps taken to end it through arbitration.

Watt said he would confer with employes tomorrow to name the committee from each mill.

Almost All Mills Affected.

The strike of the workers, fighting a 10 per cent wage reduction, tonight had affected virtually every mill in Greater Lawrence with the exception of smaller plants in Methuen and Andover.

Two arrests of Communist leaders and a display of police force against a jeering crowd also marked the day.

More than 22,000 workers have left their tasks. The great mills of the American Woolen Co., which a few days ago had employed 12,000 men and women, stood idle today, the bulk of the employes in its last plant to operate having gone over to the strikers. In addition, the Pacific Mills, the Arlington Mills and the Monomac Mills were closed, with their total number of between 10,000 and 11,000 workers idle in protest against the wage cut.

Another phase of the strike was the second arrest within two days of Miss Edith Berkman, organizer and leader of the National Textile Workers Union, a Communist organization, and the arrest of Harry Cantor, of Boston, International Labor defense counsel.

In court, Miss Berkman pleaded not guilty to charges of speaking without a permit and disturbing the peace. Cantor and Samuel Bramhall, a 60-year-old agitator, long active in Lawrence labor troubles, pleaded not guilty to charges of disturbing the peace.

The cases of all three were continued until October 15, with Miss Berkman's bail set at $500 and bail for the other two placed at $200. Seven other strikers arrested were fined $10.

Miss Berkman later went to Boston to appear in Federal court in connection with deportation proceedings against her. There she will remain in the custody of the Federal authorities, at least until tomorrow morning. At that time the United States Circui Court of Appeals will hear the argument of her counsel that she should be readmitted to bail until the same court decides whether she shall be sent back to Poland, the country of which the Government claims she is a native.

Nonunion Workers Replace Strikers

Dock Hands at Boston Prepare for Long Siege to Win Demands.

Boston, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Nonunion workers today took the places of union dock hands along the Boston piers as 3,000 longshoremen set their picket lines for a protracted strike.

Although police guards were stationed at strategic points along the water front, there were no disturbances. Strikers stationed pickets at various piers where nonunion workers were employed and groups of strikers gathered in the vicinity of some of the docks where ships were being loaded or unloaded.

The principal differences between the longshoremen and the shipping companies involves the weight of sling loads and the minimum number of men in a gang, the men arguing for a limited weight of slingload and a minimum gang of 21, while the companies opposed any load limit and a minimum of more than 18.

Body Found in Potomac Identified as U. S. Sailor

A comparison of fingerprints yesterday at the naval identification office identified the body of the man found floating in the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River Wednesday as that of John Wolfey, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Cormorant, in service at the Washington Navy Yard, but which is now cruising on the Chesapeake Bay.

Lieut. Comdr. William P. Granat, under orders of Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, commandant of the navy yard, will investigate the death at a formal court of inquest to be held some time within the next three days, when the Cormorant is expected to arrive in port with friends of Wolfey aboard, who may be able to shed some light on the case.

Quin Reported Better After Serious Illness

(Associated Press.)

The condition of Representative Percy Quin, of Mississippi, who has been seriously ill, yesterday was reported as much improved. He has had a heart ailment.

Quin is ranking Democratic member of the House military committee. He figured prominently in the successful fight to get the bill authorizing Government operation of Muscle Shoals through Congress, only to have it vetoed by President Hoover.

BANKING AID SOUGHT FOR LATIN AMERICA

Rediscount Cooperation of Federal Reserve Desired; No Action Here.

Lima, Peru, Oct. 8 (A.P.). — The Bolivian legation announced tonight that at the forthcoming meetings of the central banks of Peru, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador and Bolivia, an attempt would be made "to reach an agreement with the Washington Federal Reserve Board to establish a rediscount system."

Other purposes of the meeting, the announcement said, were to "create most intimate cooperation between South American central banks and also to take up other most important and urgent questions in order to meet the present financial crisis."

The statement was issued after the Central Bank of Peru had announced the meetings would be held at Lima. The date has not yet been fixed.

According to the Bolivian legation announcement, the Bolivian Central Bank planned the meeting through the nation's finance and foreign ministries and the legations at Lima, Santiago, Quito and Bogota were instructed to submit the proposal to the various governments. All replies were favorable.

(Associated Press).

Officials here said last night that the Federal Reserve Board has made no plans to participate in the Latin-American effort to establish a rediscount system.

Such a proposal, they said, would have to be negotiated by private bankers. It was understood here the New York Federal Reserve Bank was interested.

Brazil Puts Moratorium On Foreign Private Debts

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—President Getulio Vargas tonight signed a decree declaring a 60-day moratorium on all foreign commercial and private payments in Brazil.

The decree specified, however, that sums of money to cover these payments must be deposited in national currency in the Banco do Brazil and other banks. Foreign exchange contracts are excluded by the decree.

The Newspaper a Noite, anticipating the decree today, said the reason for it was a lack of sufficient bills on the Brazilian market during the last few weeks to permit the Banco do Brazil to furnish exchange needed by importers here, either in pounds sterling, dollars or francs.

Cuban Political Leaders Meet to Attempt Peace

Havana, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Leaders of Cuban political parties who have been conferring in an attempt to reconcile differences met again today at the home of the veteran, Dr. Rafael Montoro, former Minister at London. It seemed assured that the conferees were seeking an agreement to avoid other revolutionary attempts.

Rumors of another revolution have been heard frequently, but in opposition quarters in Havana it was said there would be no revolutionary activity before the sugar season opens. Oppositionists assert, however, that two expeditions in South America and one in Mexico are ready to start at any time.

ARMY ORDNANCE SHOWS ITS NEW WEAPONS

Post Staff Photos.

The Aberdeen Proving Ground was the scene of the thirteenth annual Army Ordnance Show yesterday where the latest types of combat weapons and mechanized forces were demonstrated. Upper: This 16-inch gun, the largest seacoast gun in use in this country, hurls a 2,100-pound projectile 30 miles. Center: A 10-ton Christy tank, minus its track wheels, which were dismounted in 15 minutes, speeds along at 60 miles per hour. It has a speed of 30 miles an hour with tracks. Lower: An 8-inch howitzer mounted on a pneumatic wheeled carriage. This gun has been towed at a speed of 55 miles an hour.

MIMIC WAR MARKS ORDNANCE MEETING

Every Type of Post-War Gun Development Displayed at Aberdeen Show.

Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Mimic warfare, but with real shells, bullets and bombs intermixed with blank charges, raged over all "fronts" of the Army's vast testing ground for ordnance material today in honor of the thirteenth annual gathering of the Army Ordnance Association.

Every type of post-war gun development, from automatic shoulder rifles to 16-inch coast defense guns, with a 30-mile range, played its part in the show.

A crowd of several thousand spectators in addition to the reservist ordnance men and high ranking Army and Navy personnel from Washington, spent the day tramping from front to front to witness the gun demonstrations, hiking miles and even defying a sharp rain burst in the late afternoon to get it all in. Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York were well represented.

No Striking New Weapons.

The Army gun experts had no striking new weapons to show their civilian comrades this year, improvements over the last annual demonstration being confined to refinements for the most part, and to more efficient handling of the antiaircraft batteries, the only guns trained on actual targets.

A battery of four 3-inch "archies," controlled by the electrical devices developed since the war, blasted the clouds about a sleeve target towed by a plane at an elevation of 10,000 feet. One shell burst so close to the target that the back end was torn out and ragged streamers of fabric marked its remaining flight.

A moment later a group of machine guns further riddled the sleeve at a lower altitude, the arching stream of the blazing tracer bullets sketching a fiery display against low-hanging thunder clouds.

The only other test of marksmanship included was the newest anti-aircraft device, counter-bombing by a swift attack plane against a towed sleeve target representing a bombardment plane group bound on a mission of destruction.

Timed Bomb Loosed.

Swooping from the higher clouds where it lurked beyond reach of the bombers' defensive machine gun fire, the attack plane loosed a bomb timed to explode in the midst of the bombardment formation flying 1,000 feet below, 2,000 up from the ground. The flare of the explosion came almost on the tail of the target.

Included in the demonstration was a simulated infantry advance with the latest word in armored cars, tanks and motorized artillery blasting a road for the doughboys. It was replete with smoke screens laid both by guns and planes.

Among those who attended were Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Col. Frederick H. Payne, Acting Secretary of War; F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Maj. Gen. Samuel Hoff, chief of ordnance, and Mathew W. Alexander, president of the national industrial conference board.

GIRL SURRENDERS AS DIAMOND'S AID

Bailed After Being Sought in Attack on Truckman in Cider Row.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Marion Roberts, hunted for months as Jack (Legs) Diamond's companion the night the State says Diamond and his henchmen tortured a Catskill truckman, walked into the Watervliet police station today and surrendered. She was freed in $2,500 bail here tonight.

The former Follies girl merely told the Watervliet police who she was and that she was under indictment in Greene County and wished to surrender.

Miss Roberts was indicted with Diamond and John "Garry" Scacchio, Diamond's "enforcer," in connection with an attack upon Grover Parks, a truckman, who said he was kidnaped and tortured to make him reveal where he was taking a load of cider. Diamond, still under indictment on other charges, and since sentenced on Federal charges, was acquitted, but Scacchio was given fifteen years at Dannemora Prison.

Attorney General John J. Bennett did not say what his plans were.

Miss Roberts did not say where she had been throughout the State's investigation of the case.

It was a year ago, lacking only four days, that police questioned her about the shooting of Diamond by several men in a room in a New York hotel. With five bullet wounds in his chest, abdomen and scalp, he was critically ill for some time.

Detectives said Miss Roberts had occupied a room adjoining Diamond's. They found her in the apartment of Miss Agnes O'Laughlin, an actress. At that time Miss Roberts told police her real name was Marion Stasmick and that her home was in Boston.

GANDHI FALLS SHORT IN INDIA DEADLOCK

Mahatma Admits Failure to Unite Hindus, Moslems; Told to Try Again.

London, Oct. 8 (U. P.).—The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi confessed to the India round table minorities committee today that he had failed in efforts to solve the deadlock over Hindu-Moslem claims in the proposed new government, but said his failure "does not mean my utter defeat, because there is no such word in my dictionary."

Gandhi urged that the settlement be postponed until after the constitution had been framed, but his attitude aroused the hostility of Moslem delegates, of the "untouchables" and of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald.

Told to Try Again.

The prime minister adjourned the committee until after the British general election with the advice that Gandhi "try, try again."

Settlement of the conflicting claims of Hindus and Moslems to representation in the new government, which is necessary to granting of self-government, failed because of the unrepresentative composition of the round table conference and the absence of definite British policy because of uncertainty pending the election, Gandhi said.

"Failure is a deep sorrow and a deeper humiliation," Gandhi said. "But I propose to use failure as a stepping stone to success. This was hardly the time to summon the minorities committee. If we knew definitely we were getting what we want, we should hesitate 50 times before throwing away the chance in a simple wrangle.

Stand on Constitution.

"The solution should be a crown and not the foundation of the new constitution. There is not the shadow of a doubt that the icebergs of communal differences will melt under the warmth of the sun of real freedom."

Gandhi asked that other work be continued while the Hindu-Moslem problem is postponed. Moslems and other minorities opposed sine die adjournment and insisted the agreement must be reached before the constitution is framed.

MacDonald agreed with them, saying failure was due only "to your own shortcoming. Be honest and face the facts. Our friend, the Mahatma Gandhi, probably would immediately take some form of passive resistance if a solution was forced upon you by the government. The solution must flow from your own hearts."

Smith was found on the floor by his roommate, Louis J. Carron, with gas flowing from jets on the range. The fire rescue squad and Casualty Hospital ambulance were summoned and the man was removed to the hospital.

Smith had written several notes, one of which said he desired to end his life because of financial troubles. Another note addressed to police asked that his body be turned over to Georgetown University for experimentation purposes.

Special to The Washington Post.

Carlisle, Pa., Oct. 8.—The Rev. Dr. C. E. Fulta, Washington, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren Church in Christ, which is conducting its 142d annual meeting here, will retire from the active ministry at the close of the present sessions, it was learned late today. Dr. Fulta gave declining health as his reason.

His refusal to be put up for reelection to the office is said to have brought about the announcement. Dr. Fulta has served as superintendent for almost a decade. Barnaby, Hagerstown; Mrs. Mabel E. Moore, Baltimore; Paul Emenheiser, Yorkhaven; Fred Mund, Baltimore, and W. Ray Noss, Mechanicsburg.

Week-End Rally to Be at Camp Wilson; Is First in Series.

Robert W. Williams, of the game preservation division, Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, will be the principal speaker at a week-end rally of the fourth division, Boy Scouts of America, at Camp Wilson on the Burnt Mills road tomorrow night, according to an announcement by Edward M. Perking, deputy scout commissioner, in charge of the fourth division.

Mr. Williams was formerly solicitor for the Department of Agriculture and later became game conservation officer for the southeastern division of the United States, which includes Florida, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. He will discuss game conservation.

Tomorrow night's meeting is the first of a series which will use the new facilities at Camp Wilson, including seven new bunk houses of the most modern Scout type. These were erected with a small sum of money remaining from funds gathered in an attempted national drive for this camp a number of years ago. Most of the money so collected was returned when the project was abandoned, but there was about $1,400 which could not be returned and this fund built the bunk houses this summer.

Driver Held for Faulty Brakes as Boy Is Hurt

A 9-year-old colored boy, Ernest Clark, of 8 Burroughs road northwest, last night was in a critical condition at Emergency Hospital after being struck by an automobile police say was driven by Cornell T. Erbacher, 45, of 3600 Tenth street northwest.

Second Precinct police last night were holding Erbacher in $50 collateral because his brakes were said to be defective. The Clark boy, with two other colored children, ran out from behind a street car going north on North Capitol street, south of Rhode Island avenue. He was said to have run into the left fender of Erbacher's car, going south, a wheel of the car passing over his abdomen.

MATE OF GANGSTER IS "TAKEN FOR RIDE"

Police Hunt for McErlane, 'Chicago's Toughest,' After Woman's Slaying.

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Marion Miller, common law wife of Frank McErlane, a gangster, called "Chicago's toughest," was slain durihg an automobile ride in gangland fashion today, and McErlane again was a hunted man.

Four bullets ended her life. Others, fired at crazy angles, punctured cushions, windows and walls of the automobile in which her body lay. With her, two dogs, a fox terrier and a police dog, lay dead of bullet wounds. Police said they saw in the shooting signs of the mad gunman Frank McErlane has become.

Twenty months ago the woman shot him in the leg. But after they went on living together. The sequel to that shooting, in February, 1930, was an attack by a squad of armed hoodlums who marched into his room at the German Deaconess Hospital and sent three more bullets into his body and prolonged his convalescence. McErlane retaliated with a volley from a pistol he kept hidden under the pillow of his cot.

Last night the gangster and his woman companion were seen by neighbors to enter the car that was her vehicle to death. They carried two suitcases and were bound, they had told neighborhood storekeepers, on a visit to the country. Some time in the night the pistol attack was made—either by gangsters, once more seeking McErlane's life, police theorized, or by McErlane himself in a vicious quarrel with the woman; then the car was driven to the spot where it was found on the South Side, the old territory of the beer trade partners, McErlane and Joe Saltis. McErlane, perhaps dead or wounded, perhaps a fugitive, disappeared.

Leaders of the caravan who also will speak are Miss Mabel Vernon, of Wilmington, Del., director of the caravan; Mrs. Hannah Clothier Hull, of Swarthmore, Pa., national chairman of the league, and Miss Katherine Devereux Blake, of New York, teacher in New York City schools for 50 years and prominent in the National Education Association.

SWEDISH LYRIC POET WINS NOBEL AWARD

Dr. Eric Karefeldt, Former Committee Head, Honored Posthumously.

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Nobel prize in literature, won last year by Sinclair Lewis, was posthumously awarded today to Dr. Eric Axel Karlfeldt, Swedish lyric poet.

Dr. Karlfeldt is the first member of the Swedish Academy, which selects the Nobel prize winners, to receive the literary award. He was permanent secretary and chairman of the Nobel prize committee. As long as he lived he refused to allow the committee to consider him for the honor, although his name frequently was suggested.

Last year Dr. Karlfeldt introduced Mr. Lewis to the King of Sweden at the presentation ceremony in connection with which the American novelist made a widely commented on speech declaring the way of art in America was hard.

Dr. Karlfeldt died April 7, this year. He had long been considered one of Sweden's outstanding poets, his works being chiefly concerned with the folk ways and daily life of the Dalecariah peasants, from whom he sprang.

Twenty-seven years ago he was elevated to the Swedish Academy, and in 1907 he became a member of the Nobel prize committee. He is the third Swedish writer to receive the prize in literature, the others being Selma Lagerlof, 1909, and Verner Heidenstam, 1916.

The Nobel prizes were established by Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish scientist and inventor of dynamite, who left $9,000,000 on his death in 1896 for a fund from which the interest is used to pay the awards. The value of the prize fluctuates. Last year it was $46,350.

POINT WON BY GOVERNMENT IN CAPONE TAX CHARGE TRIAL

ference between Capone, Mattingly and the internal revenue officials.

"Mr. Capone arrived a few minutes late, accompanied by two men who remained on sentry duty at the door," Wilson testified. "Mr. Mattingly told me that Capone's income was $26,000 in 1926, $40,000 in 1927; $100,000 in 1928 and $100,000 in 1929."

Wilson quoted Mattingly as follows:

"These figures (of Capone's income for the four years in question) are the best we can do. Mr. Capone is willing to pay his tax on these amounts.

"The Government ought to act promptly in collecting this tax. Capone has money, or could get money, and he could pay a substantial amount now."

Only About $75 a Week.

The stenographic account recorded that Capone's income prior to 1925 was "only about $75 a week." During that period of his career, Capone was an employe of Johnny Torrio, the bullet-scarred veteran he succeeded.

After Capone came into power, according to the information given to Wilson by Mattingly, he divided two-thirds of the profits from his multiple rackets equally with three other men. The identity of the three others was not established.

The remaining one-third of the profits were said to have gone to lesser employes of the liquor, vice and gambling syndicate.

Attorney Mattingly also was quoted as having made statements during the conference with Wilson in the Internal Revenue office indicating that much of the power believed by the public to be Capone's was vested instead in the directorate of the underworld organization. For instance, the gunmen who guard Capone on his public appearances were said by Mattingly to be hired and paid by the organization as a whole, not by Capone personally.

Tells of Keeping Records.

An indication of Capone's financial system was given by Miss Heten Alexander, young blonde and comely, who said she kept records of the safety boxes in a Chicago bank, one of which allegedly was rented by "Alphonse Capone." She identified signatures on pass cards to the deposit boxes as having been made by Capone, and pointed out the signer as the bulky, nattily dressed defendant whom the Government refers to as "Scarface Capone," "Al Brown," "Snooky," "Ascosta," and other names.

She said Capone was a joint lessee of a safety box, visited it several times to remove or make deposits, and kept it for about a year.

The other witness of the day was George Slentz, an Internal Revenue Department employe, from Washington, D. C. He identified a power of attorney document given by Capone to Mattingly. The document gave Mattingly power to act "in any and all matters concerning income tax" for the defendant.

Fight Almost Desperately.

Defense Attorneys Ahern and Fink fought almost desperately to keep the evidence regarding Capone's conference with the Government out of the court record. The Government prosecutors, making no use of oratory, brought up records of precedent, and won their point.

At one time Attorney Fink referred to the Boston tea party and declared that "some of our best citizens seek to evade income taxes as well as payment of import duties on purchases upon returning from trips abroad. Tendency to avoid tax payment is a well known characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race."

"This case has nothing to do with the Boston tea party," Judge Wilkerson replied.

Interruptions Frequent.

Attorney Ahern interrupted time after time during presentation of the income tax conference evidence to make objections for the defense. Toward the end of the session Judge Wilkerson several times droned "Objection overruled" without even glancing toward the defense table.

Further measures to protect the gang leader's safety during the trial were taken today. Judge Wilkerson ordered that three United States deputy marshals take charge of "the big fellow" when he arrives at the Federal building daily. They will deliver him after each session to a police escort which will accompany him back through the crowds of curious to his headquarters at the Lexington Hotel.

THE WAR DEBTS PROBLEM.

The reaction of some members of Congress to President Hoover's proposal to discuss international debts with Premier Laval gives rise to confusion. Representative Garner was quick to interpret the President's statement at the White House conference as suggesting cancellation of Europe's debts. Mr. Hoover's statement to the public gives assurance that he had no such intention.

It is unreasonable to suppose that President Hoover would consider negotiations for cancellation of these debts in view of his former position on that issue. When European delegations to the International Chamber of Commerce came to Washington with pleas for debt cancellation last May, the President simply reminded them that the world is spending approximately $5,000,000,000 per year on armaments. In his recent statement he called attention to the position he took on the debt question in announcing the moratorium. At that time the President said:

> I do not approve in any remote sense the cancellation of the debts to us. World confidence would not be enhanced by such action. None of our debtor nations have ever suggested it. But as the basis of the settlement of these debts was the capacity under normal conditions of the debtor to pay, we should be consistent with our own policies and principles if we take into account the abnormal situation now existing in the world.
> I am sure the American people have no desire to attempt to extract any sum beyond the capacity of any debtor to pay, and it is our view that broad vision requires that our Government should recognize the situation as it exists.

Politicians may choose to misunderstand the President's position on war debts for reasons of their own, but it would be unfortunate, indeed, if the public should get the wrong impression. All that the President has said is that he intends to discuss with Premier Laval "the question of such further arrangements as are imperative during the period of the depression in respect to intergovernmental debts."

Whether any action is taken probably will depend upon Europe. Under present circumstances the suspension of debt payments would not afford European governments much relief. During 1929 all the debtor nations paid to the United States was only $212,000,000, of which $150,000,000 represented interest. Compared with their expenditures on armaments this sum sinks into insignificance. So long as conditions remain as they are all gains that would result from an easing up on debt payments might be lost in the race to build and maintain more formidable armies and navies.

It is not to be supposed that the United States will ever attempt to exact from European debtors more than they are able to pay. If the depression permanently impairs Europe's capacity to meet its obligations readjustments can be expected. That would not mean cancellation, but new funding agreements based on the altered conditions.

The questions of ability to pay and military budgets are interwoven, however, and it is unreasonable to assume that the American Government is ready to make sacrifices to help Europe if the nations of the Old World are not willing to sacrifice some of their surplus military strength to help themselves. The United States could gain nothing from the economic collapse of Europe. But an attempt to relieve Europe before a substantial measure of disarmament is assured would be equally fruitless.

German reparations are also deeply involved in this problem. The American Government will not be drawn into the reparations question, yet any readjustment of war debt payments is certain to hinge upon the relief which the former allies offer Germany.

Suggestions that the Government is ready to call upon American taxpayers to take over Europe's war debts can be categorically denied. It does appear, however, that President Hoover is anxious that the United States should do its share toward economic rehabilitation of the world. Perhaps a program of mutual sacrifice for the general welfare can be worked out if Europe is ready to relegate political squabbles to the background and cut down its outlay on arms. Otherwise, this Government would not be justified in further delaying or reducing the meager payments which European nations have agreed to make on their war debts.

RECKLESS BORROWING.

Nations that borrow and bankers that loan funds to be utilized for unproductive purposes were both soundly criticized by President Hoover in his address to the Pan-American Commercial Congress. His criticism is more poignant because he foresaw the disastrous effects of reckless borrowing and warned the nations against it.

In stating his position the President reiterated the warning he uttered four years ago to the same body. "No nation as a government should borrow," he said, "and no government lend, and nations should discourage their citizens from borrowing or lending, unless this money is to be devoted to productive purposes." Many unwise loans during the prolific years preceding the depression now testify that this was and remains good advice.

The President spoke to a gathering of delegates representing all the American republics. But his advice was not necessarily restricted to them. European nations have been beneficiaries of American bounty in great volume, and present conditions are far from indicating that all loans have been utilized for constructive ends.

With regard to Latin America The Post has repeatedly pointed out the indiscretion of a certain class of American banks and investment brokers who have made it too easy for nations, states and even municipalities to secure loans in unwarranted amounts. Bond issues have been urged upon communities as lacking in the experience properly to administer the proceeds as they were in established incomes to meet resulting fixed charges.

In some cases useful public works and improvements have augmented direct Federal incomes, or increased property values so that benefits were secured through increased tax returns. But all too frequently large sums, easily secured, have been wasted through inefficient administration, or lost because improvements undertaken had to be abandoned for lack of further funds before they had reached a productive stage.

The lenders were more intent upon underwriting issues upon which they could secure large commissions than they were in investigating the solvency, reputation and capacity of the borrowers to repay. The borrowers, too, in prosperous years, with good prices for raw products in the world markets, took little stock of the possibility of decreased incomes.

If the United States' policy of more recent years to exert Government supervision over foreign credits had been in vogue sooner it might have saved much present worry both at home and abroad.

VANISHING ANIMAL LIFE.

In many States carefully devised instructions have been distributed for killing off predatory animals that destroy sheep, calves, horses and game. Rodents and other small animals that eat garden products have also been virtually exterminated in some sections.

Recent surveys are bringing to light the fact that in many cases this wild life is worth more to the farmer than the damage it causes. Skunks were destroyed as nuisances, yet it is now estimated that each skunk kills enough mice, insects and other pests to save the farmer from $5 to $10. Furthermore, the pelts of skunks are valuable. The loss of sheep in northern California prompted three Government trappers to kill more than 90 coyotes. Actually, the damage was done by one female, which was ultimately caught by a local trapper when a bounty of $14 was offered. The value of the coyotes destroyed would have been $350 if prime, which is far more than the value of the sheep, yet none of these 90 had killed a domestic animal.

Conservation measures are shown to be of the greatest value when the few States that enforce them are compared with those that have been more lenient. Pennsylvania, with its dense population, has less than one-half the area of Oregon, yet its income from furs is far greater than that of the Western State. In the days of the Astor Company Oregon yielded about $4,000,000 worth of furs annually. Now the fur income is less than $300,000 a year. A full development of Oregon's fur resources, such as restocking the beaver streams and replenishing wild life by stricter regulation would, in the light of Pennsylvania's experience, bring Oregon's fur trade up to $10,000,000 a year.

The farmers of Arkansas, who have suffered acutely from agricultural conditions, inhabit a region that once was rich in game and wild life. Fur animals, such as mink, muskrats, beaver and otter should abound in the streams of that State. In the mountain districts bears, foxes, wildcats, panthers, wolves, raccoons and opossums should flourish. Reclamation of wild life in Arkansas would yield at least $5,000,000 annually, according to experts. Were all parts of this country properly supervised with regard to the wild animal life the United States would be able, experts believe, to supply the $190,000,000 worth of fur used annually in this country without importing from abroad.

THE SILVER MYTH.

Of all the fantastic claims made for the many remedies proposed to cure the world's economic ailments none is more remarkable than that offered on behalf of silver. Remonetization and price fixing are solemnly suggested, as though by some miracle the insignificant role the white metal plays in world economy might be enlarged to double and treble world trade. Silver has no such inherent merit. For nine-tenths of the commercial world today it has reached the irremediable status of a commodity.

Imaginary benefits to be secured from Far Eastern trade if the nations of the world decreed a 100 per cent increase in the price of silver are no more illusory than the sorrowful tales that are told of the losses suffered as a result of the present low price. Commerce with China is pictured as disappearing entirely on this account. Silver advocates can ignore the demoralization and poverty of China due to interminable civil war as completely as the free trade advocates can disregard all effects of the world depression and point to the tariff as the sole cause of decreased exports.

Even with higher silver value during the five years from 1925 to 1929, American exports to China averaged but slightly over $100,000,000 a year. This amounted to about 2 per cent of the total annual value of exports. India buys only half as much from the United States as does China. India, furthermore, is on a gold bullion basis, and while silver is largely used and hoarded, the silver that flows into India in a never-ending stream does not flow out again to pay for imports. Her trade balance is 3 to 1 against the United States.

Tampering with American currency, or attempting to regulate the monetary standards of silver countries, would be repugnant to the people of the United States. This Nation has the most stable currency in the world today. It supplies a fixed standard, while many currencies are the prey of daily fluctuations. It would be a distinct disservice to America and world finance to shake the rock of American credit or currency. In the responsible circles of Government, banking and business there is virtually no sentiment favorable to trying to revive silver as a monetary metal.

To consider any change in the hope of stimulating American commerce in the Far East would be an unwarranted experiment. The trade of China and India will not all be lost by any means through the low price of silver. On the other hand, American manufactures, American wages and all American values might be adversely affected by any experimentation with a monetary standard which this Nation has found to be scientifically sound.

Only a few weeks ago Mexico abandoned the gold standard to adopt silver as the sole legal tender. Already a shortage of circulating medium demands the consideration of a large issue of paper money. The value at which that issue will circulate is as uncertain as are the demoralizing effects already felt by the confiscatory silver decrees. As for the United States, never has the gold standard so completely justified its existence as today.

"THIS, TOO, SHALL PASS"

By THOMAS F. WOODLOCK, in the Wall Street Journal.

William Graham Sumner, of Yale, used to insist upon his students approaching the study of any phenomenon by means of four questions: "What is it?"—"Why is it?"—"What of it?"—and "What should we do about it?" Take but one phenomenon—which, as a matter of fact, should be a resultant, a gauge or a measure of all the rest—the securities market in New York. It happens to be the only reasonably free and open market for securities in the world and the only place where the hopes and fears of "money" can be fully expressed. That is "what" it is.

As it stands today it offers a demonstration, quite unparalleled in financial history, of what unrestrained, unreasoning, unreasonable and seemingly universal fear can do in creating what is nothing short of pure hysteria on a world-wide scale. Even if we grant that wherever we look we find the same thing—shrunken profits and vanished "business"—it is not too much to say that, taking the bond list and the stock list as they stand, they reflect not only all that has thus far happened and all that is at all likely to happen, but a great deal that almost certainly will not happen.

We are paying today for the debauches of 1929, and it is hard to believe that there is much more to be paid. In 1929 we borrowed money at 9 per cent to buy stocks at prices which capitalized earnings on a basis of from 4 per cent downward. We thought we saw ahead of us an unlimited vista of growing business and profits. Today we will not borrow money to buy stocks at prices which capitalize earnings at 6 per cent, 8 per cent, 10 per cent and upward, and bonds, still paying interest, at prices which virtually discount bankruptcies which are not likely to happen. We will not borrow—we will not even spend ready cash for them; but will leave it idle and unproductive in bank deposit or safe deposit box.

"What of it?" Well, among other things, it has done certainly as much as has anything else to prevent the beginnings of recovery in trade and industry. Probably never before have the stock and bond prices exercised anything like so great and so baneful an influence upon the business world as they have done in the last twelve months. Comparatively few people realize that these prices in times of excessive hope or fear are a very unreliable guide to the economic future.

There is a maxim in Wall street that "the tape never lies." It is true, but in a limited sense. The tape does not "lie" in that it faithfully records the weight of buying and selling, but it is an outrageous liar at times if we take it as an index to the future of business.

"What should one do about it?" If the answers to the above three questions are right, the fourth answers itself. There is a legend of King Solomon which is worth remembering in times such as the present. He had entertained for some weeks in his palace a visitor, a wise man from Egypt. The time had come for the visitor to depart, and he addressed Solomon somewhat as follows:

"King, I can make no adequate return to you for the hospitality you have shown me, for I have no possessions. Nevertheless, I have one counsel to give you and you will find it helpful. There will be times in the days to come, and I hope that they will be many, when you will be healthy in body and at peace in soul, and you will say to yourself, 'It is good to be living and to be a king.' There will, however, be other times—may they be few—when you are ailing and troubled in your heart, and you will say to yourself, 'Of what avail is this mortal life?' When either of these moods comes upon you retire to your innermost chamber alone, stand in the middle of the room with curtains drawn and say to yourself three times, and slowly, 'This, too, shall pass away.' Thus will you never fail in judgment, which is wisdom."

What was good for Solomon is good for us, "This, too, shall pass away."

Dollar Paid as Wages Costs No More Than Dollar Given Charity

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TEN per cent of the people in America own 90 per cent of the wealth.

Such inequality might be just if the 90 per cent had enough, but civilized men can not long tolerate a system that enables the few to control a nation's wealth while the many beg for bread.

There was a time when the superior man felt little responsibility for the unfit. He thanked his gods for his advantages and made the most of them.

But men are beginning to understand that superiority imposes obligations.

The rule of free competition is a fair rule where men are equal; but where the fit make their profit at the expense of the unfit, justice requires some division of their winnings.

If a dozen men were shrewd enough to acquire the whole of America's wealth, would their superior ability as money-makers justify complete control of a nation's resources? Would a just law protect them in the enjoyment of their winnings while one hundred and twenty millions lived in want?

Men no longer deserve respect merely because they have money. They must do something to justify their possession of it.

When a man gets rich, he proves himself superior as a money-maker, but the achievement is too common to win renown. If no handicaps are imposed, it is no great thing for a whole man to defeat cripples. Getting rich by keeping the unfit poor is too much like taking candy from a baby.

The fit must recognize the inequality of man and in some manner compensate the unfit.

Philanthropy is not enough. To get rich by paying men too little for their labor and then use the profits to feed the hungry is too much like the generosity of the man who employs girls at $3 a week and uses his gains to support a home for fallen women.

That the superior man must be his brother's keeper is obvious. He must rule, direct, manage. And he can no longer be content to rule solely for his own profit.

To handicap himself would be a foolish waste of energy and talent. Equality can not be established by hamstringing the faster horse.

The fortunate must find a new rule that will give the unfit a greater share than he can win in ruthless competition and insure him against the fear of unemployment, sickness and old age.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Third Degree Brutality.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Brutality "in the name of the law" received a deserved rebuke through the conviction of a former Assistant District Attorney of Montgomery County, a county detective and a township chief of police on charges of torturing a prisoner by third degree methods. The testimony at Norristown unfolded a disgusting story of physical and mental intimidation in the effort to extort a confession from the prisoner, including a puerile performance by a "ghost." While the jury merited Judge Williams' praise for its courage "to abide by the evidence," its verdicts, as he pointed out, were "the only verdicts warranted."

The public has not forgotten the Wickersham report on "lawlessness in law enforcement" with its scathing indictment of third degree methods and references to "unprintable barbarity." Such treatment as that used in Montgomery County has already caused many States to enact laws making evidence inadmissible when obtained by such methods. The Montgomery County jury has set a salutary example by decreeing the punishment of officials who resort to brutality under the guise of authority.

Watching the Pork Barrel.
Houston Post Dispatch.

The people are thoroughly alive to the need for rigid economy in Government expenditures at this time, and the pressure of public opinion against the pork barrel is likely to lessen the congressional crowd about that hitherto overworked adjunct of the legislative chambers.

Deflating Bureaucracy.
Chicago Tribune.

James Reed, former senator from Missouri and now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, says he hopes the Democrats will adopt a sound platform and not go in for noble experiments. Reed's idea of a sound platform is one which pronounces for a deflation of Federal Government, to get it out of wheat, out of cotton, out of the sniffing business, out of the citizen's private affairs and his business affairs, to pull Congress away from the chest of dopes, plates and love potions, and to evict the quacks, medicine men and cancer salve venders.

If the old-time American has seen his days it is not only the end of an era, but the end of a great idea. The qualities which made the United States can not survive a complete reversal of the conditions needed for their existence. The Nation has rested upon the doctrine that its citizens were adult, competent, self-reliant and able in an equalitarian political and social system to take care of themselves and defend their common possessions. That idea has produced all their first-class men and the fiber of their citizenship. If the idea is wrong for the present generation and for succeeding generations the American republic must close its books.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Housekeeper Tells How Individuals in Want Are Indifferent to Housework and Surplus Food.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a housekeeper. Some time ago I offered a girl out of work $15 a month to come and prepare my vegetables for dinner and to wash the dinner dishes. I cooked my own dinner. I offered her $1.50 a week extra for cleaning my house of five rooms, which required about two hours, and to give her all the food that was left from dinner. Would she do it? She would not.

Not wanting to throw away the food that I had left from dinner after this girl refused to work for me I told another person if he would come and get it I would give it to him rather than throw it in the garbage. Did he do it? Yes, just once. After that my husband carried it over to him until he got tired of doing it. Consequently enough food is thrown in the garbage to feed one person, and it is good food.

So really I am getting disgusted with this cry of hard times. We all are getting fed up on it. I do my work myself now and my husband helps me. We put the money in our savings.

Reader Finds Post Editorials Rank Among Those of Greatest American Dailies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: About a year ago while I was in Washington I wrote you a note of appreciation on your editorial about congressional conduct. During my present stay of several weeks I have read your paper regularly and wish to compliment your editorial page.

I have found it more diversified than ever and more interesting. It is comparable to that of any of our great American dailies.

I have noticed a tendency of many papers to present in their editorials merely a rehash of and comment on front page news, without seeming to be aware of the movements in the worlds of science, art and invention and incidents of importance or interest in other fields. I find that the caliber of a paper is often indicated by its editorials.

I have obtained ideas and information in your editorials not found elsewhere in the paper. Several on animal life, archaeology and other things I remember especially.

Powerful Contribution to Beer Controversy Which Helps to Clarify the Situation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Still dear to my heart are the nights pre-Volstead, which in fond recollection quite often appear, when with numberless lagers, no matter how heady, we swore that a man couldn't get drunk on beer. And still while we'd empty, with thirst unabating, the full-flowing schooner, the Teutonic stein, we would never admit it was intoxicating, whether four, five or six per cent, seven, or nine. Our heads the next day might be swelled, hot, and steaming, but we never went back on the virtues of beer. And I guess 'tis in moments of pre-Volstead dreaming "A Virginian" insists four-per cent beer is "near."

Radio Advertising on Sundays, Says Subscriber, Is Disgusting to Public.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am wondering what chances there may be for securing radio entertainment on Sundays without the disgusting chatter of advertisers. Is it not within the range of possibility to restrict to the six week days the very uninteresting and nerve-racking prattle on the alleged excellence of certain grades of corn plasters, whisk brooms, cabbages, &c.? Does it not seem to you to be rather mercenary, if not sacrilegious, to so subvert the Sabbath day for that purpose when there is so much in the way of beautiful music which could be utilized to make Sunday radio thoroughly enjoyable?

I believe the public would say "Amen!" to this proposed modification of programs. LISTENER-IN.

THE WHISTLE BLEW

The whistle blew! The workmen ran
To put their heavy tools away.
The oldest and the youngest man
Seemed glad to greet the close of day.
Upon the street with smile and jest
They joined the homeward journeying throng
To claim a few sweet hours of rest
In spite of care and pain and wrong.

The whistle blew! A man looked out
From the high window where he sat
And murmured as he gazed about:
"It must be nice to quit like that!"
Great care was heavy on his mind,
He fretted over problems grim
And faced a task of sterner kind
The whistle could not end for him.

They could not see him from the street
So high above them all was he,
Who still had endless cares to meet
Yet wished that moment to be free.
They thought themselves the worse oppressed
Who had the dustier tasks to do,
But from their labors they could rest
The moment that the whistle blew.

He watched them as a man looks out
On school boys romping in their play.
They seemed so sturdy and so stout,
So glad to put their cares away.
While he, the rich man, troubled sat
Still taking thought and taking stock.
And wishing he could quit like that
And drop his cares at five o'clock.

STATUS OF CHURCH DEBATED IN SPAIN

Minister of Justice Demands Catholicism's Separation From State.

Madrid, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The future status of the Catholic Church in Spain was taken up for debate today by the assembly as one of the leading problems in the creation of the Nation's new constitution.

Discussion of the question, as the republic attempts to unravel the tangled threads that closely bound the state and church under the past monarchical system, is expected to last several days.

The galleries were jammed and hundreds, unable to enter, crowded around the doorways of the congressional palace as debate began upon the constitutional project to separate the church and state. Excitement was apparent as guards searched those who entered. Many women were among the spectators.

Debate On Article 3.

The debate was upon Article 3 of the preamble of the projected constitution, which states:

"The state will entertain no official religion."

Fernando de los Rios, minister of justice, in whose portfolio the religious question falls, declared that separation of church and state was necessary because the civil government must be supreme over other organizations.

"Spain today renounces the maintenance of the Catholic Church," he said.

Dimas Madariaga, leader of the Agrarian bloc, said his party would defend the church to the last ditch.

"If the chamber expels the religious orders," he said, "it will be necessary to send an army to the Basque and Navarre provinces to enforce it."

Proposed Pension Cited.

The minister of justice said the government proposed to pension 25,000 priests and otherwise suppress the annual church budget.

Minister de los Rios warned Catholics not to attempt to resist the reforms, declaring: "You will only be conquered again."

Dispatches from Alcoriza near Teruel, said that one man died of a heart attack there and another was gravely injured when police fired on a mob which was attempting to destroy a Paulist monastery. The religious men were returning to the monastery from which they had fled during the May riots, the dispatches said, and the mob forced them to leave the town.

Creditors of Three Firms Would Benefit by Deal, Is Report.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—An offer of $3,965,000 for Schulte-United, Inc., made by David Schulte, was approved today by a majority of creditors of Schulte-United, Inc., and Millers, Inc., and Miller's, Inc., and Schulte Five Cents to One Dollar Stores, Inc.

The offer will be presented to the United States District Court by trustees of the three firms.

If approved, it will yield between 29 and 36 per cent to creditors of Schulte-United, about 75 per cent to creditors of Miller's, Inc., and an undetermined amount to creditors of Schulte Five Cents to One Dollar Stores, Inc.

Donald's bid last night for free hand for the national government.

Late this evening Mr. Henderson arrived in London from Scarborough, where he attended the Labor party's annual conference. A great crowd gathered to meet him and "The Red Flag" rang to the roof of King's Cross Station.

Two Liberal resignations from the ministry were announced. Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George, son of the Liberal leader, withdrew as parliamentary secretary of the board of trade, and Maj. Goronwy Owen gave up the office of controller of his majesty's household.

Sir Herbert Samuel, Prominent Liberal who helped Mr. MacDonald form the national government, will be opposed by a Conservative candidate for the House of Commons in his own constituency, it was announced tonight.

The Conservatives of Darwen, Lancashire, which Sir Herbert represented, have taken exception to his free trade views. The contest will be one of many between Liberal and Conservative candidates claiming to represent the national government.

ADMIRAL IS RESCUED AS YACHT IS SUNK

medately and in a short time a lifeboat was alongside. All of us were quickly transferred from the sinking vessel to the lifeboat except Ninotchka, who had been thrown into the water by the force of the collision.

"We searched for half an hour and finally we found her swimming in the water. The small dog we had aboard was also saved.

Aboard the yacht Kiakachiaka were Admiral McCully and five of the seven Russian orphans he adopted in 1920: Ninotchka, 15; Nikolai, 22; Liedmila, 20; Feador, 14, and Tornotchka, 13.

They were en route from Annapolis to the admiral's South Carolina home and had reached the section of the bay just off the mouth of the Potomac River when the Verona, outward bound from Baltimore to Cuba, suddenly loomed above them. The yacht had no chance to move out of the path of the big steamer, which was traveling at greater speed.

They were brought down the bay by the Verona and landed at Cape Henry by a pilot boat.

First news of the near tragedy was given by the Cape Henry observer. But the admiral had departed and the identity of the rescued persons was not made known immediately. Later it was found that the admiral had gone quietly to the home of a friend, Mrs. C. Niemann, at Virginia Beach, without informing his naval friends here of the early morning rescue.

No member of the party was injured, but Ninotchka was treated for shock. Admiral McCully said they would proceed to Charleston later by rail.

HOUSE RULE HALTS CANNON CASE PROBE

able in the event there was an indictment and trial.

Justice Proctor took under advisement the request of the Government to compel Mr. Page to produce the records. In the event Justice Proctor rules that the records must be forthcoming, Mr. Page will either have to comply or risk a contempt citation.

Limitation May Expire.

Congress does not meet until December, and the statute of limitations, which has already passed two recorded items of $10,000 each in late September, 1928, will operate further to outlaw items in October, which is the month in which most of the contributions from E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, were received by the Cannon committee, if action is held over until that time. The October receipts from Mr. Jameson totaled $38,000. There was one small receipt from him in December and another small one in January, 1929.

Should the Government elect to ask an indictment on charges of conspiring to violate the corrupt practices act, the dates of the Burroughs reports to the clerk of the House will be important. Those dates run until February 15, 1929. They would not expire until February of next year, though only one of the five reports would be eligible for criminal action because of the three-year limit.

In these circumstances the House can hardly act to produce the records in time to defeat the statute of limitations, even if the membership is willing to produce House records for use in a possible criminal prosecution.

It was strongly intimated last night that if the District Supreme Court rules the papers do not have to be produced, the matter will be allowed to remain "at rest" until such time as the House sees fit to take action in the matter. The offense under investigation is a violation of an act of Congress, and whether that act takes precedence over a House resolution will have to be determined.

Another Obstacle Faced.

Another obstacle confronted the grand jury yesterday when the Rev. J. Sidney Peters, of Newport News, Va., upon being called for examination, was asked to sign a waiver of immunity. He declined to testify until he had consulted his attorneys. Later in the day he reappeared at the courthouse and offered to testify. He was followed by former Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, who contributed $20,000 to the Cannon committee. The senator refused to talk to reporters.

The first witness yesterday was Dr. A. J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., who joined Bishop Cannon in calling the Asheville conference which led to the organization of anti-Smith Democrats.

The grand jury hearings will be continued today, to await a ruling by Justice Proctor. If the records of the House are to be produced the hearing will be hastened, for the three-year limit is near. If the ruling conform to other similar Federal court rulings, however, the hearings may be brought to an abrupt close.

AIRPLANES BATTER CITY OF CHINCHOW

tional policy under direction of the Nationalist party, which controls the government. Such a policy violates the treaties and constitutes unarmed hostility, the note said. Contending that China will face serious responsibilities if the agitation is not quelled, the note recalled that Dr. Alfred Sze, representative at the League of Nations for China, had assured the league the Chinese government would attempt to halt the agitation.

Geneva, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Press reports of an air bombardment by Japanese planes in Manchuria caused great concern here today and it was regarded as certain that the league council will meet October 14 to consider the situation.

A postponement of the council's meeting had been considered to allow time for the Sino-Japanese situation to settle down and to insure the presence of a larger number of foreign ministers.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate, said they had no official information of the bombing incident.

BRUENING IS UNABLE TO FORM MINISTRY

German Chancellor Fails to Select Cabinet President Will Accept.

Berlin, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Inability of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to select a cabinet satisfactory to President Paul von Hindenburg, to the Social Democrats and other quarters of the country's politics, left Germany without a ministry again today.

The chancellor conferred with former Reichswehr Minister Otto Gessler during the day, but did not obtain the latter's acceptance of the proffered interior portfolio. He also considered several possible successors to Dr. Julius Curtius as foreign minister, but made no choice for this post.

Curtius bade farewell to his staff this afternoon. Baron Constantine von Neurath, German Ambassador at London, has been mentioned frequently as a possibility for the foreign office post. He is now in Bavaria for a vacation, and will come to Berlin tomorrow. In the meantime, Chancellor Bruening is acting as foreign minister himself.

The chancellor reported progress to President von Hindenburg this evening. The president wants the new ministry to be distinctly rightist, eliminating the Socialist and trades union influence, while the Social Democrats threaten to swing into open opposition if the chancellor moves to the right. The Fascists have refused to take any part in a cabinet which Dr. Bruening heads.

In political circles tonight it was said the delay was also due to failure to determine what powers the president is willing to grant the chancellor to carry on the government without a session of the Reichstag, if that should be necessary. It was understood the president wants to avoid dissolution of the Reichstag as long as possible, believing these would be critical times in which to hold a general election.

PAINS AND ACHES, FAINT AND DIZZY

Richmond, Va.—"I was in very poor health a few years ago, had pains and aches all over. My head ached nearly every day, I would feel faint and dizzy, and would be in bed about every other day, not able to do any of my work. I did not rest well at night and was losing weight. Through a friend I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and was soon feeling like myself again. After I had taken three bottles I was able to do my work and gained in weight."—Mrs. Mabel Stewart, 1838 Venable St. Druggists sell

Shower Mars White House Lawn Party

Rain Falls as President Begins to Welcome G. O. P. Women.

Six hundred members of the League of Republican Women yesterday were rained on and, with the President and Mrs. Hoover, who were their hosts at a garden party on the lawns of the White House, scurried for cover about 5:30 o'clock, three minutes after the President had joined the throng of smartly dressed women whom Mrs. Hoover had welcomed earlier in the afternoon.

It was an informal finale to a fete marked by the usual informal charm of White House garden parties. The rain, however, interrupted the general handshaking and welcome accorded the President when he appeared, quite unexpectedly, accompanied by Capt. Russell Train, to greet his allies. And when the atmosphere turned wet everybody rushed indoors, the President and Mrs. Hoover and many of the guests hurrying to the executive offices and others seeking shelter in the mansion.

Despite the sudden downpour the fete was one of the most delightful of the year. With only the members of the league and a few women of official society making up the groups, they all enjoyed the respite from party problems and in scattered groups, discussed not politics, but styles, stocks and society.

Mrs. Hoover received the long line of guests on the upper lawn near the rose gardens. As Mr. Charles Cook, of the Department of State, made the introductions, Mrs. Hoover had for each guest a gay little bit of conversation, sort of a "welcome between friends." She wore a gown of dark blue chiffon relieved by touches of lace and a sable scarf. With it she chose a hat of dark blue silk.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was among the first to arrive and through the tea hour was surrounded by friends, none of whom seemed to be talking politics. She wore a dress of black lace with a silver fox scarf and a smart hat with ostrich. The cabinet ladies were represented by Mrs. Stimson in rose and green printed chiffon, a sable scarf and brown hat; Mrs. Adams in dark blue, Mrs. Lamont in printed silk and Mrs. Doak in the black and white which she so easily wears.

Staunch Republicans of the rock-bound type moved among the throng. Mrs. Virginia White Speel, honorary president of the League, was, of course, present, accompanied by Mrs. Harry K. Daugherty, vice president, and acting for the president, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, who is in Europe.

Mrs. John D. Sherman, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and now women's commissioner of the Bicentennial Commission; Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, Mrs. Ellis Yost and Mrs. Robert J. Burdette were noted chatting near the marquees which dotted the south lawn.

Others in the groups were Mrs. George Aubrey Hastings, lovely in blue chiffon; Mrs. Clyde Kelley, Mrs. Cleveland R. Pierce, of Miami; Mrs. James T. Morris, Mrs. Alfons B. Landa, Mrs. David R. Caldwell, Mrs. E. E. Warren, Mrs. P. Scott Young and Miss Irene Juno.

The Marine Band, stationed near the fountain, played during the brief hour before the rain set in, and White House aids in smart dark-blue uniforms looked after the "hospitality" end of the party.

Capital Man Makes Virginia Matron Bride

Mrs. Anne S. Smith and F. H. Kenworthy Wed Near Purcellville.

A wedding of interest to residents of Washington and Virginia took place near Purcellville, Va., yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, when Mrs. Anne Staunton Smith, widow of Dr. William Morgan Smith, late president of the Virginia State Board of Health, became the bride of Mr. Franklin Hartman Kenworthy, of Washington, son of Mrs. Henry Sterling Kenworthy, of Philadelphia.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Howard Cady, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Purcellville, in the historic old drawing room of Exedra, home of the bride.

The house was decorated with a profusion of old-fashioned garden roses, running clematis and potted plants.

A program of music was given by Mrs. Louise Hawthorne, piano, and Mr. Henry Davis, violin, both of Purcellville, Va.

The bride wore a gown of antique ivory lace over satin, with small hat to match, and carried American Beauty roses. Mrs. John Butler Faison, of Jersey City, N. J., was her sister's only attendant and she wore rose-gray chiffon with velvet hat to match.

The best man was Mr. Preston C. King, of Washington.

A wedding breakfast for the immediate families followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Kenworthy left for New York and will sail on the Bremen for Germany, spending several weeks in Europe. In Munich they will be entertained by the Vice Consul of the United States and Mrs. James Matthew Bowcock. In London they will visit relatives of Mr. Kenworthy, he being a great nephew of the noted banker, Sir James Wood. The bride's going-away gown was a tailored suit of boxwood green, beaver trimmed with accessories to match.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Kenworthy will make their home at Exedra, near Purcellville, and in the winter season will be at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Kenworthy is an accomplished musician and linguist, having spent her girlhood on the continent, and for several years was a pupil of Herr Heinrich Scheuten, in Hanover, Germany.

Byrd for seven more years. She was also chairman of the tuberculosis work for Clark County until she sold her home, Rosemont, to Gov. Byrd and came to Loudoun County.

Mr. Kenworthy is a direct descendant of the first justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, Benjamin Chew.

After formally presenting her daughter to society, Mrs. Wahl will give Miss Castanedo several small dinners throughout the winter, and will choose dates for the parties later in the season.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Inarticulate—or Just Dumb?

WHOEVER started the vogue of the strong silent hero has a lot to answer for with husbands suddenly hushing up like clams and lovers doing the strong-and-silent all over the place. Who started this? Has woman not had enough to bear with lovers who could not come to the point, and husbands who thought marriage settled for all time the question of who loved whom and how much? It would certainly seem to be man's turn to do a little of the worrying and a little of the scheming in this catch-as-catch-can business of loving. Instead sombody sells him on the idea of being a strong silent male, take it or leave it. And poor woman has a new problem to tackle—and overcome. For, of course, she will overcome it as she has every obstacle man has ever placed in the path of marriage. Feminine ingenuity has hurdled them all and landed him right where she planned—at the altar. So these strong-and-silents might just as well give in without a struggle and spare a lot of unnecessary wear and tear. For instance, Jerry. Jerry's girl will get him yet. But meanwhile can you picture the cozy evenings these two are enjoying, while Jerry "stares" and the girl glares? Of course Jerry loves her or he would not plant himself on the porch with such irritating results, but who wants to be "loved" by some speechless apparition? Honestly, life just gets harder and harder for the woman out to get her man—without any more vogues for dumb-and-silent males to complicate the thing!

Dear Frances McDonald: You have an answer for everything. What about this? For three long years I have gone with just one man—and liked it. He did not exactly ask me to give up all others, just sort of hinted that he thought two people after going together a year ought to either care enough for each other to give up all others—or should quit and call it over. I got the point, for he went with no one but me, and told him I would go with only him. He rewarded me with a kiss. Our first, believe it or not. Then he stated that in another two years we "ought to be able to make it." Which was his way of proposing. Well, I had to be satisfied, even when he showed that he had no intention of spoiling me with kisses. He did not kiss me again till Christmas, when he presented me with a diamond ring. He would not put it on, so I just took a chance and put it on the engagement finger. Then he grinned and kissed me. He said he did not know whether I still wanted it on that finger. I asked him what I would want with it at all if not on that finger, and he said he never thought of that.

Two years have passed. And in all that time he has never spoken one word of love or missed one single evening at my home. He would come if the world were ending. Takes me anywhere I want to go, brings me cigarettes, candy, handbags, umbrellas, picture frames of solid silver for my parents' photos and shows that I am the only one on his mind, but never offers a caress or speaks of love or marriage. Mother adores him, but tells me unless I bring up the subject of getting married he never will. She nearly died laughing when I told her about how he presented the ring. But now she knows. I feel hurt and is more serious, although she says she never saw any one like him and could "fall for him herself." Dad asks me if he should get a gun and ask his intentions and my brother says that I have gone and got one of those big, strong, silent men. What am I supposed to do? He comes at 8:30, sits on the porch staring at nothing until 10:30, gets up, looks at his watch and says, "well, see you tomorrow," and that's that. Now the question is this: I am getting to hate the sight of him. Do I really hate him or would any woman on earth react the same to such treatment? I will not stoop to making him jealous. But what can I do? What would you with such a man? IRMA.

And, of course, being what we are, things could never have reached this pass! We are altogether too curious about what makes the clock tick and things like that, and so would have had this swain all apart years ago to see what was the matter with him. Certainly almost any woman on earth would have asked him long ago whether he was inarticulate or just plain dumb. And we can not understand why Irma hasn't. What an enthusiastic husband a lad like that will make. Will some woman who owns one tell us all how they work? What could get action in a case like this? It would take a good many tons of solid silver photo frames to make us feel we were not being short-changed in this deal. Are we just thrill-crazy or isn't this staring-into-space program a fair warning for any woman?

If any one, man, woman or child, can say a word in defense of this Lothario, their defense will be given space for Irma's sake. Personally we would place a bit of poison ivy in his buttonhole some evening and call the incident closed. Meanwhile we ask again who started this fad of heroes who do not know their own strength but try to gauge it by the number of hours they can sit in silence? And what sort of husband would Irma's Jerry make?

Jane Interprets the Mode

Trim Autumn sports suit of wine red jersey with sleeve and shoulder yoke cut in one piece (A New York model.)

New York, Oct. 8.

EVENING accessories are lavish and evening clothes are lovely these night—'n' that's saying a whole lot, now isn't it? And not only are accessories lavish, but they're romantic and original, too.

New in evening accessories and very lovely are scarf-capes, and never could they be more gorlicious than now, thanks to the vogue for velvet and fur, metallic nets, sequins and strass. Oh-o-o-o-o-o, not all together, of course, but in discreet combinations that always keep a slight tendency to theatrical flamboyance well hidden beneath complete good taste. The combination of brilliantly colored velvet and long or short haired furs in an odd and softly draping scarf is very new, and perfectly stunning as an accent to an all-white evening gown. Molyneux, for instance, has edged a piece of flame red velvet with white fox, and the scarf may be tied around the neck as a scarf, or may be worn over the shoulder as a cape. Metallic net scarves pass through jewelled rings and adjust in graceful and tricky ways, but these are only worn with accompanying metallic net frocks which are made with the utmost simplicity.

'N' then bags—and never were they more infinite in variety, color and shape. Velvet, of course, combined with strass or pearls, is new, as are evening bags of pink or white satin, holster-shaped, and fastening with a crystal, prystal or strass ornament. And do you remember what a "miser purse" is? I THOUGHT not! But your grandmother would—so if you carry one of these double purses crocheted of cut steel, closing with steel rings, and hanging over your middle finger, you'll be following Paris' latest whimsey!

• • • •

Wine red for color, heavy jersey for warmth and a two-piece for comfort! 'N' what more could the active elegante ask for late autumn strolls and golf games and such? Wel-l-l-l-l, possibly that these little matters be combined with the unusual trimness of the little suit I sketched for you today! The shoulders and sleeves of the little jacket are in one piece, the neck is high and round, and the loose scarf collar ties or adjusts in any number of perky ways! 'N' what better could one ask to give width to the skirt than the combination of pleats and centerfront incrustation in this skirt?

No autumn wardrobe is complete without a sports suit—and when you buy yours, have it as free from fussy detail as you possible can!

These bracelets! Miladi Moderne just couldn't decide whether she liked gold or silver better—so she wore the disk bracelets illustrated today in both metals, and was doubly chic because of this! This is a popular shape, by the way.

Solved!

The problem of WHERE to put the WHATS!

What whats? Well, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and find out. Because every woman in the world needs this gadjet that Dah-ray has designed for her, to hang on a hook on the bathroom door, and to keep unsightly but necessary rubber goods out of sight, and handy. It's furniture, but it's not furniture—if you see what I mean; so dahrlings, better send for the leaflet and really see—and what's more important, make, this practical bathroom accessory for your own home.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA"

If October 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9:10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 2 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

The creative worker will have great possibilities on October 9 according to what the Stars foretell. All those with mechanical or electrical interests should follow up any ideas that may occur to them for new devices, inventions and processes. Breakers lie ahead for married couples, and mutual tolerance and confidence will be necessary in order to avoid friction.

A child born on this October 9 will possess considerable latent talent, and will be courageous and energetic. Its passions will be liable to get it into trouble, and it must be taught the lesson of self-control. Its love will be whole-souled, but it will always strongly resent any interference with its individualism.

You, if born on October 9, have a very strong character, rather dogmatic and set in your ways, but, it must be admitted, generally right. You value the good opinion of others very highly, and will go out of your way to secure this end. In much that you do, you seem to work for the applause you hope to receive, and not for the sake of the work itself. There is a suggestion of "staginess" about you. Yet, although in love with the limelight, you accomplish much that is worthwile.

Although materialistic in a marked degree, you are interested in things psychic, even though generally ashamed to admit it. If a woman, you are superatitious, and try to hide it. Lover affairs occupy a large share of your thoughts, and you are always building castles in the air, with yourself as the Fairy Princess. You, too, in conversation, have an unfortunate habit of exaggeration, which at times, is anything but convincing.

Men and women born on this day experience occasional lapses from practicability, and become excited and gay, without any thought for tomorrow. These fits are generally followed by a time of depression. Marriage for them will be free from adventure and will follow the path of least resistance.

Successful people born on October 9:

1. Edwin W. Bok, editor of the Ladies Home Journal.
2. Francis J. Campbell, blind educator.
3. Leonard Wood, soldier.
4. Harriet Hosmer, sculptor.
5. Elizabeth Akers Allen, poet.
6. James B. Lockwood, arctic explorer.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE DAY OF SMALL THINGS.

ALTHOUGH the object of Contract bidding is reaching the best bid in the combined hands, the best bid does not necessarily mean a game bid. Players who despise partial scores are losing players.

"We might just as well try for game, partner; we are not vulnerable anyway," is the philosophy of failure. A part-score is a very valuable asset, not appreciated at its true worth by most players of Contract. Duplicate play, based upon the comparison of each board a match, brings out in startling relief the "game bidder" as opposed to those who value their hands at their actual possibilities, rather than on the basis of hopes which have no more substantial foundation than unfounded optimism.

Recently, at Atlantic City, the hand below afforded an interesting test of accurate bidding. This is the way in which Mr. Richard Frey, a New York Contract player, and his partner reached the best result.

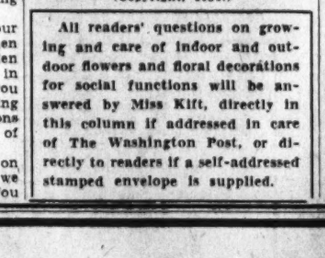
East—Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1♣	Pass (1)	1♡ (2)	Pass
1NT	2♣ (3)	2♡	Pass
Pass	3♣	Pass	Pass
Pass (4)

1—East and West were using the "One over One," a variation of the Culbertson Approach-Forcing System. South felt reasonably sure that West would respond to the Opening bid of one in the lowest-ranking suit.
2—An optimistic distributional bid.
3—South now enters the bidding, as East's response, while using the "One over One" convention, has disclosed a minimum hand.
4—East's pass is wise, although many players would be tempted to double, but West's responses have shown nothing that might aid in the defeat of the contract.

In the play, West opened a small spade. East won with the Ace and immediately returned the suit. South played the King. It was, of course, apparent to South that the Dummy contained only one entry, as East's Opening bid has definitely marked the Ace of diamonds in his hand. Therefore, he can lead clubs but once from the Dummy. Accepting the facts, South then laid down the King of clubs and followed with a small diamond upon which North played the King and East won with the Ace. East then led the Queen of hearts, which South won with the King, following with the Queen of diamonds and the Knave of hearts, which was overtaken by the Ace in the North hand. The last trump was led from the Dummy and the Ten of trumps finesse. West was now thrown in the lead with a spade, and on the tenth round he led the Ten of hearts. South trumped with the eight of clubs and placed East in the lead with his last diamond, thereby making the twelfth and thirteenth tricks for his contract of three-odd, a score of 60 tricks and 100 for honors, the best score justified by this particular holding.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In responding to partner's Takeout Double when the hand contains not more than 1½ honor-tricks, a four-card major suit, headed by at least the Knave, should be bid in preference to any five-card minor.

However, a six-card minor should be shown in preference to a weak four-card major.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

OCTOBER IN THE GARDEN.

THIS is the time to place in pots for house use narcissus, crocuses, hyacinths and tulips. You can wait until the fifteenth or perhaps a little later to plant your bulbs in the open, but the ones you wish to use in the home had better be planted as soon as possible.

I wish to suggest also that when the sky, the barometer or the thermometer threatens a cold night it is wise to cover up your hardy chrysanthemums with light cloths or newspapers. Do not use old bits of carpets such as you cover a cold frame with in midwinter, as this will be too heavy and will be sure to injure the expanding buds. Old sheets will be really all you need.

It will soon be time to draw the lily pool, bird bath and other water receptacles and cover them with light boards. All foliage cut from borders and beds should be burned and not allowed to lie about. If your climbing roses are in an especially windy spot, lash them in place with rag bands. Never use wire for this purpose or even strong twine, for either material may cut the canes, causing definite damage to the plants.

This is the time to top-dress your lawn to overcome irregularities. Then you should store away your garden furniture and place a windbreak in front of your rhododendrons. If you are busy planting spring-flowering bulbs your lawn and rhododendrons can wait until after the first of November.

The seedsmen place their bulbs on their counters in late August and we buy and plant them in the fall. You may be surprised when I tell you that bulbous stock all over the United States is planted at practically the same time, though the season of blooming depends entirely on the location of the garden. In the South the bulbs unfurl their gorgeous petals several weeks in advance of bulbs planted in the North.

The cultivation of spring-flowering bulbs is so easy. The first requisite is good soil, the second that the bed must be well drained, the third that the bulbs must be healthy, and the fourth that the location must be sunny and well protected during freezing weather with straw, leaves or granulated peat moss.

If you are planting bulbs in beds that have been occupied by annuals or other summer bedding plants, you must keep in mind that these will in a measure have exhausted the soil. So the bed must be heavily manured and thoroughly spaded. If the soil is mostly clay or very heavy loam, it will be well to add a quantity of sharp sand to aid in the drainage. If you live where manure is unobtainable, use bonemeal.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

SPASMS IN CHILDREN.

CHILDREN who have convulsions should be thoroughly studied. A child who has a good inheritance, is sound in body and in mind, and has good habits may have a convulsion as the result of a fever, an infection, or some phenomenon such as teething. As soon as the fever has subsided, or the infection has been conquered, such children become normal and never have any other spasm.

In such cases the spasm, like fever, rapid pulse and flushed face, is merely one feature of the child's reaction, albeit a most alarming and mysterious one. Such a child calls for no special study. But if the convulsion is repeated, and especially if the subsequent attacks are not due to some outstanding cause, such as the onset of an infectious disease, there should be a close study of the individual. The case may be one of epilepsy, or of something built somewhat on the epilepsy pattern.

The study should begin with the child's physical being. Sometimes a cause can be found in that field. Next, it should cover the child's mentality. In some cases convulsions are merely one of the symptoms of imbecility or feeble-mindedness. It should cover personality. Habits, emotions and behavior should be carefully analyzed. Next, heredity should be inquired into and, finally, the conditions of the home.

Mrs. C. L. McCollister has found that convulsions are especially apt to develop in children with the spasmophilic diathesis. Such children are likely to be subject to attacks of croup, asthma, and colds. Children with this diathesis improve when given cod liver oil, vitamin D preparations and lime in various ways. They react to parathyroid medication, and sunlight and open air is almost specific for them.

Many of these children are subject to temper tantrums. They get blue in the face or they become limp as a rag or stiff as a poker when they get mad, or when they are denied what they want. Many are sleep walkers or have night terrors.

Mrs. McCollister especially emphasizes the need of proper training where convulsions are associated with these manifestations of personality disturbance. She quotes Myerson as saying that temper tantrums and such make habit grooves, and, if indulged in, are liable to eventuate in convulsions. These habit grooves must be broken up by training.

The child subject to convulsions is likely to be of a certain type of mind and to have a certain type of personality. Such children are in great need of training. Sometimes inheritance is at fault. Epilepsy itself is not inherited, but a certain nervous instability and certain peculiarities of body and mind are, and out of these epilepsy may develop. The parent may be at fault in his method of training his child or his attitude toward him. The home and other environment may be the cause of the trouble. In short, when a child has convulsions it is all wrong to give worm medicine and stop at that.

COATED TONGUE.

A daily reader writes: How can one get the white coating off the tongue? This, I understand, causes bad breath.

REPLY.

It can be scraped off with the back of a caseknife. Chewing gum is of some service. The use of germicidal mouth washes is helpful. Since this coating is so promptly renewed after removal, prevention is more important than cure.

SLIMMING!

The bias cut of this new slip actually shapes the figure and lends charming slimness to the outer garment.

The wrap-over arrangement at the back, makes it shadow proof, and gives freedom in its added width without detracting from its slenderness.

Another modish point is the bias cut of the upper edge so comfortable and slimming to neckline.

MONTGOMERY FIRE DAY PROGRAM SET

Imirie Announces Plans for Elaborate Celebration Tomorrow.

Final details of the first annual Montgomery County Fire Day to be held tomorrow at the Rockville Fair Grounds, were announced last night by J. Fred Imirie, chairman of the committee of fire chiefs in charge of the arrangements.

The affair will begin at noon with a parade of visiting firemen from Virginia and Maryland and other organizations, followed by an afternoon of athletic contests and hook-up tests.

Entries for the parade and contests have far exceeded the hopes of the committee, and indications are that the affair will be one of the most pretentious in the history of the county.

61 Pieces in Line.

Approximately 61 pieces of apparatus will be entered in the parade by Montgomery County volunteer fire departments alone. Nearly 30 companies from Maryland and Virginia, outside the county, have notified the committee they will be on hand and six drum corps and bands will be in line with several others planning to arrive at the fair grounds in time for music contests. Six silver batons have been donated for prizes in this section by Mrs. Charlotte B. Randall, who also will have charge of the first aid station on the grounds.

Other companies which arrive for the parade, but which have not been listed by reason of failure to notify the secretary, will fall in at the end of the Maryland or Virginia division in which they belong.

Chief among the prizes at the contests will be the Chief's Cup, as first prize, and the Ahrens-Fox Cup, second, in the hook-up contest open only to Montgomery County firemen; the Washington Post Cup for the free-for-all woman's auxiliary hook-up contest; the Livingston Cup for a free-for-all hook-up contest, and a mine rescue safety kit for the rescue squad contest.

Arlington Group Hears Candidates

Nine Seeking Posts on Board Speak at Lyon Park.

Nine of the 51 candidates seeking election to the Arlington County board of five outlined their policies at a political meeting last night held under the auspices of the Lyon Park Citizens Association in the community house.

Summing up the need for a strictly business administration, Lyman M. Kelley, of Clarendon, said the county board should function as a board of directors of a large corporation, under the direction of men of business ability.

Freeland F. Chew, of Lyon Village, declared that he did not consider that the element of politics should enter into the selection of members on the board. Other speakers were Hayy A. Fellows, Albert H. Cohen, L. C. Lloyd, G. Frank Allwine, John C. Gall and Robert E. Plymale.

Virginia Manufacturers Open Convention Today

Virginia Beach, Va., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Preparatory to the opening tomorrow of the annual meeting of the Virginia Manufacturers Association, committees of the organization met tonight to consider problems in taxation, workmen's compensation, stream pollution, safety in industry and traffic.

It is announced that a discussion of the State's finances and taxation will be one of the most important matters of business to come before the convention. State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett will lead the discussion.

Riverdale Will Have Patrol.

In an attempt to reduce accidents among pupils of the Riverdale School, a schoolboy patrol is being organized. It will consist of a captain, a lieutenant, and eight privates, who will look out for the children at nearby intersections, including the Baltimore & Ohio grade crossing. Teachers are cooperating by giving lectures to the children on traffic precautions.

The dinner will be prepared and served by the women of the Oakton School League.

Shreve will read a paper on Edgar Allan Poe and his works. The principal speaker will be the president, Mrs. Joseph L. Crupper, who will tell of her recent European trip.

The Rev. Arthur L. Ribble, pastor of the Episcopal Church at White Post, Clarke County, Va., has accepted the pastorate of the St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at Herndon, Va. It is understood he will assume his duties in Herndon next week. He succeeds the Rev. Alexander Galt, who resigned on October 1, and who is now making his home at Virginia Beach, Va. Mr. Galt resigned from the ministry because of ill health.

Engineers of the State Highway Commission are engaged in making a survey of the Lee Highway at West Falls Church, Va. It is believed the survey is being made in anticipation of the commission's meeting in December when the program of work for the year will be made. This section of the Lee Highway will bear the brunt of the traffic of the Lee Boulevard and it is believed it will be widened in the near future.

The Northern Virginia Past Matrons and Patrons Association of the Order of Eastern Star will meet this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Oliver on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike at Andrew Chapel, Va. Mrs. Oliver is president of the association. The Harmony Chapter of Eastern Star of Vienna will act as host.

Hyattsville Authorizes $120,000 Bond Issue

To finance completed and contemplated street construction in Hyattsville the town council has authorized a bond issue of $120,000, which will be sold to the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co.

The town owes about $75,000 for work already completed, and the building program now under way will cost about $45,000 more. The bonds will be redeemed semiannually over a period of ten years, under the provisions of the new road law. Formerly, cost of street improvements assessed against property owners was due when the work was finished. Under the new law, the owners may pay the assessment in semiannual installments over a period of ten years, the money from these installments retiring the bonds.

Drain Payments are Withheld.

Finding that construction of drains in the neighborhood of Garfield and Jackson avenues was not done in accordance with the specifications, the Riverdale town council has refused to pay the contractor until a part of the work is rebuilt. Parts of the paving on Madison and Cecil avenues also will have to be rebuilt to specifications before payment will be made, the council decided.

Sorority Chapter Elects.

Miss Dorothy Bates was elected president of the Gamma Rho Sorority at its annual meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. Monroe H. Stockett, Lyon Village. Other officers are: Miss Ruth Bradshaw, vice president; Miss Katherine Wise, secretary, and Miss Pauline Laycock, treasurer.

Alexandria Board To Ask New School

Group Will Meet Monday to Discuss Survey of State Educators.

The Alexandria city school board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening to discuss the survey recently made by three Virginia educators and to adopt certain recommendations, and will then ask the city council to meet in a joint conference to consider further the report. It is expected that Monday the school board will formally request the city council to erect a new high school building, in accordance with one of the recommendations of the three educators.

Reports submitted by Supt. R. C. Bowton at the board meeting Wednesday indicated that more school room is needed at the George Mason High School.

Chairman Urban S. Lambert reported that remodeling of the frame building on Mount Vernon avenue, Potomac, has been completed, and the building will be occupied early next week. It was announced that the terms of Mrs. John H. Abraham and Mrs. Neta H. Broaddus will expire December 1. Their successors will be elected by the city council.

County Court May Have Loudspeaker

Poor Acoustics in Prince Georges Lead to Purchase on 30-Day Trial.

An amplifying system will be installed in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court room if the manufacturers will agree to allow the county a 30-day trial.

A proposal to buy the system was the first important question to split the board along party lines. Frank Small, jr., and George N. Bowen, both Republicans, voted against it, but the voices of Walter M. Grimes, O. W. Phair and Robert E. Brown were sufficient to carry the project.

Judge Joseph C. Mattingly is to decide whether or not the installation is satisfactory. The plan was devised by the commissioners after frequent protests that the acoustic properties of the court room were not good enough for even the jury to hear all the testimony.

Postoffice at Fairfax Belies 'So-Called' Slump

Miss Ludema Sayre, postmistress of the Town of Fairfax, Va., in summing up her quarterly report finds that in spite of the so-called depression, the people of the section served by the Fairfax postoffice apparently have not been hard-pressed for cash.

During the past three months, ended September 30, Miss Sayre reports that the office issued 1,672 money orders, totaling $9,844.68, which, with fees of $126.81, brought the entire expenditure to a grand total of $9,971.49. During the same period $1,631.43 worth of stamps were sold and the office cashed money orders amounting to $12,861.58.

Mass Meetings are Planned.

The first of a series of political mass meetings to be held under the auspices of the Cherrydale Citizens Association in the Cherrydale firemen's hall will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The speakers will be candidates for sheriff: Howard B. Fields, who seeks his third term; A. C. Clements, Carl A. Schultze, Z. O. Kines and Edward Duncan.

The Maryland State Roads Commission is asked to proceed at once with construction of one section of Piney Branch road extension from the District line through Takoma Park, Md., and into Montgomery County. Plans for the project have been forwarded to the State Roads Commission by County Engineer Harry B. Shew.

ACACIA MUTUAL LIFE INCREASES BUSINESS

Volume of Policies Rising Weekly; Compares With Prosperous Times.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Revealing an important fundamental improvement, Acacia Mutual Life Association reported yesterday that the volume of its written business for the week ended October 5, is at a rate which compares very favorably with the period of inflation several years ago.

In making public the figure, $1,250,000, William Montgomery, president of Acacia, explained that for the past several months the week-by-week volume of written business has been showing a steady gain. At the present time, President Montgomery reveals, Acacia's volume is at a rate which mantains the high yearly level set during the period of great national economic development.

"We believe the record now being established by the Acacia Mutual Life Association is a most significant index," Mr. Montgomery declared. "And it is particularly so when viewed side by side with our record of conservation. In other words, while we are writing a volume which is at a rate comparing splendidly with that made in the period of greatest national prosperity, we find that our diligent efforts to reduce lapsation are meeting with distinct success.

"It is very satisfying to us, of course, to see our volume of written business move steadily forward, but it is perhaps even more encouraging, and at least equally so, to note that Acacia's consistent conservation policy is bearing such important fruit at this time.

"On the basis of present new business written, and the steady decline in the volume of lapses, we believe that an optimistic and confident outlook is amply justified."

Significant figures in connection with the well-known Acacia Club also were released by Mr. Montgomery. He stated that during the last quarter more than 1,000 persons visited the club, which is located in the home office building here. The visitors came from 33 States, the Canal Zone, Nicaragua, South Africa and elsewhere. The last quarter attendance showed an increase of 22 per cent over the same period in 1930. Since its dedication in 1928, Mr. Montgomery said more than 55,000 persons have joined the club.

The Acacia Club, an innovation in insurance circles, not only puts its members in touch with suitable places to stop and dine, but also furnishes information for sightseeing and touring, furnishes road maps, makes train reservations and arranges for bus and airplane accommodations.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FOR fear that the suggestion, if made now, might be too far in advance of the event to be remembered, I shall probably repeat many times between now and then that when James B. Pond presents Maurice Browne in a single performance of Paul Raynal's famous war play, "The Unknown Warrior," in the Belasco Theater the night of Sunday, October 25, Washington lovers of the best in drama will be afforded one of the treats of the season.

I am led to this conclusion not so much by the noteworthy past history of the play, as by Mr. Browne's brief synopsis of its thematic trend and the author's intended symbolism, confided to the Capital's dramatic editors yesterday during the course of a delightful luncheon spread by Mr. L. Stoddard Taylor, manager of the Belasco, in the garden of the Carlton Hotel, at which Mr. James B. Fagan, author of "The Improper Duchess," now at the Belasco, also was a guest.

While there are only three characters concerned in the action of "The Unknown Warrior," as Mr. Browne outlines them, they are tremendously vital and interesting figures, reflecting three antagonistic reactions to the bitter stress of war, finally harmonized by a succession of natural and intensely human developments. Mr. Browne characterizes the play as a "magnanimous" drama of great forcefulness and charm. It would seem to be all of that.

Mr. Browne's own life in the theater, by the way, is as romantic as anything even the most imaginative of playwrights might concoct. He was for eighteen years a resident of this country and during much of that time devoted his entire resources to the development of the little theater movement.

It is casually mentioned as one of the expected things in so experimental an enterprise that when Glenn Hunter years ago insisted upon a guaranteed salary of $10 a week from the Chicago Little Theater, then under Mr. Browne's direction, his services, perforce, had to be sacrificed to the inescapable economic fact that the Chicago Little Theater at that time was not in a position to guarantee anybody so munificent a sum as $10 a week!

Since that day Mr. Browne has become the owner of two successful playhouses in London's West End and as the producer of R. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End," at one time had fourteen English-speaking companies on tour simultaneously in that peerless play of war's terrifying toll. He is the producer also of Mr. Fagan's "The Improper Duchess," which has been running eight consecutive months in London and is now being revamped for a similar career of prosperity on Broadway.

And this is where Mr. Fagan comes in.

Conscious from long association with audiences in this country that the American reaction is not always identical with London's to certain dramatic situations, Mr. Fagan is virtually rewriting the first act to the "Duchess" to overcome what were deemed faults in his script by the Tuesday reviews of the play's initial performance in Washington.

Mr. Fagan, a charming and a witty gentlemen, incidentally, does not denominate the opinions of the local critics "reviews." His contention is that they were requiems!

However, that is apart from the fact that from all report, "The Improper Duchess" is already a much better play than it was last Monday evening and bids fair to undergo still further improvement as time goes on.

Mr. Fagan is, of course, at once recalled by the literate as author of that deft and delightful bit of dramaturgy, "And So to Bed," but most of us about the table yesterday, including Mr. Browne himself, a close associate, had wholly lost sight of the fact that Mr. Fagan also had written "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," the last successful stage vehicle in which Douglas Fairbanks appeared before launching himself upon the movie career that has made him overlord of the cinema.

Mr. Fagan is not one who drives himself through an arduous and arbitrary campaign of rigidly scheduled writing. He confesses that he was startled to realize when the time to produce the "Duchess" was at hand that five years had elapsed since the completion of "And So to Bed." He has another play in process of preparation which he expects to be ready within the next six months.

When he writes, the glamour of the ages hovers over Mr. Fagan. His home in England is a nine-room cottage that was built in the year 1390 as one of the minor buildings of an extensive monastic establishment. It was slightly remodeled in the Elizabethan period and comprehensively "modernized" during the reign of Queen Anne! In the large view, it is today practically as it was built five and a half centuries ago!

And we are thinking of tearing down the District Building—that archaic marble pile that has been crumbling to pieces ever since 1905!

Both Mr. Fagan, author, and Mr. Browne, producer, are frank in their admission that some of the speeches in "The Improper Duchess" have been softened for the benefit of sensitive American ears. The total number they estimated not to exceed a half dozen; the number of lines changed, not over six. Some of these deletions and substitutions Mr. Browne detailed to me—I was so fortunate as to be seated next him—and I am by no means convinced that it would not have been just as well to have left the script untampered with in this particular regard. We can stand having a bit of fun poked at us from time to time in such friendly fashion as Mr. Fagan does it.

For Miss Bordoni, her patience and her fine spirit of cooperation in these early formative days of shaping a potential hit, both of these kindly gentlemen have only words of warmest appreciation. They esteem her as an artiste of generous and considerate impulses and splendid capabilities. I do not recall that there was any argument about it.

And so to bed!

REDUCTION IS SHOWN IN U. S. GOLD HOARD

Movement Long Hoped For by Economists Now Believed Under Way.

(United Press.)

A real outward movement of some of the United States' huge gold hoard appears in prospect.

The still massive gold supply has been depleted by $373,000,000 in the last three weeks. It has been reduced from its record peak of $5,015,000,000 on September 17 to $4,642,000,000 yesterday, the Federal Reserve Board reported.

This is the largest decrease in such a short period for many months, and may represent the beginning of an adjustment for which economists have hoped and which Government officials on both sides of the Atlantic have tried to achieve by artificial measures.

Some of the reduction represents the purchase of gold by foreign nations and ear-marked to their account here, without any actual transfer of the bullion.

Raising of the Bank of England rate recently to 6 per cent, simultaneously with suspension of the gold standard, may be a factor in the outward movement by attracting gold to that area. Increase of rates usually reacts in that way.

For the first time since 1926, the United States had an "unfavorable" balance of trade in August, with purchases from foreign nations exceeding sales of American goods to them. This, if continued, would draw gold from the United States to adjust the balance of payments.

The depletion of Great Britain's gold reserves, which finally forced her to suspend the gold standard, was due largely to the continued balance against her, which was contributed to by an actual flight of capital to other countries.

Manchester Lord Mayor Records Faith in England

Country "By No Means Down and Out;" Dignitary, Here on Good-Will Trip, to Meet President Today After Call at British Embassy.

"You can take it from me, England is by no means down and out."

His Lordship George Frank Titt, Lord Mayor of Manchester, England, who arived in Washington yesterday on a brief diplomatic mission, was replying informally to a formal question.

It was the informality of this man, who Wednesday awed New Yorkers with his robes of office and mace, that impressed the reporter who interviewed him last night in the lobby of the Mayflower Hotel.

Attired in a dark gray traveling suit, comfortable black shoes and a light felt hat, he sat and advocated with candor his views on things in general, barring only politics.

"A lord mayor, though he might be the leader of his party, loses his political identity on election to office," he explained. "I am not permitted to have any partisan views."

And so his lordship, while emphatically confident that England will weather the social and economic storms that beset her, declined to discuss the dole or problems of the coalition government.

"I will tell you about it in three weeks," said the man who in civil life is an official of the Transport and General Workers Union. "I go out of office then."

He volunteered, however, that he was advised before he left Manchester, cotton exporting center of the world, that conditions in the cotton industry are evidencing improvement.

The lord mayor, who did not meet Mayor Walker, of New York, on his recent visit to England, was impressed Wednesday with the "dignity" and "statesmanlike" address, of the Manhattan executive, he said.

He said he saw no ground for the reported fear of Mahatma Gandhi to come to America, because he might be considered a "spectacle." Certainly he experienced no such feeling when he arrived in New York, he said. He described the New York welcome as "generous."

He said he had not read President Hoover's plan for credit relief.

"There is so much material in your American newspapers," he commented.

While admitting he found a striking difference between English and American journals, chiefly in headlines and volume of news, he said he found no profound difference between the Americans and English themselves.

"After all, we come from a common stock," he added.

Accompanied by the lady mayoress, Alice McLenon Titt, he will call at the British Embassy this morning and later both will be received by President Hoover. Today he will be attired not in informal traveling suit, but high hat and long-tailed coat.

Tomorrow he will leave on a good-will visit to the two Manchesters in New England, visiting Manchester, N. H., on October 12, and Manchester, Conn., on October 13. He said his purpose in visiting America is largely "sentimental," a gesture of friendship from England to the United States. He is the first Lord Mayor of Manchester to come to America during his term of office.

American Business Club Officers Are Selected

Dr. Edward Morse Pickford was elected president of the Washington American Business Club at a luncheon held Wednesday at the Racquet Club. Other officers elected were Leroy J. McGarty, first vice president; Dr. William Paul Hoffman, second vice president; George O. Schweinhaut, treasurer, and Rodger D. Gessford and Howard E. Severe, secretaries. Dr. W. D. Monroe, Samuel A. Syme, Dr. Pickford, Mr. McCarty, Horace Browning, Dr. Hoffman, Mr. Schweinhaut, Irving S. Parker, Mr. Gessford and Mr. Severe comprise the new board of governors.

After the election plans for the national convention of American Business Clubs, which is to be held in Washington next June, were discussed. Samuel Syme was appointed as general convention chairman. It is estimated that 500 delegates will attend the convention.

Arts Club Addressed On Bicentennial Plans

The Arts Club of Washington had as its speaker last night Representative Sol Bloom of New York, director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, who spoke on the progress being made in preparations for the bicentennial celebration next year.

Representative Bloom spoke particularly of reproduction of the Houdon bust, official bicentennial portrait, made from a life cast of Washington by Gilbert Stuart. A copy of this bust should adorn every schoolroom in the United States, he stated.

NEXT WAR'S HORROR IS DRAWN BY SMUTS

Soldier and Statesman Sees Disarmament as World's Only Salvation.

Sheffield, England, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—A war unlike any conflict in the past was predicted by Gen. Jan C. Smuts, soldier and statesman, in a speech at Sheffield University tonight, unless the world soon establishes a "disarmed peace."

"Armed peace led to the World War," he said. "Would it had ended there. But the armed peace continues in an aggravated form and as long as it continues mankind seems to be marching to some horrible doom."

Gen. Smuts, who is president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, made his statements in the Basil Hicks Memorial address in memory of a son of the university's vice chancellor, who was killed in the World War.

War to Destroy Mankind.

"In the World War we saw only the beginning of the vast difference which science is making in human affairs," Gen. Smuts said. "In the next great war, if that is ever allowed to occur, science will, like some angry, outraged diety, go far to destroy mankind itself. The next war will be unlike anything which has been called war in the past.

"The time-honored name of war would not properly apply to it. It will pay scant attention to armies and navies or to the other paraphernalia of war. It will go straight for the populations, and for the immense urban aggregations which will be its sure target.

No Escape From Death Pall.

"It will fight with new and unheard-of chemical and biological weapons. It will cover the fair land and the great cities with poison and disease germs. It will saturate vast areas with a deadly atmosphere.

"There will be no escape, not even for the statesmen and the war-makers, and a pall of death will rest over all. Even now the laboratories of three continents are busy with their deadly researches.

"And in due course some lunatic will press the button and the flower of the human race will be trapped and destroyed.

"There is still a way of escape, but it lies along the arduous path of disarmament. Surely sufficient has been said to show why we should without further delay take to that path."

Lodge Leader Crash Victim.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 8 (A. P.).—Lucien J. Eastin, 63, former grand sire of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and a prominent St. Joseph attorney, was killed today in an automobile accident between St. Joseph and Kansas City.

Chic Isn't a Matter of Inches If You Buy Your Clothes in Smart, Smaller Sizes

We've decided that there's no earthly reason why, just because you may be a little shorter than the "dressmaker" model, you should wear frocks that are unbecoming, uninteresting and which have been thrown completely out of line with excess alterations! Sizes 12½ to 24½.

The slenderizing lines and graceful jabot collar will give height to the "little woman" .. $16.50.

Transparent velvet fashions this lovely model, bead trimming for the "little woman" .. $16.50.

Isn't it youthful? It is one of the new "little missie" models of sheer wool crepe .... $16.50.

STOCK PRICES GAIN ON TRADE AID PLANS

General Advance Averages 6.6 Points; Steel Joins Industrial Rise.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Strong financial markets today reflected Nation-wide approval of measures now under way for the restoration of confidence.

Stocks rallied impressively as bankers spend the $500,000,000 credit corporation toward completion. Trading in most directions was quiet until late in the business day, then it picked up substantially and all markets closed strong.

The Standard Statistics-Associated Press stock exchange average rose 6.6 points, to 84.3, contrasting with Monday's low of 70. There was no carry-over of Wednesday's relapse; buyers appeared to be waiting for stocks at even slightly lower levels, and whenever the advance paused during the earlier hours new support was forthcoming. Transactions totaled 2,867,930 shares.

Rise Well Distributed.

The rise in shares was well distributed. Auburn celebrated with a 22-point sprint. American Telephone jumped 7¾, United States Steel 5½, American Can 5⅜, General Electric 3½, Westinghouse 4½, General Motors 2¾, Woolworth 4⅜, Du Pont 6, New York Central 6⅜, Atchison 5½, Norfolk & Western 6, Southern Pacific 6½, Union Pacific 6⅞, Consolidated Gas and North American 5 each, American Tobacco B 6¼, Allied Chemical 7½, Bethlehem Steel 2⅞, Sears-Roebuck 2¼ and Standard Oil of New Jersey 2⅝.

Bankers expressed a hope that the outflow of gold, which they welcome, would not be interrupted by the rate rise. They saw no reason why it should be since most foreign rates are higher than ours and the domestic money market situation is still most favorable. One of the aims of successive rate reductions here was the discouragement of further gold imports and the tide has at last definitely turned.

The weekly reserve statement disclosed another large expansion in outstanding credit through the medium of bill purchases and discounts, reflecting to a considerable extent the gold movement. In other words, the system again acted to offset the loss of gold.

Brokers' Loans Drop.

Another surprise was the drop of $171,000,000 in brokers' loans, the largest decrease in some time. It would appear that the stock market had been put as nearly on a straight cash basis as is possible.

The strong stock market, a smaller German crop estimate and reports that Russia was withdrawing offers to Europe sent wheat up 2¼ to 2⅝ cents net. Corn's gains ranged from 1⅞ to 2¼, reflecting unfavorable weather for farm work and small receipts, as well as the general improvement in sentiment. Cotton had a brief reaction on the crop estimate, but closed 40 to 50 cents higher.

Foreign exchanges were mixed and generally showed narrow movements. Sterling was about steady, although it closed half a cent off after a 2-cent advance. The final rate was $3.85⅛.

Bank Rate Increased.

The increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate to 2½ per cent from 1½ took Wall street by surprise. It was the first rise since August, 1929, when the central banks were endeavoring to curb stock speculation.

In commenting on the step bankers pointed out that open market money rates had been firming in recent weeks and that the redlscount figure had been artifically low for many months. There is no desire, it was emphasized, to harden money, but it was felt that commercial banks would be more ready to lend.

The extreme ease of money for the past year has been unsuccessful in its chief purpose, aiding the bond market, but many adverse and unforeseen factors entered into that situation to defeat the end in view.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Broader demand, largely inspired by decrease of Russian wheat exports and by curtailment of estimates of Germany's wheat yield, jerked all grains upward today. Reported efforts to cancel vessel charters for grain shipments from Russia led to deductions that North American wheat would hereafter be bought more freely for overseas. Besides, primary receipts of domestic wheat today were the smallest in a long while.

Wheat closed 2¼ to 2⅝ cents higher, corn 2 to 2⅜ advanced, oats ¾ to 1⅛ up, and provisions at a shade to 10 cents gain.

Contrary to all recent experience buying power augmented on price advances in grains today, and another novel development was dearth of selling pressure on bulges. Stock market gains and Liverpool reports of a better milling call for wheat were contributing bullish factors. The sharpest upturns in wheat values, however, came after reports apparently confirming previous advices that Russia had a disappointing spring wheat crop, and would possess much less wheat than last year for shipment abroad.

Commercial estimates of Germany's 1931 wheat crop were 16,000,000 bushels smaller than recent official estimates, and German rye production was reported much below last year's total. Canadian reports indicated that wheat stocks on farms and in transit were about 49,000,000 bushels less than was the case a year ago. All of these factors were considered likely to create a changed situation in Europe as to wheat buying, especially as estimates of crops not alone in Germany but in various other transatlantic countries have been materially pared down.

Corn and oats rose chiefly in response to wheat strength. Aggressive buying of corn was done for a leading professional trader, despite big receipts of corn here, 309 cars compared with 87 a year ago.

Provisions advanced owing to sympathy with hog values and with grains.

BOND PRICES RALLY DESPITE EARLY DROP

Selected List Closes Higher, With Some Issues Making Large Advances.

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The bond market continued to advance today, although a moderate reactionary tendency appeared in the forenoon.

Closing prices were generally higher than on Wednesday. The average price of 60 corporate bonds, consisting of 20 issues each of Public Utility, Railroad and Industrial Loans, was 82.8, a net gain of 7-10 of a point.

The higher average price may not convey a correct impression of the width of many of the gains. Net advances of 1 to 5 points were common throughout the list and a few were even larger.

Active bonds, impressive in number and diversification, to close with net gains ranging upward from 2 points were: St. Paul 5s of 1975, Rock Island 4s of 1934, Erie 5s of 1967, several interborough issues, Missouri Pacific general 4s and several of the 5s, New York Central new 4½s, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis series C 4½s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s of 1978 and series A 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s of 1969 and of 1981, Texas Corporation 5s, Youngstown Sheet & Tube series A and B 5s and Chile Mortgage Bank Loans.

Many other issues scored wide gains also on a few sales and fractional gains were scattered over the list. Railroad loans were generally stronger than other groups. United States Government obligations were moderately active and closed firm.

The upturn in the market was a continuation of the movement started yesterday in response to the plans of President Hoover to stabilize domestic banking conditions. Bankers were gratified that the advance continued today and reiterated that the recent weakness in bonds has been an important and difficult feature of the depression. Any sustained advance in bonds of itself would be of considerable assistance in stabilizing banking conditions.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The curb market rallied strongly today, reserving its best performance for the last hour after a slow upward movement during the earlier trading. Sales approximated 600,000 shares, which equaled yesterday's volume.

Utilities gave a good account of themselves, especially during the late advance. Several specialties were buoyant and the greatly improved tone was also reflected in the oils.

Electric Bond & Share offered strong leadership, gaining 3¼ points net. American Gas up 4¼. Commonwealth Edison up 15¼. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore up 7, and United Light A up 3, were other impressive performers among the power and light holding company issues.

Standard Oil of Indiana climbed 2¾ to 20¾ and closed at the top. Gulf Oil jumped 5½ and Standard of Kentucky and Ohio 1¼ and Humble 1 to more than 2. Cities Service rallied ⅞.

In the specialties, Singer Manufacturing advanced nearly 25 points and Great Atlantic & Pacific 14, both on transactions involving comparatively few shares. Dresser A and B, Ford of Canada A, Ford Ltd., Northern Pipe, Swift and A. O. Smith were well supported. Aluminum of America soared 8¾ and Babcock & Wilcox 7½.

Investment trust common stocks rallied with other securities. United Founders improved a full point and Insull slightly more. The second preferred of the latter was weak, losing about 30 points.

DERRINGER TO FACE EARNSHAW IN SIXTH GAME TODAY; ST. LOUIS FANS WILDLY ACCLAIM MARTIN AND CARDS

A'S RELY ON BIG RIGHT-HANDER IN LAST-DITCH STAND IN SERIES; ADMIRING CROWD MOBS MARTIN

"Can Hit Any Pitcher That Ever Lived," Says Hero.

Street Retains Faith in Mound Rookie Who Lost Opener.

Today's game between the Athletics and Cardinals will be reproduced on The Post's magnetic scoreboard, beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Another "we"—"Pepper" Martin and the St. Louis Cardinals—came today to a heroic welcome as the "Spirit of St. Louis" once more rode along the banks of the Mississippi.

At least 2,000 of the most rabid faithful stormed the railroad terminal, shouting, mauling, surging in to get their hands on the simple youngster who almost single-handed has routed the world champion Philadelphia Athletics to give the Cardinals a 3 to 2 lead in games and lift a National League champion to within one game of the first world series conquest for that circuit in five years.

They will see him tomorrow, these riotous rooters, eagerly taking his cut against the sweeping slants of "Big Jarge" Earnshaw in the sixth game at Sportsman's Park, opening of the final act of one of the most thrilling baseball dramas of all times. But they could not wait to express their delight at the feats of the youthful hitting and base running dynamo, a demoralizing .667 hitter in his first world series.

The moment the special train of the Cardinals drew into the station here at 12:45 p. m. (C.S.T.), after a swift run from Philadelphia, Martin's particularly brilliant playground, the faithful burst through the guarding lines and swarmed over the platform.

Meek and mild for the first time since the series opened, grinning sheepishly, "Pepper" stepped down into the throng that yelled his name, patted his shoulders until his big gray sombrero kept slipping down over his eyes, and made an effort to get him up on their shoulders for a parade of triumph.

Hangs to Arm Of Wife.

Then it was that "Pepper" quailed, perhaps for the first time in his life, and he grabbed the arm of Mrs. "Pepper" Martin and hung on. The leaders seemed to debate for a moment the possibility of hoisting them both into the air, but discretion prevailed, and the greatest baseball hero since Babe Ruth was in his prime was allowed to escort his wife through cheering lines to a taxicab.

Gabby Street, the old sergeant of the Cards, sat in a taxicab at the station exit and grinned while he puffed his briar pipe and watched the rest of his stars, including left-handed Wild Bill Hallahan and the pugnacious spitballer, Burleigh Grimes, march through the lane that kept crying:

"There's Martin? Lemme see Martin. Which one's Martin? He's the guy we want to see."

Street Chooses Derringer.

Manager Street took his ball club out to Sportsman's Park at 3 p. m. to practice hitting and fielding in the home environment. He has chosen big Paul Derringer, the giant rookie from the Kentucky hills who lost the opening game of the series to Lefty Grove here, as his starting pitcher tomorrow.

"I still have absolute confidence in Paul," he said. "I thought he'd win two games for me in this series, and I still think he'll get one of them. If Earnshaw should happen to have another great two-hit game in his right arm, then I'll have Burleigh Grimes ready to pitch the seventh game."

Not since the Cardinals won their first pennant in 1926 and Charles Lindbergh brought the original "Spirit of St. Louis" back here a year later has the Missouri metropolis been in such a state of excitement. The Cardinals, needing but one game for the championship, conquerors of both the great Robert Moses Grove and the even greater Earnshaw in the course of the "Pepper" Martin three-ringed circus, are 7-to-10 favorites as they go into the climax struggle.

A's Too Late for Practice.

The world champion Athletics, their crown slipping after a reign of two straight years, all but Al Simmons among their big guns silenced by the superlative pitching of Grimes and Hallahan, arrived three hours after the Cardinals, too late to practice.

There was no discouragement in the champions' fold. With Earnshaw, already credited with a two-hit shutout that would have been the first no-hit game in the history of world series conflict if he could but have suppressed Martin, in condition to duplicate Hallahan's feat of winning two games, the A's feel tomorrow's game already is won.

But undermining at all times their confidence in their own predictions is the rampaging figure of Martin, who already has equaled the world series record for hits with twelve, four of them doubles, one a home run, for a total of nineteen bases; stolen four bases, driven in five runs, scored five himself, and in general personally ruined the Athletics. Furthermore, they still do not know how to pitch to him. The only thing they have not tried is bases on balls.

And Martin has this final word for his constitutents, now amounting to an entire Nation of baseball fans:

"I'll be in there swinging. I can hit any pitcher that ever lived."

Latest About Martin: Bags Rabbits on Foot

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Texas League has its own legends about the amazing speed of Pepper Martin, hero of the world series, and one of the best is told by Roy Moore, teammate of Pepper on the 1929 Houston Club.

"Old Pepper goes out on the prairie and scares up a bunch of rabbits," Moore explained, in recounting Martin's prowess as a hunter.

"He runs along with these rabbits. He reaches down and feels the sides of these rabbits.

"If the rabbit is a bit thin, he lets him go, and takes out after another one, but if the rabbit is nice and fat, old Pepper picks him up and puts him in his bag."

SIX RECORDS MAY GO TO MARTIN

Macks Have Played Errorless Ball for Five Games.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Pepper Martin has a good chance of cracking six world series records.

The rollicking rookie of the Cardinals already has equaled two all-time series marks by running his total of hits up to twelve and driving in four runs, in the fifth game.

Buck Herzog, Joe Jackson and Sam Rice shared the total-hit record previously. Those who have driven in four runs in a single game included Elmer Smith, who did it with the bases full for Cleveland in 1920; also Goose Goslin, Babe Ruth, Lester Bell and Al Simmons.

Martin also is within gunshot of four other series records as a result of accumulating four stolen bases, four doubles, five extra-base hits altogether and totaling nineteen bases for all his safe blows.

The base-stealing record of six was set in 1907 by Jim Slagle, of the Chicago Cubs. Chick Hafey, of the Cardinals, hit five doubles in 1930 for a new mark. Babe Ruth, in 1928, hit six extra-base blows and totaled 22 bases for records.

The Cardinal captain, Frankie Frisch, has another chance this series to tie Babe Ruth's achievement of hitting .300 or better in five world championships. Frisch was at or above this mark four years in a row when he played with the Giants of 1921-22-23-24. Twice before with the Cardinals his batting fell off. He hit only .231 in 1928 and .208 last year. His mark for the present series now is exactly .300.

The Athletics have broken defensive records anyway, by playing errorless ball for five successive games. The best previous mark was four straight without an error, by the 1918 Red Sox.

The A's total also equals the mark of the Giants, who had five errorless games altogether in the 1921 series with the Yankees. Together, the A's and Cards, with eight errorless contests, have tied the combined best defensive efforts of the Yankees and Giants in 1921.

Notre Dame Defense Dissatisfies Anderson

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Dissatisfied with the defensive play of his linesmen, Coach "Hunk" Anderson today took each player in the forward wall aside for personal instruction. Results were good and he sent the team through a two-hour dummy scrimmage.

Emmett Murphy apparently has won the quarter-back post and was expected to start against Northwestern Saturday, assisted in the backfield by Schwartz, Banas and Sheeketski.

Spirit ran high on the Notre Dame campus tonight. Virtually every student on the campus has bought a ticket for the big game at Soldier Field along Chicago's lake front and arrangements have been completed to run several special trains.

Simmons Is Certain Macks Can Defeat Derringer Again.

Cochrane, in Tribute to Martin, Doubts He Can Be Halted.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics—the same White Elephants upon which Pepper Martin has been riding herd—returned to St. Louis late today, tempers aroused and prepared to make a last-ditch stand in defense of their title as world champions.

Crowds jeered them good naturedly in the railroad yards and at the station, demanding to know what the Athletics are going to do about Martin, if anything. There was not much demonstration otherwise, however, as Connie Mack and his players were hustled into taxicabs and driven to their hotel.

Upon the powerful right arm of George Earnshaw the Athletics pin their hopes for capturing the sixth game of the world series tomorrow. Big George is ready. After looking the pitcher over at breakfast, one of the Negro waiters, satisfied he had discovered an omen, confided:

"Boss, did you notice blood in dat Big George's eye? Sho' means trouble fo' dem Cardinals tomorrow."

May Also Pitch Seventh Game If Necessary.

If Earnshaw wins and thereby squares the series, forcing the issue to a seventh and final game Saturday, there is the outside chance that Manager Mack may send the big right-hander right back at Martin and the rest of the National Leaguers. The likelihood, however, is that if there is a seventh battle, Lefty Grove will be the starting selection.

With Earnshaw in the box, the Athletics are favorites to win tomorrow, even among St. Louis wagering men.

The Athletics appeared better satisfied to hear that they would oppose Paul Derringer, instead of Burleigh Grimes, in the next contest.

"Derringer is a great youngster, but we beat him easily the last time and I'm sure we can repeat," declared Al Simmons, who has been doing most of the heavy slugging for the world champions.

The Athletics have the utmost of confidence in Earnshaw, who has allowed the Cardinals only eight hits in two games this year and held them scoreless in 38 out of 42 innings against them in two years. They also believe Grove is certain to show a big improvement, if he gets another chance.

Cochrane in Tribute To Martin.

They are not so sure they can stop Martin. As Mickey Cochrane expressed it:

"We never thought he could keep it up this long, so why try to figure he's through now? We have thrown everything at him so far except the bat bag and he has plastered it."

Manager Mack is keeping his own counsel as to plans for prolonging the battle. The general belief among the camp followers is that the benching of Bishop and Haas, Wednesday, was a temporary move. The regulars are expected to start tomorrow. If the tide doesn't turn quickly in favor of the Mackmen, however, it will not be surprising to see such youngsters as McNair, Cramer and Moore rushed into action. Mack is in no position to conserve his resources if he hopes to crown his career with three straight world championships.

All Louisville Knows How Philadelphia Feels

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Louisville baseball fans can sympathize with Philadelphia supporters. The Martin "cyclone" hit Louisville just a year before it struck the City of Brotherly Love.

Although his batting average for eight games was only .257, "Pepper" Martin was in the midst of every Rochester rally when the Red Wings of the International League won the "little world series" from Louisville of the American Association last year.

He walloped two three-base hits, two doubles and five singles during the series and stole four bases. He scored eight runs.

Louisville was able to win but three games, and when the final contest was over Manager Alan Sothoron, of Louisville, said something about "how could we stop that guy Martin?"

C. U. TO MEET GALLAUDET TODAY

Cardinal Reserves to See Action Against Blues' Eleven.

IN one of the few college football games ever scheduled here on a Friday, Catholic University will play host this afternoon to Gallaudet College in the spacious Brookland stadium, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. It is the only intracity collegiate contest of the 1931 season, what with the rivalries among Catholic, George Washington and American all having been suspended last year.

A distinct favorite to win almost as it pleases, Catholic will send a line-up almost wholly composed of reserves into the game, and a large majority of these players are natives of Washington. In fact, eight Capital lads are named in Coach Bergman's selection to start the game.

Five Capital Youths In C. U. Line-Up.

Five of the Washington group are products of Gonzaga High School; namely, Charley McVean, quarter back, and his brother, Bob, right half back; John Maley and Bill Hepburn, guards, and Danny Pyne, end. The other three are Eastern High School graduates—John Nally, end, and brother Tom, tackle, and Dick Moffett, tackle.

Unless necessity demands it, Coach Bergman will use the occasion to secure an accurate line on his shock troops. He will withhold his regulars. The Catholic University chieftain seeks to build up his reserve strength before the games with North Carolina State and Duquesne.

Gallaudet, missing sorely the great Johnny Ringle, a one-man football team in himself, who left the Florida avenue school last spring, has hardly any hopes of winning the decision.

Monaghan Is Chief Gallaudet Hope.

Bilbo Monaghan, captain and end, is Gallaudet's main reliance in what should be a battle by the underdog to hold the score to respectable figures. Monaghan, an 185-pounder, rugged and high spirited, will cause the Cardinals plenty of trouble when they aim plays at his position.

It was announced last night that high school students presenting their athletic association cards will be admitted to the game upon payment of a nominal charge of 25 cents.

The probable line-ups:

Pirates Release Ens, Manager Since 1929

Pittsburgh, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Jewel Ens, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates since late in the 1929 season, was given his unconditional release by the club today. It was said a new manager would not be announced at this time.

The Pirates finished in fifth place in the National League in both 1930 and 1931, the two full years of Ens' managership. It became known some weeks ago that he would not be retained as the Buccaneer pilot, in which position he succeeded Donie Bush.

MILLS HOPES FOR MUD AT NEW YORK

Soggy Field Would Enhance Chances of G. U. Eleven.

IT will be a sunny day in Tommy Mills' eyes if it rains tomorrow in New York City, where Georgetown in its fourth annual invasion of Yankee Stadium, meets a powerful New York University eleven.

Mills likes fair weather, like you or I, but when his Georgetown team faces a rival as strong as he claims New York University to be, the most welcome contribution Dame Nature could offer him is a wet blanket.

For, according to Mills, Georgetown does not have either the speed or the power to cope with Chick Meehan's club and that the Hilltop's salvation may be found only if the footing is soft. A wet field, as football fans know, never helps the speedier of two elevens.

Admitting the fact that his team is stronger than last year, Mills expresses a fear that the Violet is by comparison twice as strong. His scouts have brought him bad tidings about New York's offense, which has accounted for 119 points thus far in two games without a single point being registered by the opposition.

Soft and slippery footing will materially reduce the effectiveness of New York's attack, as the plays of the Violet are built on sheer speed and strength, which the Georgetown defense, according to Mills, can not stop without aid from outside sources.

G. U. Upset Violets In Rain.

It was a rainy day in 1928 when Georgetown, the underdog, upset New York with a 7—2 victory. Again in 1929 and in 1930 the Hilltop was favored by weather conditions, although last year the mistake of Johnny Scalzi in stepping on the end zone while punting cost Georgetown the decision, 2 to 0.

Georgetown's attack is based on deception, which is unaffected by anything the weather gods can do. Tricky handling of the ball in the backfield and clever shifts of the entire eleven players are the essentials that need be supplied if the Georgetown offense is to succeed.

As Mills views the game, New York University is a decided favorite with a flawless combination of attacking and defensive strength. Only a factor beyond their control, he points out, such as insecure footing or falling rain that makes the ball hard to handle can reduce the Violets to a level where the Hilltoppers can deliver a knockout.

Meehan Drills N. Y. U. On Sloppy Gridiron

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Chick Meehan put his big Violet eleven through another strenuous two-hour workout at Ohio Field today in preparation for N. Y. U.'s first major battle of the season against Georgetown University at the Yankee Stadium Saturday. Meehan had previously arranged for a scrimmage against Johnny Law's Manhattan College gridders this afternoon. But, with the Jaspers playing tomorrow night, Law decided to call it off. A slight drizzle which turned into a miniature cloudburst slowed up the field considerably, but the boys labored their full time.

The N. Y. U. mentor worked his charges against a series of Georgetown plays with the scrub team on the offense. The varsity worked as well as ever with Joe LeMark, Jim Tanguay and Bob and Bill McNamara filling out the back field. About a half-hour was put on punting, passing and drop kicking. LeMark and Bob McNamara worked very smoothly in the aerial attack with Tanguay shining as the best booter. The line took a short drill in fundamentals.

MARYLAND HAS EVEN CHANCE TO WIN OVER NAVY, BYRD BELIEVES

Kirn, Campbell Bear Chief Scoring Hope of Midshipmen.

By JACK ESPEY.

IF you take it on the opinion of Curley Byrd, than whom there is no wiser coach as far as this neck of the woods is concerned, look for a closely contested struggle with one of the breaks of the game producing the decision when Maryland and Navy battle on Mr. Griffith's stadium turf Saturday afternoon.

Nonchalantly settled in a chair of his office at Maryland University and looking anything but worried despite the big occasion he faces, Byrd yesterday discussed the outlook for this classic contest, the piece de resistance of the Capital's finest football program in years and the game which may elevate Maryland to greater heights of prestige than it ever has enjoyed.

In this contest with one of the Nation's big-time teams, Maryland has an even chance to win, said Coach Byrd. And thus the real meat of the discussion was flung upon the scribe's fork, simply and without trimmings.

Maryland's Team Well Balanced.

Nor was there any trace of boastness in Byrd's declaration, for he pointed out some facts that John H. Fan already knew. The established facts that Maryland has a veteran team, a well-balanced attack with plenty of aerial pyrotechnics included, and a capable and dependable kicker in George Chalmers, were recited by the Black and Gold chieftain by way of disposing of "old stuff."

Navy, in Byrd's opinion, is just as strong as it was last year when Bullet Lou Kirn ran 65 yards on the second play to give the Middies a 6-to-0 victory over the Old Liners at Annapolis. The current edition of Naval Academy football, he stated, has some new touches in style, but has absorbed them thoroughly under the direction of the new head coach, Edgar ("Rip") Miller, an exponent of the Notre Dame system. Contrary to a belief that has been gaining popularity of late, Byrd declared that Navy will show no ineffectiveness because of its complete transformation in system. As a matter of fact, Navy has been using Notre Dame tactics in line play for several years, for Miller, during this period, taught Notre Dame style to the Middy forwards while serving under Bill Ingram.

Byrd believes that the team showing the smarter football and proving more alert will gain the decision, if one is reached. A scoreless tie is by no means improbable although it will be unsatisfactory to both sides.

"A break of the game such as a fumble, resulting either in a touchdown or safety, or one surprise play like Navy uncorked last year is likely to carry with it the victory," said the Old Line chieftain.

Byrd anticipates a battle of wits between the opposing quarter backs, who will shoulder tremendous responsibility, for upon their judgment depends in a large measure what their teams gain on attack. With little difference in strength of the lines, the rival signal callers—Woods, for Maryland, and Denny for Navy—will have to ferret out any weaknesses that exist and then hammer the vulnerable spots mercilessly.

Byrd Seeks to Erase Fumbles.

In the past few days Byrd has toiled overtime in trying to eliminate the butter-finger act among his backs. He now feels confident that the fumbling that marked Maryland's games with Washington and Virginia will be conspicuously absent tomorrow afternoon. Should the Old Liners continue that fault they will have no chance to win, said their coach.

Both teams are prepared to fight it out on the ground or in the air. Each has brilliant passers who can lead the attack should the running game prove ineffectual. Shorty Chalmers is the Old Line passing star, while Navy has a capable passer when any one of Campbell, Kirn and Denny is handling the ball.

Maryland's running attack features Ray Poppelman, rugged former Marine, and the Middie's ace in this department is the redoubtable Kirn.

Inasmuch as Kirn was the hero of Navy's 1930 triumph, he doubtless will be watched closely by all present tomorrow, but Maryland, according to Byrd, does not expect to win simply by stopping Kirn.

Chalmers looms as Maryland's outstanding player because it will be up to him to do the Old Line kicking

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BURLY Burleigh Grimes, master of the fading art of spit-ball pitching, gained sweet revenge when he held the Athletics to two hits in the fourth game of the world series and thereby hangs a tale.

Through twelve long months, the obese Grimes, was remembered as the "goat" of the 1930 series, abuse heaped upon him from all quarters for his carelessness that cost the Cardinals the fifth game against the Mackmen last year. It was in that contest that Grimes, angered by the jibes from the Philadelphia bench, failed to pay strict attention to Cochrane at the plate and ultimately walked him, setting the stage for Foxx's home run that won the ball game.

Grimes paused in his pitching to Cochrane long enough to ape the elephantine ears of the Philadelphia catcher by pressing his thumbe to his own ears and wiggling his fingers to denote the unusual proportions of Cochrane's aurical extremities in full view of the 85,000 in the stands. Cochrane's red neck reddened to a bright purple, but Grimes himself was the victim. He failed to regain his excellent control and Cochrane waited him out to draw a walk. When Foxx then slammed his home run, Grimes lost the ball game.

From the start of the series, Grimes had been the pet target of the taunts by the "jockeys" on the Athletics' bench. The razzberry wafted from the Philadelphia dugout every time he stepped to the pitching mound. There was a reason.

Grimes was "ghost writing" for the 1930 series. Two days before the series started there appeared under his by-line a scathing indictment of the American League champions, belittling their team and predicting that the Athletics would fold up against the superior play of the Cardinals. It was a sharp piece of criticism and the Athletics apparently had read it.

They missed no opportunity to remind Grimes of his prediction, especially after the A's had won the first two games of the series. And Grimes returned their taunts as best he could against a team that was clouting the ball all over the lot and otherwise making him eat his words.

But it required a full year to bring out the facts and in the interest of justice they ought to be told. Grimes himself is authority for the story.

"I was the 'goat,'" Grimes relates. "The fellow who wrote the piece for me in the paper was simply too ambitious and put me on the spot. I didn't tell him the Athletics would fold up. He asked me what I thought about the A's hitters and I told him we had just as good hitters in our league. He asked me about Grove and Earnshaw and I told him we had just as good pitchers in the National. I told him I thought we would beat the A's but I didn't disparage them.

"Then he wrote that story under my name.

"I thought it over and decided that there was only one thing to do about it. I felt like telling the A's just how it all came about, but I didn't want to crawl and look like a quitter. I decided that the only thing I could do about it was to let the story stand as it was written and hope that I could go in there and win a couple of ball games. When they started razzing me, I had to give 'em as good as they sent, if I could.

"But after it was all over and the A's won the series in Philadelphia, I went to their dugout and told 'em. I told 'em how I didn't say those things in the first place and I told 'em I always thought they had a great ball team. And I told 'em that if any one of 'em didn't believe me, he could meet me outside. They were feeling pretty good about winning the series and they took my word for it."

Grimes related the story on his back in the Cardinal dressing room with the colored trainer rubbing a kink out of the arm that had held the A's to two hits last Monday.

"But, you know," he said, "That guy Cochrane does have funny ears."

BERGMAN ON RADIO.

Grid Coaches Ordered Off Bench; Boston U. Players Talk of Strike

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 8.—Dr. Frederick R. Rogers, new dean of athletics and health at Boston University, has delivered an ultimatum that in the future, beginning with Saturday's football game against George Washington University, athletics must be carried on in contests, strictly by the students themselves. The coaches are neither to direct play nor dictate substitutions.

The members of the football squad headed by Capt. McCarthy, were undecided tonight what to do about it. They are against the plan and there is talk of a strike as far as Saturday's game is concerned.

The captain of the team is reported to be strongly against the coaches being in the stands. He does not feel that he is qualified to captain and play left end on the team, and at the same time watch the other players and make the right substitutions. Other players strongly indorse his judgment, which may result in B. U. having no team to play against George Washington.

Coaches Mahaney, Marsters and Keanneally, and George V. Brown, of the athletic staff, refused to discuss the proposal of Dean Rogers.

MRS. DUBOIS WINS.

Rye, N. Y., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. L. C. Dubois, of Noroton, Conn., today won the national women's senior golf title with a 36-hole score of 167, leading Mrs. Donald Barlow, of Philadelphia, who finished second, by six strokes.

Sarazen Beats Cooper In Memorial Tourney

Salisbury, N. Y., Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Gene Sarazen, of Lakeville, won the Lannin memorial open today for the second successive time, scoring 284 for 72 holes over the No. 4 Salisbury championship course.

He nosed out his closest rival, Harry Cooper, of Chicago, by two strokes, by scoring a 72 in the final round to Cooper's 74. He had started the last eighteen holes all even with a total of 212 strokes for the previous 54 holes.

Sun Beau Beats Mate to Add $20,000 in Last Race of Career

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Old Sun Beau wrapped $20,000 more around his record breaking bankroll today and called it quits. The Beau of Binghamton, for the third consecutive year, won the $25,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup by a length and a half from Mate, and stretched his total winnings to $376,744 in five years of campaigning.

Now the green and orange colors of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, which Sun Beau carried to victory 33 times in 74 starts, will be hung in the stable. Never again will Sun Beau's hoofs pound a race course. He will be placed in retirement.

Sun Beau, greatest money winning thoroughbred in the world, duplicated the performance of Exterminator in winning the same stake race three times running, in capturing the Hawthorne classic. Not since Exterminator, which also was owned by Mr. Kilmer, won the Saratoga Gold Cup in 1919, 1920 and 1921, has any American thoroughbred won the same stake race three times in a row. Sun Beau won the Hawthorne Gold Cup in 1929 and 1930.

Sun Beau climaxed his marvelous racing career by running the mile and a quarter in 2:05. The 6-year-old son of Sun Briar—Beautiful Lady has won the Hawthorne Stake in faster time—he holds the track record of 2:01 3-5, but he didn't have to run any faster today, and at the finish he was under a snug hold to win handily.

It was the fourth time this season

Masked Ball, Robin's Egg Are Outrun in the Blanket Finish.

Eager Play Wins 6th, Pays $27.20; Arras Disappoints.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 8.—The Anne Arundel Purse for fillies and mares, which featured Laurel racing today, was an upset as the crowd viewed it, due to the Dorwood Stable favorite, The Beasel, running out at the head of the stretch, carrying Con Amore with her, but Con Amore, J. W. Y. Martin's entry, recovered to win by a half length and paid $9.20. But The Beasel failed to recover when she was cut off, and finished outside the money. W. R. Coe's Masked Ball was second and the Greentree Stable's Robin's Egg third.

The time of Con Amore was 1:11 3-5 for six furlongs. Remillard made a strong finish with her to head off Masked Ball. The Beasel soon went to the front on the back stretch, and was holding a strong position in front when she bore out to the rail in attempting to skim around the turn.

A large crowd attended the racing today, and was rewarded with some high class sport. F. Stevens was set down for five days for rough riding on Ruane in the third race and V. Smith was fined $50 by the starter for disobedience at the barrier on Beret in the fourth race.

Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Tryandagain won the secondary feature, the fourth race, for 2-year-old fillies, in which twelve started. It began to look like a runaway victory for the Glen Riddle Farm's Temple Bells, she took so long a lead from the barrier, but at the sixteenth Mack Garner challenged from the outside with Tryandagain and won by a half length. Temple Bells held the place and Betty Farrell the favorite, was third. Delicacy was fourth. They were timed in 1:07. The winner was $13.10. Temple Bells, for second, paid $13.90, and Betty Farrell was odds-on for third.

Lion Hearted Beats Platers.

J. J. Conway's Lion Hearted lived up to his name in the third race, for claiming platers, getting the benefit of a good ride by Nertney, and finished a half length in front, going away. F. A. Griffith's Airway was second and the Valley Lake Stable's Grand Prince third. Ruane was cut off in the stretch. Calgary K. and Quorum were out in front on the back stretch. Your Flag got through on the rail and finished fourth, Ruane fifth. The winner paid $14. He was timed in 1:46 4-5, a mile and a sixteenth.

M. Lowenstein's Charlie K. left the maiden class by winning the second race, leading all the way in the mile and 70 yard event for maiden 3-year-olds. J. E. Widener's Playbill, a fine looking young gelding by Fair Play, making his first start, was second and H. R. Dulany's All Told third. Charlie K., ridden by W. Gooler, won by four lengths in 1:45 2-5. He was favorite, and paid $5.80. All Told was second for about a half mile when Playbill passed him, and it began to look like a real race, but Playbill weakened.

—Laurel Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 8.—J. E. Widener's DR. SYNTAX has raced very little, but has shown enough class to win the purse of the fifth race, which features the Laurel card tomorrow. The race is for 2-year-olds colts and geldings, and eight are to start. MASKED KNIGHT looks next best and will be liberally backed. The LeMar Stock Farm's pair, MAD WIND and MOGUL, should get third money.

MAD WIND can improve on his last race. DR. SYNTAX was scratched Tuesday for this engagement. WAR PLANE, a Havre de Grace winner, may be better than rated.

This field is made up of horses considered too valuable for claiming races, and not quite good enough for the larger stakes. The $10,000 Richard Johnson Stakes Saturday will grade more of the 2-year-olds, and only four or five can be considered in the top division that have raced this year in the juvenile ranks.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for 2-year-old maiden fillies. HAPPEN did not run her race the other day, but worked sensationally since, and is again selected to win. In her last race, she was in a contending position to the first turn, was shuffled back and taken up, finishing out of the money. She can defeat the company in which she is found in the opener. KAY FRANCES should be a contender on recent workouts. The Trainer Burch entry will figure in the race.

SECOND RACE—BAROMETER at the weights is best of the field to go in the Longwoods Steeplechase, and should improve over his New York race in which he was backed off the boards and then ran poorly. OUTLAW, among the top-weight class, may be the favorite, but BAROMETER should defeat him. DIONYSOS has early speed, and may hold on to the end.

THIRD RACE—FLYER is given out by the clockers as ready for brackets. He is selected in the third race on these assurances, but has often disappointed and may be only a morning glory. VOWED VENGEANCE has been running consistently and will be the contender. PRINCESS ISABEL was close up in her last race.

FIFTH RACE—ST. FRANCIS, which beat Mountain Elk, should win the fifth race. WHISP, which was second at Havre de Grace after having been left at the post, looks best of the others in this field. DUNLIN'S LAD will have PHILLIP to beat for third money. This is a 6-furlong race.

SIXTH RACE—REPLEVIN should repeat in the sixth race, which has a small field of five. FERVID, winner as a field horse at sensational odds at Havre, will be the contender. HOLD is improving, was in the money last out and should get the short end of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—GUN MAN has the call in the seventh race, on form, but FOUNDATION STONE has been working fast and generally upsets the dope on Maryland tracks, so look out for him. JODHPUR ran third Wednesday and should again get in the money.

THE CRANE, placed forwardly and having good speed, raced on the outside of the leaders, came determinedly through the final furlong and was up approaching the finish. SNOBFUL improved his position on the outside and, finishing full of run, would have won in a few more strides. BLUE DAMSEL, racing close up with the pacemakers from the start, closed gamely.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LION HEARTED, $14.00, $7.10, $4.40; AIRWAY, $11.80, $5.60; GRAND PRINCE, $3.10.

LION HEARTED, handled under restraint for the first five furlongs, improved his position rapidly when taken around his field, finished full of run and took command inside the final sixteenth mile. AIRWAY, rated within striking distance of the leaders, swung to the outside entering the home stretch and closed with good speed. GRAND PRINCE, steadied in front while saving ground, weakened under punishment during the drive. YOUR FLAG, prominent throughout, continued gamely for the final test. QUORUM was rushed hard from the start and had a lot taken out of him in the early stages. RUANE moved up stoutly after being shuffled back, but hung during the final furlong. The others were held safe.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good for all but Justa Memory. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:23½. Off at 3:23½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRYANDAGAIN, $13.10, $6.80, $3.70; TEMPLE BELLS, $13.90, $6.10; BETTY FARRELL, $3.20.

TRYANDAGAIN, sent into a contending position at once, went to the outside for racing room when approaching the leaders and, finishing resolutely, was up in time in the last twenty yards. TEMPLE BELLS displayed keen early speed and held on well during the final drive. BETTY FARRELL forced a fast early pace, lugged to the inside during the stretch run and continued to bear in as her rider endeavored to take her around the pacemaker. DELICACY finished gamely after racing close up. PENCHANT lacked early speed, and went wide to secure racing room.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Anne Arundel. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:58½. Winner, J. W. Y. Martin's b. f. (4), by High Cloud—Billet Doux. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CON AMORE, $9.20, $5.20, $3.80; MASKED BALL, $9.30, $5.80; ROBIN'S EGG, $4.80.

CON AMORE forced a rapid pace from the start, was carried extremely wide when THE BEASEL swung wide into the home stretch, but continued stoutly and Remillard outrode Knapp when it came to a finish. MASKED BALL, rated close to the leaders, saved a lot of ground entering the home stretch and finished in determined fashion. ROBIN'S EGG broke fast, but lacked speed. She closed stoutly in the final quarter mile. POLLY PLAY saved ground and was gaining fast nearing the finish.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:28. Winner, Mrs. H. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EAGER PLAY, $27.20, $8.00, $3.90; ARRAS, $3.20, $2.50; BUB M'FARLAND, $2.50.

EAGER PLAY, going in improved fashion, was placed to punishment after three furlongs and, moving up stoutly on the outside, took command with a rush and held away through the final stages. ARRAS, steadied along early, was unable to keep pace with the winner in the closing test. BUB M'FARLAND, always well up, outstayed MAKE HASTE.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:01½. Winner, J. SQUEEZE PLAY, taken under slight restraint when fully in his stride, reached the leaders with good speed, was kept under pressure when taking command and drew out at will approaching the finish. TEWSENELDA, hurried to the front, was rated along while saving ground and held on well for the closing test. SNAPPY SNUB, kept forwardly placed, closed with good courage. REDIVIVUS secured racing room on the inside when making her run. She was unable to reach the leaders.

SCHOLASTIC ELEVENS IN FIVE GAMES TODAY

Tech Battles Swaverly at Manassas

Eastern's Eleven in Debut, Faces Washington-Lee.

Western, G. U. Prep and St. Alban's to See Action.

SCHOLASTIC grid warfare breaks out on five fronts today, with Tech, Eastern, Western, St. Alban's and Georgetown Prep running into determined opposition. Five games in all make up the program, only one of which, the Georgetown Prep-Landon affair, being an intra-city tussle.

Tech meets some of its strongest competition of the year in Manassas, Va., this afternoon, where Swavely Prep's big team is tackled. Hardell is taking a big squad down to do battle with the Prepmen, but two important faces, those of Jack Rhodes and Steve Hatos, may be missing. Rhodes, an All-high tackle, and Hatos, a regular back, are both ailing of shoulder injuries.

Tech eked out a 14-7 victory over Swavely last Thanksgiving in one of the best high school games of the year. The Prepmen have another big squad on the field this year, and Tech's feat of keeping opponents scoreless in its three-games to date, is distinctly jeopardized.

Eastern Eleven
In Debut.

Eastern shows its 1931 grid edition this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at Eastern, with Washington-Lee on the receiving end. Victims of the hyphenated Generals last year, 14-7, Eastern is looking forward to a victory today, based on the graduation of fleet Stan Mortimer from W-L and the general improvement of the Eastern team. Coach Kelly was optimistic last night, despite the fact that Campbell, regular tackle, and Rickart, regular end, are on the bench with injuries.

Eastern's line-up today reads, Davis and Courtney, ends; Wolf and Capt. Mades, tackles; Smith and Wirschen, guards; Lieb, center; Metzler, quarter back; Boyd and Draak, half backs; Palmer, full back.

Shuffling his cards in an effort to deal out something more potent than the Western High team which last week dropped a 26-0 game to Gonzaga, Dan Ahern has made some radical changes in the Georgetown outfit.

Buscher Shifted To Back Field.

Bucky Buscher, rated a dyed-in-the-wool end, has been shifted to the back field and De Stevens, an unknown, given a job alongside him at half back. Buscher, one of the better ends in the 1930 high school series, is shaky in his new post but supplies some badly needed punch.

Western meets Alexandria High, there, today.

SUN BEAU ADDS $20,000 IN FINALE

that Sun Beau has won a race of $25,000 on a Chicago track. His three previous big-money victories were in the Arlington Cup, Arlington Handicap and the Lincoln Handicap.

Mate, A. C. Bostwick's crack 3-year-old, which is regarded as the technical 3-year-old champion of 1931 because of two victories over Twenty Grand, was Sun Beau's chief threat in today's race. Mate went to the post a 4-to-5 favorite, with Sun Beau as second choice, with the odds at 8 to 5.

Mate was forced to the rail and was unable to break through in two attempts, but Sun Beau probably would have beaten him anyway as the race was run. Mate had Jockey Albert Robertson on his back, the same rider who brought him home victorious in the Arlington Classic, when he defeated Twenty Grand. It was strictly a contest between Sun Beau and Mate. Plucky Play, which was a distant third, and Jim Dandy, the only other starters, never figured.

Takoma and Hyattsville In Soccer Fray Today

With only three regulars from 1930 missing, the Takoma-Silver Spring High School Soccer Team will begin its defense of the Montgomery County championship Monday with a game against Hyattsville High.

The returning veterans are Pritchard, H. and A. Kelly, Cole, Robertson, Thompson, Clark, Bozievietch, Liezer and Mygatt. The promising newcomers are Mason, Brown, Graves, Dana, Shorb, Lamkin, Walters, Vandervoort.

CERKS' LOOP FORMING.

A basket ball league, chosen from the Government departments and bureaus, is the plan of a group headed by J. Earle Moser, sports editor of the Federal Employe News.

Organization plans for the court circuit already are under way.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

ST. PAUL HITS HARD, WINS BY 9-5

Rochester Club Still Holds 4-3 Advantage in Series.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The St. Paul Saints strung out the little world series for at least one more day when they defeated the Rochester Red Wings, 9 to 5, here today in the seventh game of the series.

The visiting club, champion of the American Association, advanced to within one game of their International League rivals by the win. Rochester still leads, 4 to 3.

Today's contest, played before a crowd of less than 1,000 because of frigid weather and clouded skies, was virtually a repetition of yesterday's St. Paul victory. Every man on the visiting team got at least one hit. Saltzgaver, Saints' second baseman, led with three safe blows.

Betts Allows
Six Hits.

Walter "Huck" Betts held the Wings to six hits and two runs in the first eight innings. In addition he made a double and a triple base hit.

Coasting behind a 7-run lead in the ninth, he loosened up a trifle and was reached for five hits and three runs. A home run by Paul Florence, giant Red Wing catcher, with two runners on the bases, accounted for the last inning scores. Two men were on base when Betts forced Moore to foul to Fenner for the final out.

Ray Moss, who was batted from the box in his previous series start, suffered the same fate today. He was followed by Hill, Foreman and Judd.

The series will be continued here tomorrow.

Four Officials Named For High School Games

The high school football series, which gets under way a week from today at Central Stadium, with Business and Western opening the season's hostilities, will be in the hands of Ed Towers, Hobie O'Meara, Untz Brewer and Dick Daniels, it was announced last night by John Paul Collins, director of high school athletics.

This is the same group of officials who handled last year's series. Their affiliations, respectively, are Columbia, Gonzaga, Maryland and Georgetown. Daniels is an alternate.

The schedule follows:

October 16, Business vs. Western; 20, Central vs. Eastern; 23, Tech vs. Western; 27, Business vs. Eastern; 30, Tech vs. Central.

November 3, Western vs. Eastern; 6, Business vs. Central; 10, Eastern vs. Tech; 13, Central vs. Western; 17, Business vs. Tech.

September Morn Cup Won by Col. Morrow

Col. Henry M. Morrow, veteran golf star, yesterday added another cup to his collection when he stroked his way to possession of the September Morn Cup, one of the feature events on the schedule of the Chevy Chase Senior Golf Association.

Judge E. K. Campbell gained the runner-up berth, and received six golf balls as a reward.

Capital City Grid League Schedule Opens Sunday

Mercury-Marion and Columbia-Northern Prep Games Shifted to Silver Spring Field; Action in 3 Classes Booked.

THE completion of Brooke Grubb's field at Silver Spring in time to make it available for use Sunday has induced officials of The Post's Capital City League to shift two games, originally scheduled on other fields, to this site. The first game, at 1 p. m., will bring together the Columbia A. C. and Northern Preps in the 150-pound division.

The other will find the champion Mercury eleven pitted against the Marions at 3 p. m. The shifting of these two games makes it possible for the schedule maker to move some other games to more favorable playing fields. The complete revised schedule is printed below.

The games Sunday will officially open the Capital City League and usher in the 1931 sandlot football season. A total of 20 teams will use for the first time the plays and formations they have been studiously practicing for the past six weeks. All of the teams entered in the circuit will not play this week, but will pry off the lid a week later.

On paper the three divisions of the league appear to contain the best talent the District has to offer. The teams, especially in the 150-pound division, are more evenly matched than ever before, and this augers well for a hard-fought, interesting struggle for the trophies offered by The Washington Post.

135-pound division—Federals vs. Apache Preps, Anacostia, No. 3, 1 p. m.; referee, Jeffries; St. Stephen's Preps vs. N. E. Trojans, West Potomac, No. 2, 1 p. m.; referee, E. Stevens.

150-pound division—Palace vs. Brentwood Hawks, West Potomac, No. 1, 3 p. m.; referee, Kail; Petworth Pennants vs. Stantons, West Potomac, No. 3, 3 p. m.; referee, E. Stevens; Columbia vs. North Capitol Preps, Silver Spring, 1 p. m.; referee, McClure; Brookland Boys Club vs. Centennials, Gonzaga Field, 1 p. m.; referee, O. Mitchell.

Unlimited division — Dixie Pigs vs. Brookland, Seat Pleasant, 3 p. m.; referee, McDonald; umpire, Cox; Fraters vs. Wolverines, Bartgett Stadium, Alexandria, 2:45 p. m.; referee, Sweeney; umpire, Cobean; Mercury vs. Marions, 3 p. m., Silver Spring; referee, McClure; umpire, Preston; St. Stephen's vs. Seaman Gunners, Gonzaga Field, 3 p. m.; referee, O. Devitt Prep Virtually Quits Football Fields

Devitt Prep, for half a decade a power in the field of local scholastic football, has completed its grid cycle and hereafter will stress the pigskin game no more strenuously than it does tennis, track, basket ball and golf. It has canceled every stiff game on the schedule this year, and has but one spot left on the list, Woodward, weakest of the local school teams.

Between now and November 3, date of the Woodward game, Devitt may add a contest or two, but not with admittedly strong teams. Devitt's team will be a lightweight one. The grid squad is without a coach for the next three weeks, Fred Ribnitzky, Jim McNamara's successor, having taken a teaching post in Baltimore for three weeks.

During 1928, 1929 and 1930 Devitt was held to have the greatest schoolboy team in this section. The McNamara-coached eleven ran away with Central in 1929's C Club game and last year dropped but one contest, a 6-0 defeat at the hands of the Naval Academy Plebes.

Hitting The Head Pin

BOASTING a record of six straight defeats, the Judd and Detweiler pin spillers stalked into the Lucky Strike alleys last night and surprised everyone, including themselves, by winning a 2-1 victory over the league-leading Temple aggregation. The victory dropped the Northeast team to fourth in the standings. Beatty led the attack on Reds Megaw's crew with a 410 set, the highest of the evening. A relapse in the second fray, when he counted a feeble 99, probably cost Beatty a good chance at the year's high score. Crockett, Cox, Gooding and Sweeney, the other members of the winning team, were also in fine fettle, although none could approach the leader.

Treasury's representatives in the Ladies Federal loop seized the lead at the Arcadia alleys last night when they helped themselves to a three-game win over G. A. O. The winners had things pretty much their own way all the way through. When Agriculture and Veterans' Bureau concluded activities, with the Aggies a 2-1 victor, the league resembled a real nice Boy Scout knot. The two teams were deadlocked for second place. In the other matches Commerce climbed up near the leaders with a clean sweep over Economics. This despite the fact that Mrs. Elsie Romera hung up the high set score for the night with a 322. Census defaulted to Bureau of Mines. Internal Revenue, with Miss Orpin's 119 game leading the way, snagged G. P. O. by a 2-1 count. The Marines failed to take the situation in hand and lost to Labor by one game. Commerce Comets downed their buddies, the Commerce Juniors, by the odd one, and Interstate handed War a 2-1 trimming.

CASEYS WOULD PLAY.

The K. of C. Boys Club team is seeking games with teams in the 85 and 100 pound class. The Irish have already won two practice tilts and are thirsting for more blood. For games communicate with Athletic Director Charles Reynolds at Metropolitan 9619 during the day, or Clarendon 2207 after 6 p. m.

STANTONS TO DRILL.

All members of the Stanton 150-pound Football Team are requested to report to Coach Joe Sweeney on the Terminal Field tonight at 8 o'clock.

29 COLONIALS TO INVADE BOSTON

Blackistone, Fenlon and Carlin May Not Play Saturday.

A SQUAD of 29 men has been named by Coach Pixlee to represent George Washington in their first intersectional tilt of the 1931 season when the Colonials tackle Boston U. in the bean town tomorrow. The local eleven will be after its third straight win of the season.

Three of the players tentatively named by Coach Pixlee to make the trip are not in the best of shape and may be held out of the game if the Colonials show punch enough to win without them so they'll be in tip-top condition for the Tulsa game here next week. The ailing trio are Frank Blackistone, center, and Johnny Fenlon and Lee Carlin, backs. All are suffering with leg injuries.

Colonials in Light
Drill.

Before leaving for Boston tonight the Colonials will go through a light drill on the Tidal Basin gridiron. They wound up their hard work for the Bostonians yesterday and all players except the three named are rarin' to go.

The team likely to start against Boston will be: Chambers and Mulvey, ends, Slaird and Bagranoff, tackles; Dike and Edmonds, guards; Payne, center; Carter, quarter back; Kriemelmeyer and Hendrickson, halves, and Parrish, full back.

Besides the eleven picked to start the following also will make the trip: Galloway and Clark, ends; Hale, Chestnut and Nielsen, tackles; Littleton, Wilson and Hickman, guards; Blackistone and Conn, centers, and Hoffman, Jones, Stewart, Doyle, Matia, Coogler, Carlin and Fenlon, backs.

Szabo Meets Katan On Wrestling Card

Another important name in wrestling was added to the card Matchmaker Joe Turner will stage at the Auditorium a week from tonight to augment the match in which Dick Shikat will tangle with Ray Steele. Sandor Szabo, the name in question, has been signed to meet John Katan in a finish match which has been given the semiwindup spot on the bill.

The rest of the card has not been completed.

Sandor, in his last out, threw Doc Wilson easily, while Katan lost correspondingly easy to Shikat.

Congressional Golfers Open Qualifying Today

The qualifying round in the Congressional Country Club championship will be played today, eighteen holes. Match play at eighteen holes will follow tomorrow and Sunday, with the final rounds on Sunday afternoon, and the distribution of prizes at a buffet supper Sunday evening.

The qualification round in the Indian Spring Club championship will close this afternoon, after which pairings will be made for match play. Qualifiers in the first sixteen will play from scratch, but in the other sixteens the difference in handicaps will be allowed.

BREAKS TO DECIDE, SAYS COACH BYRD

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 8.—Tapering off in their preparations for the struggle with the University of Maryland, the Annapolis Midshipmen were put through another defensive test against enemy plays, with first the Squad B shock troops and then the Plebes, furnishing the offensive power. The big team also scrimmaged offensively for a brief period, Head Coach Rip Miller desiring to get greater speed and precision in certain plays designed to unleash against the Terrapins. While the varsity was on defensive the opposition exploited Maryland plays.

While the main squad was thus working out, three other teams of the varsity squad were almost constantly on the go in running through signals and formations. Although a twisted ankle still is bothering "Bullet Lou" Kirn, ace of the varsity backs, he worked out for a while with the big team and later ran through signals with the second and third string groups. Lou is in shape to play, Coach Miller said tonight, but whether he will be in there at the start, the mentor has not decided. Nor has he definitely determined whether the varsity outfit will take the field at the outset, or that the second stringers will sound the strength of the enemy during the major portion of the first period, a policy traditional with the Notre Dame system, which dominates Navy football this year.

H. C. "Curley" Byrd, veteran mentor at Maryland, was a visitor to the academy this morning. He conferred with Capt. John W. Wilcox, jr., Lieut. Commander John L. Hall, and other attaches of the Navy athletic department over minor details of Saturday's encounter. All agree that a mighty good sample of football is in the offing.

String of Hard Battles Faced By Apaches, Starting Sunday

JIM FARRELL, who took most of his hard football knocks in the center of the Holy Cross line, is giving out a lot of rough knocks to the Apache A. C. eleven in preparation for the champions' clash with the Irvington Club, of Baltimore, which marks the opening of the South Atlantic League at Griffith Stadium on Sunday.

Both Farrell and Manager Seymour Hall realize that the Apaches will have to be in top form to carry off a victory in this contest. Heretofore, the Indians have taken on "breathers" at the start of the season and have gradually worked themselves into shape with the Mohawk game as their objective. This year, with the league formed, which also includes the Mohawks and St. Mary's Celtics, the Apaches are facing a tough battle each time they take the field.

Irvington has its usual allotment of former college stars and has the advantage of having played before this season. The Baltimore club swamped the Cumberland Collegians last Sunday.

BONES LEADS COLUMBIA'S GOLFERS

73 Card Tops Field of Qualifiers; Kellerman Shoots 75.

By HENRY LITCHFIED WEST.

WHEN the procession of golfers competing in the annual club championship of the Columbia Country Club had finished the second day's qualification round yesterday afternoon, no one had even threatened the supremacy of Thos. P. Bones, jr., as medalist in the championship flight.

His score of 35, 38—73 still held the lead with Karl F. Kellerman, jr., second with 75, and John P. Holzberg, jr., the club's junior champion, third with 79. No one else in the championship flight was able to break 80.

Six divisions, based upon handicaps, participated in the event, with sixteen low scores qualifying in each division. A large array of silverware was displayed upon a table in the sun parlor and these trophies will be awarded at the conclusion of the final rounds of match play tomorrow afternoon.

Martin Adds Landis To His Victim List

St. Louis, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—"Pepper" Martin, the irrepressible, not content with having demoralized the Athletics, is even one up on Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

The white haired commissioner, journeying back to St. Louis from Philadelphia on the Cardinal special, paused in an aisle to shake the hand of the world series hero.

"Young man," he said, "I envy you. I would love nothing better than to trade places with you."

"It's all right with me, judge," Pepper agreed instantly. "I'll trade my $4,500 a year for your $50,000 any day."

Pepper didn't know the commissioner's salary was $65,000.

C. U. Freshmen Play Training School Team

Four Washington boys are to represent Catholic University's freshman eleven today when National Training School's Football Team is met on the latter's gridiron at 2:30 o'clock. All matriculated from District high schools.

American U. Leaves For Hampden-Sidney

American University's football players depart this afternoon for Hampden-Sidney, Va., where tomorrow they will meet the Hampden-Sidney College eleven in their second game of the season. Having made a creditable showing though they were beaten by Lynchburg College last week, Coach Walter Young expects his charges to come through with a victory. Hampden-Sidney is reported not as strong as last week's opponent, and with an additional drilling the Eagles feel confident of improving over past performances.

JULY GRAND JURY'S POLICE INDICTMENTS ARE TO BE DROPPED

Action Decided Upon to Save Time and Expense; Date for Step Not Set.

INTIMIDATION COUNTS DUE TO BE HEARD TODAY

Rover Points Out Immediate Probe Is Not Necessary; Renewal Oct. 12 Seen.

Indictments charging assault against five First Precinct policemen returned by the July grand jury, declared illegal when a Government pensioner was discovered to be a member of the body, will be thrown out, it was decided yesterday at a conference between United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and attorneys for the accused men.

This course was decided upon to save time and expense. The attorneys agreed with Mr. Rover that it would be useless to file pleas in abatement in these "third degree" cases, since Mr. Rover and the Department of Justice will seek reindictment of the five men by the current grand jury.

The five men whose indictments will be nolle prossed are Precinct Detective James A. Mostyn and Privates W. C. Groomes, William R. Laflin, William T. Burroughs and George E. Perry.

Date Not Decided.

The date Mr. Rover will ask for a nolle prosse of the indictments was not decided yesterday. It was pointed out that there was little need for rush since the October grand jury will be busy with affairs of Bishop James Cannon, jr., for several days and its renewed investigation of third degree charges is not set until October 12.

It will not be necessary to nol prosse the former indictments before the October grand jury begins consideration of the charges of brutality against the five accused policemen. The men could be reindicted even though the indictments returned by the July grand jury still stood on the books.

Asking for nol prosse of these five cases will merely clear the slate for renewed consideration of the cases.

Another angle of the third degree investigation will be heard today, unless the Department of Justice seeks a continuance of its case.

Other Charges Scheduled.

Charges of intimidation and interfering with the Government witness placed against Maurice Wheatley O'Connor by Department of Justice agents are scheduled for preliminary hearing today before Needham C. Turnage, United States Commissioner. O'Connor was jointly accused in a warrant with Cecil Mason, of approaching George Baber, a witness in a third degree case, and asking that he "go easy" in his testimony against a headquarters detective.

Mason entered a plea of guilty when arraigned before Mr. Turnage, but O'Connor pleaded not guilty and the preliminary hearing was set for today.

Mr. Turnage pointed out that Department of Justice agents probably would ask for a continuance at the hearing this morning and in that event the grand jury may return indictments in the case before the commissioner's hearing is called.

WHEEL CLUB CELEBRATES ITS BIRTHDAY

Members of the Wheel Club, a club formed in the interests of the Florence Crittenton Home, met at the home of its president, Mrs. E. C. Alvord, 3928 Huntington street, yesterday to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the organization. The Wheel Club was the first circle organized to raise money for the Crittenton Home, and it was organized by Mrs. Alfred Wood, whose daughter, Mrs. Olea W. Coster, is a member of the club at the present time. The president and a few of the older members are shown above. Front row, left to right—Mrs. A. Y. Casanova, Mrs. G. C. Potwin, who was a charter member; Mrs. Mary E. Brashears and Mrs. E. C. Alvord, president. Middle row—Mrs. T. B. Kramer, Mrs. A. W. Barber, Mrs. G. M. Brumbaugh, Mrs. M. F. Beebe and Mrs. H. P. McIntosh. Rear row—Mrs. F. L. Whitney, Mrs. B. H. Howard, Mrs. D. Perham, a charter member; Mrs. Susan Adams and Mrs. H. L. Barrick.

WHOLESALE MARKET DEAL IS COMPLETED

Legal Obstacles Removed Through New Offer for Large Lot.

All legal obstacles to the establishment of the Southwest Wholesale Farmers' Market were erased yesterday when the District Commissioners accepted an offer of the Terminal Refrigerating and Warehousing Corporation to sell a large lot at the northwest corner of Tenth and G streets southwest for $5,000, despite the valuation of $32,000 placed upon it by a condemnation jury.

The deal, which was engineered by Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, evades the charges of irregularity placed before Comptroller General McCarl and eliminates the necessity of calling upon Congress for an additional appropriation to complete the purchase of the market site. The market can now be opened as soon as sheds which are under construction are finished.

Only one lot, a small tract that will not interfere with the market's opening, remains to be acquired. The owner has appealed from a verdict of the condemnation jury.

Announces Acceptance of Offer.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, announced the acceptance of the terminal corporation's offer yesterday following a conference between District officials and representatives of the refrigerating organization. The latter are G. W. Forsberg, vice president, and J. P. Johnson, secretary of the corporation, and Charles A. Douglas and E. F. Colladay, attorneys.

The terminal corporation had formerly agreed to sell the tract for $26,000 because of its desire to have the market established in the Southwest section, but when the previous proposal was threatened it agreed to cut its price further, to meet the amount of money the District had available. Formerly it had agreed to hold the lot until a further appropriation could be obtained.

Money Now Available.

The Commissioners still have enough money left, under the new terms, to complete the market project, although the $300,000 appropriation was well under the amount asked by the District.

One of the first steps in the preparation of the market site will be to close F street between Tenth and Eleventh streets, and to grade it in conformity with the remainder of the tract.

The question of a site for the wholesale market has been a source of debate between factions in the Northeast and Southwest sections for several years. The present location was chosen by Congress only after a prolonged fight.

Woman Ruins Traffic Test, Chief Tagged

Of all the times to exhibit a lack of driving skill, the most inauspicious is when the intersection is surrounded by such formidable personages as the major and superintendent of police, the traffic director and his aids, and a host of traffic policemen plus a large number of casual spectators. However, this was the time chosen for that exhibition by a woman motorist yesterday.

The new signal light had just been turned on at the intersection of Wisconsin and Massachusetts avenues. A woman motorist approached the crossing westbound on Massachusetts avenue. She reached the center of the intersection, driving hesitantly. Then, without warning, the engine stalled.

The woman stepped on the starter. It whirred, but no start. Then grating of gears and belches of black exhaust. The new light changed and traffic became jammed. The woman's car started slipping backward down the grade. It continued to roll as she concentrated on trying to start it. Finally, unable to start the car, she at least had presence of mind enough to stop it—right on the crosswalk.

What did the factotems of traffic do? They just stood there with their arms folded across their manly chests, solemn and staring. No one spoke a word. No one even reached for a ticket. The woman had spoiled their show—but innocently and with an embarrassment far more painful than any penalty the law could inflict.

Finally the woman got her car started and drove it away—without the consolation of knowing that during the ceremony of turning on the new lights Traffic Director Van Duzer's car was tagged for being parked in a restricted zone.

7 TIE FOR 3 PRIZES IN SCHOOL OF LAW

Record Set at Georgetown as Sixty-first Academic Year Is Opened.

With seven men tied for three prizes, students of the late afternoon section set a new scholastic record at Georgetown University School of Law last night and incidentally cost the school an extra $175 to make good on its cash awards for the highest general averages in class work.

Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, presented awards at exercises opening the sixty-first academic year at the law school. There were no tied averages among students in the morning section.

Ralph Stewart Boyd and John Russell Juten, each with general averages of 90.85 per cent, were awarded first prizes of $50 each for work during the past year in the second-year afternoon class. Young Boyd is a son of Prof. Howard Boyd of the Georgetown faculty.

The other students, John William Adler and Louis Pasteur Sissman, with averages of 90.71 per cent in the same class, tied for $25, second prize. In the first-year afternoon class three students tied for the $50 first prize with averages of 89.28 per cent. They are Charles Vinton Koons, James Francis O'Donnell and Erling Bernard Saxhaug.

Other cash awards in the afternoon section were received as follows: Aloysius Philip Kane, first prize of $50 in the third-year class; Karl Joseph Reinstein, second prize of $25, and Maurice Wilfred Levy, $25 second prize in the first-year class.

The honor students in the morning section awarded prizes are: John Edward Farrell, first prize, second-year class; Jack Ernest Price, second prize; Melvin Perry Dawsone first prize, first-year class, and Bernard C. Moloney, second prize.

At the law school exercises, Dean George E. Hamilton, the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., regent, and President Nevils addressed the student body.

Capital Man Seeks Reno Divorce.

Thomas W. Sprinkle, 1307 E street northeast, filed suit for divorce in Reno yesterday against Mrs. Abbie Sprinkle, according to a dispatch from the Nevada city. The plaintiff charged cruelty. The couple were married September 14, 1921, and have one child.

Buses Will Be Run During Plaza Work

Will Substitute 36 Hours for Trolleys as Tracks Are Connected.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. to substitute buses for street car service at the Union Station for 36 hours, beginning at 11 o'clock Saturday night, so that track connections might be made in the plaza development.

Several track changes have been made in accordance with the Capitol Plaza beautification, and on C street, near North Capitol street, a tunnel has been built for street car use.

One of the bus services will run back and forth between the station and Peace Monument, while the other will carry passengers to First and B streets southwest, where they will be transferred to street cars.

Use of Shotgun in Clash On Trash Brings Arrest

As Ninth Precinct police report it, John Edward Crehan and his wife had an argument last night after he announced his intention of burning trash in front of their home at 617 I street northeast. Mr. Crehan withdrew into the house and emerged with a shotgun. Then he proceeded to fire three shots in the air, frightening the neighbors and bringing police on the run.

The 57-year-old noisemaker was placed under arrest and charged with discharging firearms.

Dry Law Padlock Suit Is Instiutted

Prohibition Violations Are Charged in Action Begun Here.

Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt yesterday filed a padlock injunction suit against the premises at 206 Indiana avenue northwest under the nuisance provision of the prohibition law. Named as defendants were Michael and Charlotte Maley, occupants of the place, and Hugh L. and Sarah Peden, of 3411 Brown street northwest, the alleged owners.

Affidavits of three detectives of the special investigation squad were attached to the petition. These officers, H. G. Wanamaker, Leon E. Williams and T. O. Montgomery, recited in their affidavits occasions upon which alleged violations of the prohibition law had occurred in the Indiana avenue house.

The petition also shows that a formal notice that the place was under suspicion of being a speakeasy had been mailed to both Mr. and Mrs. Peden some time ago.

$48,969,971 Sum Sought by District

$8,131,413 Slashed From Total by Commissioners; Hearing Monday.

While the District Commissioners have slashed $8,131,413 from their 1933 estimates, their request for $48,969,971 faces another paring when the Budget Bureau hearings open Monday. Maj. D. J. Donovan, District auditor, and other officials were making preparations yesterday to present their case.

Because of President Hoover's economy program, the Commissioners cut the estimates of their department heads mercilessly in some instances. As a result their requests for the next fiscal year exceed only by $36,133 the appropriation for the present fiscal year.

The next year's budget is predicated on the retention of the present tax rate of $1.70. District officials believe that further reductions by the Budget Bureau in considering the estimates will be small.

Boy Sentenced on Paper Theft.

A colored boy who admitted yesterday in Police Court that he had taken a bundle of 20 Sunday papers from in front of a store at 1905 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was given 60 days in jail by Judge Robert E. Mattingly yesterday. The boy, Leonard Griffin, 17 years old, admitted that he was on probation from Juvenile Court because of a similar offense.

New Gas-Pressure Rule To Be Issued Tomorrow

An order establishing new gas pressure limits will be issued by the Public Utilities Commission Saturday, it was announced yesterday. While officials of the commission declined to reveal the contents of the order, it is understood it will permit a maximum pressure of 8 inches and a minimum of 3 inches.

The order will also probably require proper adjustments to meet the change in pressure and may shorten the life of gas meters because of testimony introduced at the recent gas hearing.

Van Reuth Will Leaves Art Collection to Government

The residue of the estate of Mrs. Julia Van Reuth, of Baltimore, who died September 24, will go to several nieces and nephews, including Louis D. Van Reuth, of 4507 Fifth street northwest, Washington, after one bit of valuable property is given to the City of Baltimore and a collection of art works is divided by the "National Government" and Baltimore.

Paintings, which were referred to in the will as an "art collection of paintings, mainly old masters, collected by my father, Felix Van Reuth," were bequeathed to the "National Government for authorities in Washington to determine where the collection" should be placed as a whole.

Paintings and drawings by her brother, the late Edward F. C. Van Reuth, were bequeathed to the Baltimore Art Museum. The will provided that a commission should decide which would be placed in the museum and that the remainder given to the heirs.

The Harford road estate, Echodale, at Baltimore, was left to the City of Baltimore for humanitarian or artistic purposes. The estate can be used by the municipal authorities "for any outstanding purpose for which they may deem it necessary," the will read.

CAUTION IN THE STEEL TRADE.

Scene: Sales office of a steel corporation.

Characters: Sales manager and a steel buyer.

Buyer (very timidly): Listen.

Sales Manager: What?

Buyer (furtively): Can I see you a moment?

Manager: Certainly.

Buyer (in a whisper): I mean ALONE? No stenographer or anything?

Manager (to stenographer). You may go, Miss Willetts. (To the buyer): Now what can I do for you?

Buyer (looking nervously about the room): I guess you'd better close those windows.

Manager: Certainly.

* * * *

Buyer: And lock the doors, if you don't mind. I'm taking no chances.

Manager: All right. Now then, what is it?

Buyer: Would you mind plugging the keyholes?

Manager: If you insist.

Buyer: One can't be too careful.

Manager (plugging the keyholes): All right. What is it you wish?

Buyer: I'm still nervous. Maybe we'd better go outside.

Manager: Where?

Buyer: We could go over behind that tree on the hill.

Manager: What tree?

Buyer (pointing it out): That big one behind the barn.

Manager: I can't go behind that tree. How about going up on the roof? There's nobody there.

Buyer (suspiciously): Are you sure?

Manager: Certainly.

(They adjourn to the roof.)

Manager: Now then?

Buyer: Shush! Not so loud. Somebody might hear us.

Manager: But I—

Buyer: Please . . . modulate your tones a little. You never can tell. There might be somebody behind that chimney.

Manager: There's nobody behind the chimney. We make a point this season to keep people from behind chimneys.

Buyer: You wouldn't fool me?

Manager: Positively not. What can I do for you?

Buyer: Sh-hh-hh! I thought I heard somebody.

Manager: I tell you we are all alone. Now what is it you want?

* * * *

Buyer: Promise me you'll never tell?

Manager: I promise.

Buyer: Cross your heart?

Manager: Cross my heart.

Manager: Not a soul.

Buyer: All right. Listen.

Manager: I'm listening.

Buyer (in a deep whisper): I wanna place an order for a few thousand tons of structural steel.

GROUP AUTHORIZED BY CHURCH TO NAME WILFLEY SUCCESSOR

Congregation, in Its Annual Meeting, Takes Action in Resolution.

HARMON WILL CONTINUE TO ACT UNTIL SELECTION

Head of Board of Officers Will Name Five Persons to Make Choice.

The congregation of the National City Christian Church, holding its annual meeting last night, adopted a resolution authorizing immediate appointment of a committee which will choose the successor to Dr. Earle Wilfley, pastor, who resigned recently because of illness.

The resolution calls upon the chairman of the board of officers to designate a committee of five to choose Dr. Wilfley's successor and continue the services of Dr. H. H. Harmon, acting pastor.

The clergyman's resignation was accepted with deep regret by his parishioners, who wished him "an early and complete return to health and many more years of useful service to the cause which he loves so well."

Made Pastor Emeritus.

In token of its esteem, the congregation adopted a resolution making Dr. Wilfley pastor emeritus of the church with an honorarium for a period of years.

A committee of five or more members of the board of officers will meet soon with the retiring pastor to arrange a reception to him and his family, according to the provisions of another resolution which was adopted.

Hotel Guest Arrested In $585 Jewelry Theft

Police last night arrested Edward J. Conroy at a downtown hotel on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of $585 in jewelry. After booking the man at headquarters he was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment for alcoholism, police said.

Conroy was accused in connection with a theft reported by Rosa Lignon, of 1353 Longfellow street northwest Wednesday night.

New Lights Shown At Power Session

Capital Organization Host to Industry Groups at Eighth Meeting.

That one of the answers to overproduction and depression may be applied in the very near future by the electrical industry to the advancement of a new type of artificial illumination was clearly demonstrated last night at a meeting of the Electric League of Washington, D. C., at the Potomac Electric Power Co. Building.

The meeting was the eighth of a series of nine conferences, and the league was host to Baltimore Chapter, Illuminating Engineering Society, Washington Chapter, American Institute of Electric Engineers and the Washington Display Men's Association.

Doak's Alien Net Ensnares Chinese Laundrymen Here

Suey Lee and Eng Fat, Four-and-a-half Street Rivals, Are Jailed for Illegal Entry as Drive Is Launched Here.

Suey Lee's laundry at 1008 Four-and-one-half street southwest probably will not be open for business today. Suey fell into the Department of Labor's alien net yesterday, and was locked up on suspicion of having entered the country illegally.

Another who was seized by immigration authorities, assisted by headquarters and Fourth Precinct police, is Eng Fat, who gave Suey Lee's rival laundry, at 705 Four-and-one-half street southwest, as his address.

Secretary of Labor Doak yesterday expressed disappointment that news of the drive had leaked out, causing, he said, a general exodus and making more difficult his men's task of apprehending and deporting all those who have entered the United States outside the law.

The department chief declared he was unable to estimate how many persons who have entered the country illegally are residing in Washington.

"One thing is certain, they are not going to remain here," he said, "regardless of how many there are. We expect a general exodus because of discovery of our agents' work here, but let them go. We'll get them, for the drive is not confined to Washington."

He stated that the number of deportations had increased to a present rate of about 20,000 a year. He estimated that in September there were between 1,600 and 1,700, compared with 1,584 for August. Further, 279 aliens were permitted to depart voluntarily in August.

Speaking of his roundup at the regular Thursday morning conference with Newspapermen, Doak said:

"We caught 17 more aliens yesterday, bringing the total up to 50 in the last three days. We found the majority had been smuggled in during the last twelve months, and many had gone to work the day after their illegal entry."

Lieut. E. J. Marks and Sergt. W. B. Bailey, of the Fourth Precinct, were part of the raiding detail which trapped Eng Fat and Suey Lee.

CITIZENS WIN FIGHT AGAINST AIR LEGION

Plea to Build Club at Spring Valley Is Denied by Zoning Board.

The District Zoning Commission heeded protests of several citizens' groups yesterday in denying applications of Air Legion, Inc., and apartment promoters in the North Cleveland Park area. Only six of 27 cases heard Wednesday were passed upon favorably.

Residents of Spring Valley, members of the Conduit Road Citizens Association, and the American University Park Citizens Association voiced objections to rezoning of a small tract in their section so that Air Legion, Inc., might erect an expensive clubhouse.

The commission also disapproved of the petition of owners of the Embassy Apartments to provide for establishment of two additional stores at the intersection of Mount Pleasant, Harvard and Sixteenth streets.

South side of E street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets southeast, changed from second commercial to residential.

East side of Kansas avenue, between Kennedy and Jefferson streets northwest, from first commercial to residential.

East side of Fourth street, between Aspen and Butternut streets northwest, from residential restricted to residential.

East side of West Virginia avenue, between Mount Olivet road and Raum street northeast, from first commercial to residential.

West side of Forty-ninth street, north of Dean avenue northeast, from residential to first commercial.

North side of Rhode Island avenue, between Brentwood road and Thirteenth street northeast, with exception of 25-foot strip fronting on Thirteenth street, from first commercial to residential.

Fight on Cab Fare Costs Couple $50

Rider Is Declared Beaten for Refusing 15 Cent Payment.

An attempt to collect an additional fare of 15 cents from a passenger, William M. Gates, of 1028 Girard street northeast, cost Ted S. Snyder, 26-year-old cab driver, and his companion, Noble E. Davison, $25 each as fines in Police Court yesterday.

Gates testified that when he got out of the cab he handed the driver 25 cents, and was then told that he would have to pay 15 cents more. He refused and the driver, it was testified, struck him in the mouth, cutting his lip. Davison is said to have struck Gates with a flashlight. Both men denied striking Gates but Snyder admitted that he had pinned him against a tree during the argument.

Gates yelled for help and a police car drove up shortly afterwards. Both Davison and Snyder were arrested.

Inquest Is Scheduled In Injured Man's Death

A coroner's inquest into the death of Floyd Harleston, 70, of 722 Eleventh street southeast, who died yesterday morning at Providence Hospital from injuries incurred when he was struck by a taxicab November 3, 1930, will be held this morning at 11:30 o'clock at the District Morgue.

Louis Rosetta, the taxicab driver, who struck Harleston at the intersection of Eighth and E streets, while he was crossing the street, was released at the time in the custody of the Black and White Cab Co., employers. He will appear at the inquest to repeat his version of the story of nearly a year ago.

VOCATIONAL SCHEME FOR SCHOOLS URGED

President of Guidance Body Supports Changed Plan Before Kiwanis.

Introduction of better methods in local public schools to prepare children for the world of work was recommended by Miss Helen E. Samuel, president of the Vocational Guidance Association of the District, in an address to the Washington Kiwanis Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Washington Hotel.

Miss Samuel charged upper, elementary and secondary schools with being too prone to give heed to the small percentage of pupils going on to college, and to lose sight of those who drop by the wayside.

"This dropping of children into the job market increases unemployment," she pointed out. "If we could have more types of schools, or more diversified programs of study, with organized guidance, it would increase the school-leaving age and thereby help to decrease the number of unemployed."

Guidance Program Outlined.

Miss Samuel outlined a system of vocational guidance for public schools which would provide for counselors in elementary, junior and senior high schools who would take students under their personal supervision with the object of pointing the way to a vocation.

Upon entering junior high school, a child would be assigned to a counselor who would guide him through his three years in this school. The record of the child then would be passed on to the senior high school counselor who would continue the guidance work through high school.

Such a guidance program, under Miss Samuels' plan, would begin in kindergarten, and would take care of those who leave school before graduation from junior or senior high school. The speaker stressed the importance of a child choosing his own vocation rather than being guided by the choice of the parents.

Kiwanis Sponsors Program.

The local Kiwanis Club has been actively interested in vocational guidance since 1928 and conducts weekly radio talks on the subject. A vocational guidance survey of the city is now being planned by the club.

The following school officers, board of education members and principals were guests at the luncheon: Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent; Dr. Edgar Higbie, president of Teachers College; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, board member; Henry Gilligan, board member; Dr. Harvey Smith, principal Central High School; Dr. E. J. Newton, principal, Western; Frank C. Daniel, principal McKinley; Allen Davis, principal, Business, and F. A. Woodward, principal, Gordon Junior High School.

Ernest J. Spitzer, chairman of the vocational guidance committee of the club, was in charge of the program. Merritt O. Chance, president, presided. William N. Schaefer, of the R. P. Andrews Paper Co., was initiated into membership.

Ebert Boy Is Promoted After Passing New Test

Given a passing mark in 4A grade work, James Ebert, of 1105 Jefferson street northwest, will return to the Brightwood School today as a 4B student, it was learned last night from the boy's father, Philip Ebert, and Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools.

James was given a special examination at the Franklin School on Tuesday by three disinterested teachers, after his father protested because he was not promoted after receiving a passing mark for 4A work in summer school. The student completed the 3B grade last year. The examination thoroughly covered the 4A work and lasted one hour and fifteen minutes, Mr. Haycock said.

Pair Burned When Cabbage Is Upset in Fight in Shack

Joseph Thompson, 51, and John Joseph Reardon, 32, were treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday for burns on the legs and feet, suffered when a pot of cabbage was upset during a scuffle in a shack occupied by the men in a ravine in Anacostia.

The two, with Charles McKee, 52, and Richard Burkerson, 43, built a shack from canvas and old pieces of wood and have been occupynig it for some time. They all claim to be World War veterans, awaiting compensation from the Government. McKee said he is supposed to receive a check today for $600.

According to police, the men were in the shack yesterday when an argument arose and a fight began, in which the pot of boiling cabbage was upset.

McKee and Burkerson were taken to the Eleventh Precinct and charged with being drunk. During the melee Reardon lost his false teeth and was more concerned over that than over his burns.

Struck by an auto yesterday near Fourteenth and F streets northwest, 6-year-old Alice May Gledis, 1202 K street northwest, received a fractured ankle. Police reported that Hugh Frizzell, 24, 1405 Fifteenth street northwest, was driving the car which knocked the child down.

SCHOOL IS VACATED WHEN FRONT WALL IS FOUND CRACKED

Some Classes Will Attend at Benning, Causing Part-Time Classes There.

Recommendations that the Kenilworth School be abandoned for further school use probably will be made to the District Commissioners in the next few days, it was intimated yesterday by S. B. Walsh, assistant municipal architect, after children and teachers were ordered to vacate the building earlier in the day because of the discovery of cracks in the front walls of the building.

A portable building will be erected on the grounds of the Benning School for seventh and eighth grade pupils of the Kenilworth School. Other portables will be placed on the grounds of the Kenilworth School, away from danger of the old building, to accommodate two classes for first, second, third and fourth grade pupils.

Benning School to Take Some.

The combination of the fifth and sixth grades and of the seventh and eighth grades will be transferred to the Benning School. This will necessitate two classes of the Benning School being placed on a part-time basis.

The combination first and second grade and the combination third and fourth grade classes will remain out of school until a portable building is ready. This should be early next week, Mr. Crane said.

Although the Kenilworth school, built in 1900, is in no immediate danger of collapsing, according to officials, no time was lost in ordering the building vacated after Mr. Crane received a report that crevasses had been discovered in the front wall by workmen from the District repair shop who were repairing a ceiling in one of the rooms.

Was Inspected Regularly.

The old building has been the object of periodical inspections for some time and the workmen had been instructed to examine the walls when they did the repair work.

District building officials attribute the deterioration of the walls to the condition of the soil on which the school is built.

Body Is Discovered Under Taft Span

Colored Man, Unidentified, Believed to Have Leaped From Bridge.

The body of an unidentified colored man about 56 years old was found under the north side of the Taft Bridge yesterday morning at 11 o'clock by Policeman L. D. Mason, of the Park Police.

Dr. Thomas Bradley, of Emergency Hospital, pronounced the man dead. The appearance of the ground surrounding the body and the fact that several branches had fallen from trees seemed to point to the fact that the man either jumped or fell from the bridge.

The body was still unclaimed at the Morgue last night. The man was about 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighed about 140 pounds.
